An order of the Board of Street Commissioners has been approved by the Acting Mayor changing the name of the way at West Roxbury, known as Keyes street, between Washington and Forest Hills streets, to Rossmore road.

CARE OF STREET TREES.

The interest in street trees is growing rapidly. The earliest statutory provision, aside from brief provisions in a few city charters, was the New Jersey law under which East Orange has been operating for a few years with the success which has been reported from time to time in Municipal Engineering. Pennsylvania followed with a similar law, which is slowly gaining recognition from the cities of the state.

One of the most recent movements in the interest of street trees is one begun by the Chicago Woman's Club a year ago, which resulted in an ordinance authorizing the Special Park Commission, which has jurisdiction for certain purposes over the city generally, to appoint a city forester to take charge of the street trees and to advise property owners regarding the care of their trees.

FINANCE COMMISSION.

BOSTON, February 26, 1910.

To the Honorable the Mayor and City Council:

GENTLEMEN.—The Soldiers' Relief Departments of the cities and towns of Massachusetts act, under various statutes, as agents of the Commonwealth in dispensing to those who served in the Civil or the Spanish War "state aid," "military aid" and "soldiers' relief," all these forms of assistance being supplementary to the pensions granted by the United States government. The Commonwealth, under chapter 468, section 6, Acts of 1909, pays state aid in sums not exceeding $6 a month to men, or $4 a month to women, and no more than $8 to or for all the dependent relatives of any one soldier or sailor in any one month. Under chapter 468, sections 9 to 14, Acts of 1909, each city and town shares with the Commonwealth in giving military aid in cases where the United States pension and state aid combined would be insufficient for support, though an applicant cannot, at the same time, receive both military and state aid. If military aid is granted, the state aid ceases. The Soldiers' Relief Department, as maintained by the City of Boston, makes all these disbursements both for itself and the Commonwealth. The latter not only reimburses the city for its share of expenditure, but also for money expended for burying indigent soldiers, their wives, widows or dependent mothers. Under chapter 79, sections 18 and 19 of the Revised Laws, the city pays entirely for soldiers' relief, which, like military aid, is supplementary to the other forms of public relief. While pensions and state aid are limited by regular schedules, there are no limitations as to either military aid or soldiers' relief. The purpose of soldiers' relief, as declared at the outset, was to prevent dependence of veterans of the Civil War and their widows on the almshouse or on the overseers of the poor.

The department consists of a commissioner, salary $3,500, a male clerk, salary $1,500, a male settlement clerk and visitor, salary $1,500, and the following women: a chief clerk, salary $1,300; four clerks and visitors, salary $1,100 each; a clerk, salary $800; a "matron" at $600, whose duties are those usually performed by an office boy; and a stenographer with a salary of $800. Total salaries $14,400 a year.

Applications for state aid, and the recommendations thereon of the Soldiers' Relief Commissioner, are passed upon by the State Aid Commissioner. Applications for soldiers' relief are similarly passed upon by a committee of the Boston City Council, formerly by a committee of the Boston Board of Aldermen. Applications for military aid are passed upon by the State Aid Commissioner and the Soldiers' Relief Commissioner, acting concurrently.

In the eight years and eleven months since the present commissioner took office the department has spent or disbursed over $2,000,000 of the money of the Commonwealth and of the city.

Expenses and disbursements of the department during the year (1901-02) when he took charge were as follows: $234,296.89; reimbursed by the state $146,619.69; net cost to the city $87,677.20. In subsequent years the expenses and disbursements have been as follows:

* Approximately.

The Finance Commission is in accord with the general policy of the Commonwealth and the city in undertaking to assist needy veterans. The criticism of the Soldiers' Relief Department, which the commission feels compelled to make, is directed entirely against the manner in which the benefactions of a generous and grateful community have been distributed.

In the judgment of the commission this department has been one of the most grossly mismanaged departments examined by either this or the former Finance Commission. The simplest forms of preliminary investigation have been neglected. After relief has been granted, visits to applicants have been rare and unintelligent. The records are in confusion. The force has been inefficient. The annual reports have been misleading. The results have been violation of the law, great waste of public money and demoralization among many recipients of the relief.

A subcommittee of the former Finance Commission conducted a preliminary investigation of this department so near the end of its term of service that it was unable to report on the subject. Nevertheless, as a result of recommendations then made to the commissioner in charge of the department, certain improvements have been introduced during the past year. More frequent visits have been made to the recipients of the relief, better records of visits have been kept, and more economical methods have been adopted in preparing monthly relief pay rolls. During the past year $11,362.21 less was expended and disbursed than in the previous year through discontinuance of relief, with a tendency manifest toward further reduction.

While this commission has had to take cases at random and has had time to examine only a small fraction of those on file, the characteristics in all those examined are so similar as to convince it that they are typical, and that every record would be found on investigation to show serious incompetence.

THE NEGLECT OF PRELIMINARY INVESTIGATION.

Though the commissioner states that it is a rule of the office that applicants be visited before relief is granted, he could offer no convincing evidence that this rule was generally put into effect until after the investigation in December, 1908, by the subcommittee of the former Finance Commission. Before that time applicants' statements about themselves were taken as final. As a result the department has been seriously misinformed. For example, each record examined by the commission has described the applicant's habits as either "temperate" or "good," or the space under "habits" has been left blank. No such uniformity of good habits, in fact, exists.

Typical cases of failure to make a suitable preliminary investigation are Nos. 18,568, 7,220, 12,512 and 805.

Case No. 18,568: Woman admitted in application ownership of house worth $2,000 and $50 in bank. The slightest investigation would have shown that her tax bill was $68.80, and that her house was thus worth over twice as much as she had represented. Eventually a stranger volunteered information that she was worth $20,000. Thereupon relief was stopped.

Case No. 7,220: Third wife of a sailor, who died February 7, 1907. By husband's will, all his property except $200 was left to her; copy filed among department's records. Six days after husband's death she was granted $26 soldiers' relief and $4 state aid. The commissioner had recommended $16 soldiers' relief. The committee of the Board of Aldermen added the other $10. A member of this committee became one of the appraisers, and thus found two months later that she had personal property amounting to $5,231.17. Nevertheless the aid still continues. The testimony of the commissioner is illuminating as to this case.*

Q. Why was it raised to $26? A. Well, I can only answer that by saying that the husband had a friend on the committee, probably.

Case No. 12,512: Woman claimed to have been married to a soldier in New York, and on the strength of this has been receiving relief since 1907. Investigations of Finance Commission show that there is no record of her marriage in New York and the United States government has refused to grant her a pension for lack of proof of such a marriage.

Case No. 805: Woman's husband enlisted in Civil War under false name and was dishonorably discharged. Records of dishonorable discharge were not availed of. Woman married another man while husband was alive, and not divorced. Commissioner could not discover from his records the history of this case. Aid to this doubly disqualified woman has been continuous from the time when he took office in 1901 until May, 1907, when the facts which he should have ascertained through his visitors were disclosed to him from an outside source.

FAILURE TO VISIT.

In 1907 the four women clerks and visitors made only eight visits in the entire year; practically a complete breakdown of the system so far as they were concerned.* At other times the records indicate spasms of visiting activity so extraordinary that the visits, if really made, must have been ineffective. In the six days, May 21 to 26, 1906, inclusive, a woman visitor made 102 visits, an average of eighteen a day, while the records state that another made thirty visits in one day and forty-two in another. The commissioner states that he does not think that more than thirty visits were made by a single visitor in one day. Such flying visits could not have included any real investigation.

* In this year the settlement clerk and visitor made 299 visits, but mostly to ascertain the legal status of the applicants.

Typical cases resulting from the failure to visit are Nos. 15,497, 16,354, 17,388, 14,568, 4,629 and 3,909.

Case No. 15,497: Habitual drunkard who had applied for relief in 1897, and before the relief was granted had been pronounced by the investigator addicted to liquor, and not likely to make judicious use of money. Report states that he had a comfortable home with his wife, who was paying $65 a month rent, and had three children all grown and self-supporting. Notwithstanding that these facts were in the possession of the department, not only was the relief granted him, but from 1897 to 1908 no visits were made to him. In 1908 two visits disclosed his drunken state of life. No action was taken on these reports until September, 1908. On the eighth day of that month the man's son asked that the aid be stopped on account of his father's drinking habits, and renewed this appeal earnestly on the tenth by a written statement, to the effect that the father's actions had become unbearable on account of drunkenness; that he was intoxicated two-thirds of the time; and that he had been put out of barrooms for throwing bottles at the bartenders. Then at last the relief was cut off. The record of the previous day states that the man's pension had been raised from $15 to $30 a month, through the influence of the congressman from his district.

Case No. 16,534: Man earning wages (and therefore ineligible) applied in May, 1907, and received $8 a month soldiers' relief in addition to $12 United States pension. Under "habits" the record is "temperate." He was visited in May, 1909, and the following is the record: "Mr.—not living at above address. Saw landlord (Mr.—), who said that he was obliged to put Mr.— out last week. Rented two rooms and lived here about seven months. Drank very hard; took fifty quart whiskey bottles out of his room; was a man of bad character; was employed as steamfitter at Navy Yard earning $3.50 a day. Aid was then at last stopped.

Case No. 17,388: Man has been receiving relief since 1902. Lives in house variously reported in the records to be worth $2,400, $2,500 and $3,000, mortgaged for $2,000. Though house is much too large for him no part appears to have been rented since 1902. Records state that interest on mortgage is paid on money received from estate of wife's uncle, yet no effort appears to have been made to discover the nature and extent of this fund.

Case No. 14,568: Man applied and received relief in July 1902, and later died. House then reported to be mortgaged for $700. Widow received relief until December, 1909. On March 23, 1908, the visitor reported both that woman had no money or visible means of support, and that she had $1,000 in the bank and that her husband had left insurance of $2,000. For nearly six years no curiosity as to the resources of this family seems to have been aroused. On the day when the commissioner testified before this commission (December 3, 1909, nearly seven and one-half years after application was granted), he recommended that the relief be discontinued.

Even greater negligence has been shown in giving relief to these who at the same time have been on the city's regular pay rolls. Instances are Nos. 4,639 and 3,909. Each of those received $2.25 a day from the Street Department, while also securing relief from the Soldiers' Relief Department on the plea of having no means of self-support. One of these beneficiaries in the Street Department had maintained to the Soldiers' Relief Department in 1901, 1902 and 1906 that his health was very bad and he could do no work. Yet in August, 1906 he got employment in the Sanitary Division, his age then being 69, and he continued to receive his wages there, and to receive also his state aid for nearly three years unvisited. The comparative alertness of the department last year discovered him. The other city employee was not visited from December 1903 to March 1909, and no date of his securing city employment is given in the records. In 1902 the man's house was valued at $3,000 and one record of that date states that there were on it four mortgages aggregating $3,600. Another record alongside of the first of the same date shows that there were only two mortgages aggregating $1,800—an instance of the prevailing confusion.

The commissioner admits that political influences have at times induced him to give precedence to certain applicants.

The commissioner has sought to excuse the failure to make proper visits, first, on the ground of his having an inadequate force; second, because of the preparation of a new card index. As for the force he has never asked for an addition to it, and the present force, taken as a whole, has appeared to the commission insufficiently occupied. As for the card index, an expert employed by this commission reported that a single clerk should have been able under the most favorable conditions to perform the task in three months. This catalogue was not begun until May, 1907, and cannot excuse only eight visits by the four women clerks and visitors in the whole of that year. It also does not excuse the fact that families have gone for ten years without a visit from the department. Some idea of what should have been done earlier may be deduced from the improvement this year under the stimulus of the former Finance Commission's investigation. Disbursements have been cut down nearly $1,000 a month, 2,556 visits have been made and beneficiaries have been reduced 552.

THE NEGLECTED RECORDS.

The records, which should contain the facts about the beneficiaries, are in chaotic condition. The original applications, some stray memoranda, and a few entries on such portions of the paper as may present a blank space, comprise most of these records. Their condition is such that they cannot have been seriously used. The testimony of the commissioner indicates that he consults the card index for such information as he desires, and in his report of 1908 he described these meager cards, which present only a few figures, as "embracing the history of beneficiaries." Some of the inconsistencies which appear in the records have been incidentally noted above. Other instances are the following:

Case No. 18,832: Is that of a woman reported in the records of the department as sixty-four years old in 1908 and fifty-two years in 1909.

Case No. 17,776: States that a child who was eight years old in 1904 was married before 1908.

Case No. 11,461: States that a woman was fifty-eight years old in one year and seventy-five the next.

Case No. 10,067: Woman claimed in 1898 to have shattered nerves through care of husband who was reported to have been insane five weeks before his death. Ten years later woman's nerves said to be still shattered from the same cause, and husband's insanity was reported to have been for five years' duration. A girl in the family who ceased work immediately on receipt of the relief by her mother was reported to be seventeen and twenty-five years old at the same time.

INEFFICIENCY OF THE FORCE.

The inefficiency of the force has been demonstrated by its inability to cope with the question of beneficiaries who are insured for the benefit of others, its failure to co-operate with the well-to-do offspring of beneficiaries or to induce them to bear part of the burden, and by the idleness in the office.

When beneficiaries are insured for the benefit of others, either the premiums are paid from the relief or by persons who should be equally interested to participate in the support of the beneficiaries.

Not a record has been found which shows that any serious effort has been made to find out whether grown sons and daughters not living at home were able to help the veteran, much less to induce them to aid. The commissioner's own testimony practically admits this. In such cases the state's bounty is diverted in effect to the children, and helps them to evade the care of their parents.

Cases were also found in which young people were living in idleness with and on the beneficiaries. The instances of sons or daughters who had been at work up to the time when the relief was received and then stopped seem to be numerous.

With the possible exception of the settlement clerk and visitor the men in the department do little work. The women do more. But, through faulty organization, the same women, highly paid, are both clerks doing elementary copying, and visitors with hundreds of families largely dependent on them, and with hundreds of thousands of dollars at stake.

The commission has sought in vain to find any cases of relief, once given, having been reduced as a result of intelligent visiting until after the investigations of the former Finance Commission in December, 1908. If any such reductions have taken place, neither the commissioner nor his subordinates have been able to point them out.

The part hitherto played by the aldermen and their subcommittees may be deduced from the following testimony of the commissioner:

Q. Don't they, in most cases vote to give relief where you recommend it to be done?

A. Yes, in most cases.

Q. Has there been a single case in which you have recommended relief and have been given nothing?

A. No, I think not one. There has been one case that we know of where they cut down the amount recommended.

Q. What examination of the facts does the Committee on Soldiers' Relief make?

A. Practically none.

Q. And the Board of Aldermen?

A. Absolutely none. They take the report of the committee.

MISLEADING ANNUAL REPORTS.

It should be reiterated that the foregoing criticisms are not directed against the policy of the state and city in affording relief to needy veterans. They are directed entirely at the inefficient manner in which this policy has been carried out. The question arises as to how the department could have been allowed to lapse into such a state of incompetence. While the laws governing soldiers' relief are less exacting than those governing state and military aid, the commissioner has stated that he is as careful in dispensing one kind of relief as another. In fact, he has been extremely careless as to both. The laws are explicit and mostly sound. The fundamental trouble with the department lies in neglect. The public has not questioned the department's acts, under the assumption that as its one mission is to do good it must be doing it. The State Aid Commissioner says that his responsibility ceases after he has determined that an application may legally be granted, and that payment to those who no longer need relief is due to neglect on the part of the Soldiers' Relief Department. Nor can the committee of the City Council, changing from year to year, be expected to oversee intelligently a department of this kind.

The chief reason, however, why the public has failed to appreciate the true condition of the department is the misleading character of the annual reports. In these reports soldiers' relief is described as "far-reaching in its humane mission" and "a strong incentive to good citizenship." The committee of the Board of Aldermen is complimented as having dispensed the relief in "such a manner as to conduce to the greatest good of the greatest numbers." The report for 1905-06 stated: "All the time that could be spared from the clerical duties of this office by our officials has been devoted to such service, with the result that 717 visits have been made during the year, and, in consequence of the information gained thereby a substantial saving has been made to the city by reason of the improved financial condition of the parties visited rendering assistance no longer necessary." Likewise, the report for 1906-07 stated: "Every hour that could be spared by the officials from their clerical duties has been given to such service, with the gratifying result of 1,015 visits during the year." Again, the report for 1907-08 stated: "The officials of this department are required to visit beneficiaries as often as is practicable, in order to keep informed of any changes in their financial condition that would render further assistance unnecessary. Only 436 of such visits were made during the past year, owing to the introduction of the new card index, embracing the history of and payments to all beneficiaries now on the department pay roll. In making this index great labor and much time has been and will be consumed." Then follows the statement that "as a result of the visits, a number have been dropped from the pay roll, it being found that they were no longer in need of assistance."

This picture is clearly not in accordance with the facts.

On the one hand, it must be true that many of the recipients are excellent people, in real need, to whom the community owes much. Such persons are entitled to watchful and enlightened care. On the other hand, the investigations of this commission have shown a widespread nurturing of deceitfulness, imposition, irresponsibility, idleness, drunkenness. The worst effect has been upon the younger generation, for which the relief was not intended.

The commission does not question the integrity of the commissioner.

The commission recommends:

1. That the governor consider the advisability of recommending that the State Aid Commissioner undertake more supervision of the disbursement of these moneys in which the Commonwealth is directly interested.

2. That the General Court enact section 11 of House Bill No. 10, presented by this commission, substituting a board of unpaid trustees for a committee of the City Council as the body to pass on relief and giving them general powers of supervision.

3. That the department be thoroughly reorganized as to personnel and methods, and that there be appointed as head of the department some person professionally trained in the distribution of relief.

4. That, under this head, there be appointed some person professionally trained in the keeping of relief records.

5. That the present office of male clerk be abolished.

6. That clerical work and visiting be absolutely separated.

7. That the whole office force be adjusted to the amount and kind of work to be performed.

Respectfully submitted,

THE FINANCE COMMISSION,

By JOHN F. MOORS,
Acting Chairman.

STANDARDIZING PAVING SPECIFICATIONS.

The first convention of city officials and engineers for the purpose of standardizing paving specifications is in session as this number of Municipal Engineering goes to press. It was called by the Board of Local Improvements of Chicago under the temporary chairmanship of Frank T. Fowler. Two days, Monday and Tuesday, were provided for organization, and the discussion of brick, wood block and asphalt specifications were each assigned a day.

The American Society of Municipal Improvements at its last convention appointed a committee on standard specifications which is represented at the convention, the need for standards, particularly in paving matters, having been felt in that organization for some time. It is hardly probable that the convention can take final action on all the specifications under consideration at this first meeting, but the discussion at a meeting called expressly for the one purpose should cause a long step in advance.—Municipal Engineering.

STATE WATER POWER DEVELOPMENT RECOMMENDED BY NEW YORK COMMISSION.

The Water Supply Commission of New York has recommended to the Legislature an amendment to the constitution permitting an issue of $20,000,000 state bonds for building storage reservoirs with a view to generating electric power and controlling the water flow of the streams of the state. After thoroughly investigating the question, the commission estimates that 1,500,000 horse power of water energy is running to waste in the state annually, and that it would have a yearly rental value of $15,000,000 if properly controlled.

The interest charge on the cost of developing this water power is placed at $3,000,000 a year, leaving an annual revenue to the state of $12,000,000. The commission states that the time has arrived for the state to adopt a plan of water power conservation not only for the purpose of generating electric power but with a view of regulating the flow of our rivers and to make possible the control of floods.—Municipal Engineering.

The commission appointed by ex-Mayor Hibbard to investigate the subject of the "Collection and Disposal of Refuse in the City of Boston," in its report submitted January 31, 1910, emphasizes the necessity for certain changes in our garbage disposal system which at present is a serious menace to the public health; and recommends the building of incinerating plants (of the English "Destructor" type) in the various parts of the city.

This recommendation we indorse, but we do not agree with the further proposal that these plants should be operated by private contractors.

The commission in support of its recommendation maintains that a private contract will insure greater economy and efficiency of service, and that, furthermore, some of the chief advantages claimed for the policy of public operation, namely, good conditions of employment, sanitary and unobjectionable methods of collection, etc., can be secured just as well under private as under public management by means of proper stipulations inserted in the contract.

But who, we ask, is to see that such stipulations are enforced? Who is to insure the maintenance of the good conditions insisted on? There is nothing in the nature of the contract system to make compliance with those stipulations either automatic or inevitable. Does not the task then in the end fall back upon the city authorities and their inspecting forces; and thus is not the efficiency of a vital part of the service under private as under public ownership dependent upon the efficiency of the city's officers?

As to the superior economy of the contract system, we know that there are cities abroad owning and operating their own incinerators which are making a profit thereby;* that even in this country where the methods of garbage disposal have been more crude and undeveloped than abroad, a number of cities are making sufficient profit on their disposal systems to considerably offset collection costs, and that these profits are increasing year by year.†

Now if the costs of collection in Boston under the new system are no greater than before, why should the city pay private contractors 75 cents per ton more ‡ (as the commission calculates is necessary) than it had paid under the wasteful methods hitherto employed?

Why, for instance, if the city of Cleveland (after allowing 4 per cent on the capital invested in its plant) realizes a profit of 72.4 cents per ton upon the garbage it disposes of (thus greatly offsetting collection costs), § should Boston pay a contractor for pocketing a like revenue?

The only possible reason for increase in the cost of garbage disposal under the new system is that that system might necessitate longer hauls from the place of collection to the disposal plants, thus increasing collection costs. We find, however, that if anything the costs of this collection will be less under the new scheme. To quote the words of the first commission (which, like its successor, advocated the building of incinerators in the various districts):

The present system of garbage collection "is less convenient and more expensive than a single collection of all classes of refuse (which the new system involves). First, it imposes on the householder, for whose convenience, and ultimately at whose expense, the work is done, the trouble of separating his rubbish and the necessity of using three receptacles for it instead of one. Second, the segregation of garbage, ashes

* The point might be raised here that if the city Health and Police Departments are to be responsible for the enforcement of these stipulations, the city, in order to make such enforcement possible, may have to enlarge the inspection force and go to additional expense for its support.

† See appendix.

‡ Report of the Second Special Commission to Investigate the Collection and Disposal of Refuse in the City of Boston, 1910, page 20.

§ See Appendix B.

and combustible waste in different receptacles or vehicles makes each sort of material more offensive than if it were mixed with the others, both when in the house or yard of the householder and when transported through the streets or handled at the wharves . . . Third, if there were one collection (as there would be under the new scheme) either the same number of vehicles could collect oftener, thus adding to the convenience of the householders, and by carrying away the garbage while it is fresh lessening the offensive character of it, or a less number of vehicles could be used, thus materially diminishing the expense of collection. Thus saving in transportation arises in two ways: First, the mixed refuse is much more compact than when it is kept separate. Second, each vehicle and crew can cover more ground, both because there will be fewer receptacles to be handled and dumped into carts, and because the routes can be more systematically arranged if there is one collection instead of three."

Thus we have the authority of the commission for the statement that the cost of collection would be less rather than more under the new system, because of the greater compactness of the refuse collected, and because of the greater possible economy in collection routes.

All that remains, therefore, to make the estimated additional expense of 75 cents per ton necessary is the disposal system, and that, as the experience of other cities demonstrates, should be a source of profit, a means of counterbalancing collection costs, rather than an object of expense.

Garbage collection is in its nature a non-profit-making enterprise, the only saving in the cost of which can come through the adoption of more scientific and economical methods. The cost can never be completely done away with or offset by any system of collection however scientific it may be. If, therefore, under the new plan proposed for this city, collection costs remain stationary, while service is more frequent, or the costs decrease while the service is as frequent as before, we gain.

Now though the system of collection can never pay for itself, there is no reason why the cost, even in Boston, should not be to a considerable extent offset by the profit arising from scientific methods of garbage disposal.

The products obtained by such methods are of considerable commercial value † and their sale, in a number of cities, has yielded a surplus over and above the cost of the disposal system. Thus, in England there are seven cities, which, by combining their garbage destruction with their sewage works (using the power obtained from their disposal plants to pump the sewage) and further by using or selling the clinker (which the destruction process leaves behind) for use in filter beds, or in the making of mortar, bricks, paving and flagstones, etc., have obtained a net surplus annually from their disposal plants and thus been able to reduce their tax rate.‡

Now the power and the clinker obtained from the incineration of refuse has commercial value in the United States as well as in England and elsewhere abroad; and the scientific methods utilized abroad are just as possible of utilization here. Why, then, should not Boston undertake some such progressive scheme (as the commission recommends) and in addition retain the profit which accrues therefrom, instead of paying large sums for having it appropriated by contractors?

Because we believe that change in the present system is urgently required and because we do not see why some such progressive plan as that proposed is not just as practicable here as elsewhere, we submit the following resolutions to the consideration of his Honor the Mayor and to the City Council of Boston, as well as to the indorsement of the people of this city through their various representatives.

Dear Madam,—The organization which I represent is heartily in favor of the movement in which you are interested. We are always opposed to the contract system in Boston and to alien labor which is employed by the contractor. The men sleep in barns; are fed like hogs, which is enough to bring contagious diseases; do not know how to speak the English language; are not citizens of Boston; work fourteen to eighteen hours per day, salary $12 to $15 per month. We believe in abolishing the contract system, having day labor by citizens, and the prevailing rate of wages that is now paid by the City of Boston.

Trusting you will have success in the movement, I remain

Very respectfully,

To His Honor, the Mayor, and the Members of the City Council of the City of Boston:

Whereas, the present method of garbage collection and disposal is a serious menace to the public health, and an unnecessary drain upon the public treasury, and

Whereas, the experience of other cities demonstrates that more profitable and sanitary methods of disposal can be found, and

Whereas, we believe that fair conditions of employment, the most sanitary methods of collection, and the full return of profit to the people cannot (in this instance) be obtained through private contract, be it

Resolved, That steps be taken to consider,—

(1.) The erection of disposal plants in the various districts of this city as the commission recommends, and

(2.) Means whereby the efficient operation of these plants by the city may be secured.

A COMPARISON OF THE GARBAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEMS OF BOSTON, MASS., AND COLUMBUS, OHIO.

BOSTON, MASS.

Collection:

No regulation as to the nature of the carts, which in the South and West Ends are of iron, but in most of the remaining districts are of wood

Conditions of Employment:

Of the worst possible order, involving sorting of refuse and repeated handling of the garbage in the various stages of its disposal, thus threatening the health of the workers and making them disseminators of contagion.

Methods of Disposal:

Dumping in the harbor and on vacant lots, and some reduction at a reduction plant, which because of the noxious odors it produced had to be put on an island in the harbor.

By-Products:

None, except a few from the private reduction plant at Spectacle Island, which the contractor, not the city, profits by.

Cost:

For these above advantages Boston pays over $700,000 a year.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.

Collection:

In sanitary steel wagons, which are hauled to a central loading station where the refuse is discharged into large water-tight railway cars for transportation to the disposal plant. The wagons are steamed out and sterilized after unloading.

Conditions of Employment:

The garbage is not exposed from the time it is unloaded until it is sterilized and delivered from the machinery in a finished product. This allows the destroying or utilizing of the garbage without the men at the plant coming in contact with the same.

Methods of Disposal:

Highly sanitary, no contact with the garbage necessary after the first process of reduction has been gone through.

By-Products:

Grease and tankage of considerable commercial value.

Cost:

Cost of disposal completely offset by profits on sale of by-products, which profits it is expected * will in time be sufficient to cover collection costs as well.

Board of Public Service,
Improved Garbage and Refuse Disposal,
Irwin S. Osborn Engineer in charge,
Columbus, Ohio, February 18, 1910.

Dear Madam,—Replying to your letter of the 15th relative to garbage disposal system at Columbus, Ohio.

We are not able to furnish you with reports as to the operation of our garbage disposal plant as we are just completing a new reduction plant which has been designed, constructed and will be operated as a municipal plant. We will briefly describe the plant, but not from a technical standpoint.

The garbage is collected in sanitary steel wagons and hauled to a central loading station in the central part of the city, where it is discharged into large water-tight railway cars for transportation to the disposal plant. The wagons are steamed out and sterilized after unloading.

At the plant the garbage is unloaded from the cars in a building separate from the disposal plant, and by means of an inclosed conveyor is discharged into large tanks and cooked. The garbage is cooked and the solids dried, leaving two salable products of grease and fertilizer. The returns from the salable products paying for the cost of disposal.

The Columbus plant will be the first plant that was ever designed and constructed by a city and operated as a municipal plant where this method was used, although Cleveland, Ohio, have a municipal reduction plant that was purchased from a private company that had been disposing of the garbage by contract. The Cleveland plant last year had returns from the sale of by-products that amounted to a profit to the city of nearly $100,000 over and above the cost of disposing of the material.

In designing the Columbus plant it has been our first object to make it as sanitary and free from objectionable features as possible. The garbage is not exposed from the time it is unloaded till it is sterilized and delivered from the machinery in a finished product. This allows the destroying or utilizing of the garbage without the men at the plant coming in contact with the same. All garbage water and liquors are evaporated and there are no undesirable materials to be gotten rid of at the plant.

The buildings are of fireproof construction, and of a pleasing architectural design, and we do not think any one visiting the plant after it is in operation will find anything displeasing in the least.

Trusting this will give you the desired information, we remain,

Very truly yours,
(Signed) IRWIN S. OSBORN.

APPENDIX B.

COMPARISON OF THE COST OF THE GARBAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEM IN BOSTON, MASS., AND CLEVELAND, OHIO.

In Boston the 403,757 tons of refuse (exclusive of market refuse) received during the year ending January 31, 1909, was collected and disposed of at a total cost of $751,254.94; that is, at the rate of $1.84 per ton.*

In Cleveland (1907), after allowance had been made for extraordinary expenses, depreciation, etc., the total combined cost of collection and disposal was $193,614.55, for 37,605 tons, or $5.12 per ton.†

But whereas in Boston no profits were accruing from utilization of the products of the disposal system, in Cleveland such products yielded a return of $34,035.17 over and above the operating costs of the disposal plant after extra expenses and depreciation had been allowed for. Thus the total cost to the city of its garbage system was reduced by the amount of the disposal cost, or from $193,614.55 to $98,419, plus an additional net profit of $34,035.17, or of 20 per cent on the total investment.‡

Thus we see that in Cleveland, the disposal system (which in Boston is a source of great expense) is paying for itself, and in addition, in 1907, netted the city a profit of, approximately, 72.4 cents per ton after allowing 4 per cent interest on the total investment.

It is difficult to discover just what the separate costs of collection and disposal may be, but it is perfectly plain that if the city by the establishment of a scientific method of garbage disposal and the utilization of its products could completely offset disposal costs (as Cleveland has done), and, in addition, realize a profit of 72.4 cents per ton on the garbage handled, which in the case of Boston would mean a profit of approximately $294,347 to offset collection costs, the change, from a financial point of view alone, would be well worth the making.

The only reason why collection costs in Cleveland are so high would seem to be the greater length of haulage required to carry garbage from the various parts of the city to the reduction plant, which, in order to avoid nuisance from the noxious odor often generated by the reduction process, is situated at considerable distance from the city limits.

The new system proposed for this city would not necessitate higher collection charges, as has been the case in Cleveland (in fact, would rather decrease the charge if the service rendered were the same), for the reason that destructors causing no nuisance can be built in the heart of a city district; while it is hoped that profit, like that accruing to the Cleveland plant could be obtained. Of course, the system proposed is completely different from that of Cleveland, involving destruction of the refuse instead of its reduction; but the opinion of experts seems to be that such a system of disposal can be made to yield as high a rate of profit as can the process of reduction. If such were the case (as the experience of English cities testifies), there remains no reason why Boston, while maintaining its present moderate collection cost, should not realize a considerable profit from its disposal system.

Later figures show that the increase in profit since 1907 has been greater still. Last year (1909) the city of Cleveland realized a profit of nearly $100,000 over and above its garbage disposal costs on the sale of by-products from its disposal plant. (See Letter in Appendix A.)

APPENDIX C.

THE RELATIVE MERITS OF DEDUCTION AND INCINERATION.*

Goodrich (a much quoted authority on refuse disposal) says in his book, "Refuse Disposal and Power Production," pages 349-350:

"It is idle for advocates of reduction to contend that the system is more profitable, commercially speaking, than destruction and power production. This can only be determined by making careful comparison between a reduction system and a modern destructor supplying power, paid for at a reasonable rate. Further, the clinker has to be taken into account, this frequently being a good source of revenue.

"The modern destructor, as we understand the term, is unknown in America; the immense amount of power obtainable coincidentally with the destruction process has yet to be realized, as also the residuum and its ever widening sphere of influence.

"It is not exaggeration to say that if it were possible to erect two large British destructors in New York, destroying sufficient refuse to operate about 200 electric cars for eighteen hours daily, reduction would at once become an impossible system. Separate collection of the waste and sorting would cease entirely, and destruction by fire would speedily become as popular as is the case in this country.

"As already indicated, the commercial aspect has counted for much in the development of reduction, and it may be fairly assumed that the commercial aspect of destruction, once demonstrated, would appeal strongly to a people possessing no mean utilitarian record.

"To the British student of the subject it must be evident that the power aspect of refuse disposal alone is likely to induce a commercial people to abandon that laissez faire attitude concerning their filth, which is the most serious stumbling block to sanitary progress."

William F. Morset compares the systems of reduction and destruction as follows:

"A comparison of these two methods when applied to the American conditions will naturally suggest some points common to both, which may be stated thus:

"(a.) Area of ground required: For destructor, 20 per cent less than for incinerators.

"(b.) Initial cost of plant complete: For municipal work, in quantities of thirty tons up to seventy-five tons daily, the cost for destructor plant is 15 per cent more than for incinerators. This is for the added boiler and machinery equipment.

"(c.) Capacity of plant: A reserve capacity for the same relative quantities in favor of destructor, because of storage of waste and more economical use of time in disposal.

"(d.) Durability of construction: Is greatly in favor of destructors, as proven by continuous work of more than 300 destructors against the intermittent work of 180 crematories or incinerators, of which over one-half are discontinued.

"(e.) Temperatures attained: In destructors the minimum is 1,250 degrees Fahrenheit; the maximum 2,000 to 27,000 degrees; the average 1,500 to 1,900 degrees. This destroys, within the furnace, all consumable gaseous compounds. In crematories and incinerators the initial temperature at the fire box rarely attains 1,000

* i. e., Destruction.

* If the experience of Cleveland is any indication.

degrees, with a continuous loss of heat for every foot of distance to the chimney.

(f.) The addition of fuel is not required in destructors but is a necessity in all crematories.

(g.) The gases of combustion are consumed by the destructors within the furnace; in crematories and incinerators they are incompletely destroyed in their rapid passage over fume cremators.

(h.) The power developed by destructors is an asset of revenue, but in crematories and incinerators the heat is passed direct to the chimney and lost.

(i.) The residuums of destructor work are vitrified clinkers useful for several departments of municipal service. The soft ashes from crematories have no value except for filling ground.

(j.) The scope of usefulness of destructors covers every form of municipal waste that fire will affect; the crematories can deal only with garbage, but are not able to burn or attempt to convert house ashes into power.

An additional argument in favor of destruction is that destructors, unlike reduction plants, generate no noxious odors and can therefore be built and have been built, in fact, in city centers, thus entailing no increased collection cost, while reduction plants have usually to be built outside the city limits, involving large expenditures for hauling the waste.

An estimate of cost for an incinerator (i. e., destructor) for Milwaukee, Wis., capable of disposing of 450 tons per day, is as follows:*

Furnaces and appurtenances, chimney, flues, electric crane, etc. $197,000
Buildings and grounds. 60,000
Power plant for utilizing steam. 50,000

$307,000

Cost per day:

Operation, 450 tons at 35 cents. $157 50
Cleaning and repairs at 5 cents, 22 50
Engineer, assistant and electrician. 20 00
Interest and depreciation, 10 per cent for 310 days. 99 03

Total. $299 03

Revenue per day:

1,000 electric kilowatt hours at 1 cent. $240 00
50 tons of clinker at 25 cents, 12 50

252 50

Net cost per day. $46 53

Net cost per ton. 10

It may be added that the cost of construction is believed to be liberal. The estimate for operating expenses is also fair and based on experience elsewhere. It is believed that a rate of 10 per cent will cover both interest and depreciation of all perishable parts, if converted annually into a renewal fund.

The estimate of 1,000 kilowatts per hour is conservative, if the electricity can be disposed of continuously for power or lighting, to do which should not offer great difficulties in this city.

APPENDIX D.

WAYS IN WHICH GARBAGE DESTRUCTION CAN BE MADE TO YIELD PROFIT.

The products yielded by destructors are:

(1) clinker.

(2) power.

Clinker utilization:

"It has been practicable in England to find good market for the sale of furnace clinker. I see no reason why it should not be the case here. It is worth at least the cost of material for filling which is 25 cents a ton."*

Morse in the "Collection and Disposal of Municipal Waste" estimates that 22 per cent to 35 per cent of the refuse destroyed remains as vitreous clinker. By many municipalities this is used, or sold for use, in filter or bacteria beds, and in the production of mortar, bricks, flagstones, pavement, etc.† In one instance, even, it has been used, like concrete, for building purposes.‡

Power utilization:

Many municipalities are utilizing the power produced by their destruction plants.

(1) By combining garbage destructors with sewage works,§ using the power to pump the sewage and the clinker for its bacterial treatment.

By so doing no less than seven English towns, after meeting all capital and standing charges on their plants, have obtained a net annual surplus which has enabled them to reduce their tax rate.

(2) By combining destructors with electricity works.||

During the last ten years seventy English municipalities have adopted this combination with, generally speaking, very satisfactory results.

(3) By combining with waterworks,* e. g., Sheerness, England. There for three years past the destructor has shown a net surplus toward the reduction of taxes of over £400 per annum, the total cost of repairs and maintenance being less than £10.

(4) By combining with central heating plants.†

(5) By using the power in any other useful way or by selling it.

APPENDIX F.

W. Francis Goodrich (in "Refuse Destruction and Power Disposal"), Joseph Branch (in "Heat and Light from Municipal and Other Waste"), and William F. Morse (in the "Collection and Disposal of Municipal Waste") agree that the reason why so many American destruction systems have failed is, that in this country we have been utilizing an antiquated type of plant, long since abandoned in England, for those of more scientific construction, and that the matter of garbage disposal has not been treated here as an engineering problem.

Mr. W. Francis Goodrich, the well known English writer on destructors and their work, gives the following three classes into which refuse destructors may be divided:

"First, the original type of low temperature and slow combustion cells, with which little, if any, use was made of the escaping gases for power production.

"Second, destructors provided with artificial draft, and therefore, more efficient as destructors, by reason of the higher temperature obtained, and greater destroying capacity, but which only provide power for work purposes or clinker utilization; and

"Third, destructors of modern types providing the maximum amount of power available from the refuse, and available for the generation of electricity, for pumping sewage, for gas works or other municipal purposes for which power is required."

Mr. Goodrich further says:

"With the early type destructor of the low temperature, slow combustion type, boilers were but rarely installed, and no attempt whatever was made to develop power. The low temperature gases were useless for steam raising purposes, very frequently not being sufficiently high in temperature to avoid nuisance.

"The residuum or clinker was soft and objectionable, having no commercial value, it being impossible to produce a good, serviceable vitreous clinker unless a high temperature be reached and maintained in the cell."

The above description of results obtained by tems, we refer to a special article entitled "British Destructors Throughout the World," by W. Francis Goodrich, which is to be found in William F. Morse's book, the "Collection and Disposal of Municipal Waste."

The seven cities which (as mentioned earlier in this report) have been enabled to reduce their tax rate by means of the profit gained from their disposal plants are as follows: Aldershot, Eccles, Epsom, Hereford, Lytham, Watford, Weymouth.*

The following section from a table in "Heat and Light from Municipal Waste," by Joseph Branch,† will give some idea of the number of destructors installed in England, and of how the power generated by the disposal process is utilized:

the early forms of British destructor may be applied to the present forms of crematories and incinerators, used in this country, without the change of a single word.‡

Lately, however, a few destructors of the modern English type have been installed. The following letter just received from Milwaukee shows that the authorities there expect their plant to be as economical as any in the country and to at least cover all disposal costs.

February 18, 1910.

Dear Madam,—Your letter of February 15 has been referred to me by the Mayor of Milwaukee. Your request for full information with reference to the subject of garbage disposal is so sweeping in its character as to leave us in doubt as to exactly what to write you. Full information upon the subject would require a whole book. The situation in Milwaukee, however, in brief is as follows:

For many years Milwaukee has tried all known methods of garbage disposal. In 1902 an incineration plant was erected on an island named Jones Island. This has been a success except that its location on an island was unfortunate, because the expense of handling is 40 per cent more than it would be were it on the mainland. The garbage also has increased since that time to such an extent that the plant is too small. Further, it is only a garbage burner and not a refuse destructor. Only garbage is disposed of, leaving all miscellaneous rubbish, manure, etc., to be disposed of in other ways.

Because of these facts the city of Milwaukee last year decided to erect a new and more modern destructor, situated upon the mainland, near the heart of the city. This will have a capacity of 300 tons per day of mixed garbage, rubbish, ashes, manure, street sweepings, etc. The cost will be $200,000. The mixture of rubbish will be burned without the use of coal, and after the plant has been in successful operation a steam generating auxiliary plant will be built whereby the surplus heat from the refuse destructor will be converted into steam, and later into electricity. By using this power generated from the refuse destructor, it is figured that the plant will operate without cost; in other words, the value of the power will offset the cost of operating the plant, which we figure will be somewhere between 60 and 75 cents per ton. The new refuse destructor will be a high temperature plant, whereas the present garbage burner does not produce high temperature. The plant is being erected by the Power Specialty Company, New York City, who are American representatives of the Heenan & Froude English furnaces. The plans and specifications were prepared by Dr. Rudolph Hering, New York City, and the firm Hering & Fuller are the supervising engineers.

Milwaukee has a municipal garbage collection system, established for the last twenty years. It has been found to be the most satisfactory.

Of course I do not know just exactly what information you desire, but the above is a summary of the situation. We expect the new plant will be in operation within the next two months, and that we will then have the most modern refuse destructor in the world, as well as the most economical.

I am sending you under separate cover a report of the department for the year 1907, which includes, beginning page 140, a report on the whole garbage situation in Milwaukee, which was made by Dr. Rudolph Hering of New York for the city. It was following upon this report that Dr. Hering was later employed to prepare plans and specifications for the kind of a plant which he had recommended.

If there is any further information you desire, we shall be glad to furnish it upon application.

Respectfully yours,

(Signed) A. B. CARGILL,
Secretary.

Coun. BRAND—Mr. President, as this memorial is a very lengthy one—I have a copy myself and I think each member has—I move you, sir, that reading be dispensed with.

The Council voted to dispense with the reading of the memorial.

In connection with the above Coun. HALE offered the following:

Ordered, That the Executive Committee of the City Council hold one or more public hearings in regard to the present and proposed methods of collection and disposal of garbage and other refuse.

Further consideration of the matter was assigned for two weeks.

RESOLUTION FAVORING ELECTRIFICATION OF RAILROADS.

Coun. BRAND offered the following:

Whereas, The operation of steam locomotives in localities where the population is dense is a constant menace to the health and comfort of the community and greatly decreases the value of property; and

Whereas, The electrification of the steam railroads will greatly improve the local passenger service; be it

Resolved, That we hereby respectfully urge the Legislature of 1910 to take such action as shall definitely establish as a policy of the Commonwealth the electrification of all railroads in the metropolitan district of Boston and that provision be made for the completion of such electrification at the earliest practicable date.

The preambles and resolution were read a second time, and the question came on their passage.

The preambles and resolution were adopted.

Coun. ATTRIDGE—Mr. President, in line with the remarks of the two previous speakers, I desire to offer the following order giving the Committee on Legislative Matters authority to appear before the Legislature and advocate the passage of House Bill No. 991, which provides for the electrification of the railroads in the vicinity of Boston.

Coun. ATTRIDGE offered the following:

Ordered, That the Committee on Legislative Matters be authorized, and his Honor the Mayor be requested, to appear before the committee of the General Court on railroads, in favor of legislation to compel the electrification of the railroads operated in or about the City of Boston, substantially as provided in House Bill No. 991.

The order was passed.

REPORT ON SOLDIERS' RELIEF DEPARTMENT.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I would like to ask what disposition has been made of the Finance Commission's report in relation to the Soldiers' Relief Department?

President BALLANTYNE—It has been placed on file.

Reconsideration was declared lost. Coun. CURLEY doubted the vote and asked for the yeas and nays.

Reconsideration prevailed, yeas 5, nays 2.

Yeas—Coun. Attridge, Buckley, Curley, Hale, McDonald—5.

Nays—Coun. Ballantyne, Collins—2.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I move you, sir, at this time that the communication and recommendations received from the Finance Commission be returned to that commission.

Coun. HALE moved to amend that the matter be further assigned for one week.

Coun. Hale's motion to further assign the matter for one week was declared carried. Coun. CURLEY doubted the vote and asked for the yeas and nays.

The matter was further assigned for one week, yeas 6, nays 2.

Yeas—Coun. Attridge, Ballantyne, Brand, Collins, Hale, McDonald—6.

Nays—Coun. Buckley, Curley—2.

Coun. HALE—Mr. President, I would like to move that the Committee on Soldiers' Relief—consisting of Councilors Curley, Buckley and myself—prepare some kind of a report for the next meeting on this subject.

President BALLANTYNE—That will be a matter for the Committee on Soldiers' Relief.

Coun. HALE—It does not come within our usual functions, Mr. President, and that is why I have asked for special authority.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I would say that I am perfectly agreeable to sitting down with the committee but I will be a party to no report other than a report in favor of sending back to the Finance Commission the recommendations that they have sent to this body to-day.

Coun. Hale's motion was carried.

FINANCE COMMISSION REPORTS.

Coun. BRAND offered an order—That the Finance Commission be requested to submit all reports pertaining to the City of Boston to the City Council before giving to the public.

The order was passed.

MAINTENANCE OF COUNTY BUILDINGS.

Coun. ATTRIDGE offered an order—That the Committee on Legislative Matters be authorized and his Honor the Mayor be requested to appear before the Committee of the General Court on Counties, in favor of legislation to compel Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop to pay a fair share of the cost of maintenance of county buildings in the County of Suffolk, as provided in House Bill No. 450.

The order was read a second time, and the question came on its passage.

Coun. ATTRIDGE—Mr. President, Mayor Fitzgerald in his inaugural address on February 7, stated:

"Nearly the whole of the county tax is assessed upon Boston, although few will be found to dispute the proposition that Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop should in justice be charged with their share of this burden.

"The heavy burden of the metropolitan charges and the unjust apportionment of them among the different communities that make up the metropolitan district, have been the constant theme of my predecessors in office, but at present there seems to be no immediate prospect of alleviation or redress. Boston is thus charged with an indebtedness of more than $36,000,000, or 64 per cent of the total metropolitan debt."

The Legislature has before it at the present time House Bill No. 450, which has been presented by a man who has served in the city government of Boston—ex-alderman, now Representative Charles L. Carr—and on March 16 there will be a hearing upon that bill. The bill reads as follows:

AN ACT

Relative to the Maintenance of County Buildings in the County of Suffolk.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Section 1. Section five of chapter twenty of the Revised Laws is hereby amended by striking out in the second line thereof after the word county, the words except Suffolk, so that said section when amended shall read as follows:—Section 5. Each county shall provide suitable court houses, jails, houses of correction, fireproof offices and other necessary public buildings for the use of the county; but the county of Dukes county need not provide a house of correction.

Sec. 2. Chapter twenty of the Revised Laws is hereby further amended by striking out therefrom sections seven and eight.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Section 5 of chapter 20 of the Revised Laws reads as follows:

"Each county, except Suffolk, shall provide suitable court houses, jails, houses of correction, fire-proof offices and other necessary public buildings for the use of the county, but the County of Dukes County need not provide a house of correction."

If this act is reported by the legislative committee and is passed by the Legislature of Massachusetts, it means that Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop will be compelled to pay their just share of the expenses for maintaining the county buildings in the County of Suffolk, and, as there is a rule of the Council, that the Committee on Legislative Matters of the Council must have the authority of the Board in order to appear in favor of any proposition, I think that this order is sufficient to give them authority. They should be instructed by the City Council to appear in favor of this measure, and see if it is not possible to prevail upon the committee to report this bill, so that Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop may pay some of the expenses of the county in maintaining our county buildings.

The order was passed.

ATTENDANCE OF FINANCE COMMISSION.

Coun. HALE offered an order—That the Finance Commission be requested to attend, by one of its members, the hearing of the Committee on Appropriations relative to the Assessing Department.

The order was passed.

CHAPTER 177, ACTS OF 1907.

Coun. CURLEY offered an order—That chapter 177 of the Acts of 1907, entitled "An Act relative to the apportionment of sewer assessments and the payment of interest thereon," be and the same is hereby accepted.

The order was assigned to the next meeting.

RECESS.

On motion of Coun. HALE, the Council voted at 5 p. m. to take a recess, subject to the call of the Chair.

The members reassembled in the Council Chamber and were called to order by the President at 5.55 p. m.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE REPORTS.

Coun. HALE, for the Executive Committee, submitted the following:

(1) Report recommending the passage of the following order (referred February 21):

Ordered, That the City Messenger be requested to cause the flags to be displayed on the public flagstaffs, during all holidays, until otherwise ordered; the expense attending the same to be charged to the appropriation for City Council, incidental expenses, when made.

Report accepted; order passed.

(2) Report recommending the passage of the following order (referred February 21):

Ordered, That the City Messenger be requested to cause the necessary roping off of streets or public grounds that may be required, and until otherwise ordered; the expense attending the same to be charged to the appropriation for City Council, incidental expenses, when made.

Report accepted; said order passed.

(3) Report on order (referred to-day) to continue the contract with Nela Gilman Crowley for compiling the index of the proceedings of the City Council, at an amount of $1,000 per annum—recommending the passage of the order.

Report accepted, said order passed.

FANEUIL HALL.

Coun. CURLEY, for the Committee on Faneuil Hall, submitted reports on petitions recommending that leave be granted to use Faneuil Hall, as follows:

National Lancers (referred to-day), afternoon and evening of June 14.

Boston Lodge No. 10, B. P. O. E., evening of March 13 and afternoon of March 20.

Boston American (referred February 21), evening of March 21.

Boston Lodge No. 10, B. P. O. E., afternoon of March 6.

Reports severally accepted; leave granted on the usual conditions.

LOCKER BUILDING, FRANKLIN FIELD.

Coun. HALE, for the Committee on Finance, submitted a report recommending the passage of the following order (referred February 21):

Ordered, That the sum of $4,500 be appropriated, to be expended by the Park Department, for the completion of the locker building at Franklin Field, and that to meet the said appropriation the City Treasurer be authorized to issue, on the request of the Mayor, bonds of the City of Boston, for the said amount.

The report was accepted, and the order was ordered to a second reading, yeas 9, nays 0.

President BALLANTYNE—The order will take its second reading fourteen days from to-day.

HEARINGS IN DIFFERENT SECTIONS.

Coun. KENNY—Mr. President, at the recent meetings held in different sections of the city before the Mayor and City Council, in each instance the Mayor suggested that the meetings stand adjourned until the first part of March. In the case of South Boston the meeting would naturally be on the first Friday of March and in the case of Dorchester I think on the 2d or 3d of March. That adjournment was in order to give to the people of the different sections an opportunity to examine into the appropriations, we reporting to them the progress which had been made. As a matter of fact, there has as yet been no progress made. The budget has only been called to our attention within a few days, and we are now considering it. That consideration is going to consume several more nights. Therefore, we cannot report progress at these meetings which were supposed to be held in March; and I am going to suggest that the Council vote to adjourn such hearings as were to be held in March until such time as the Mayor may call them on his return.

Coun. Kenny's motion was carried.

SYNOPSIS OF DISTRICT NEEDS.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I present a file, a synopsis of the needs of the various districts in the matter of appropriations and loans, as compiled by Mr. Harnden, and move that it be printed as a public document.

(Coun. CURLEY presented the synopsis referred to.)

Coun. Curley's motion was declared carried.

Coun. HALE—Mr. President, I doubt the vote. Mr. President—

The President ordered a rising vote to solve the doubt.

Coun. HALE—Mr. President, isn't it usual to allow debate on a motion?

President BALLANTYNE—Not on solving a doubt.

Coun. Curley's motion was carried by a rising vote.

Coun. HALE moved a reconsideration of the vote; lost.

OPINION OF CORPORATION COUNSEL.

The following was received:

Law Department,
Boston, February 26, 1910.

To the Honorable City Council,
City Hall, Boston:

Gentlemen,—I have just received from the Clerk of Committees a request to appear before your honorable body at 4 p. m. on Monday. I regret to say that I have just been summoned to Washington to argue the case of Boston Chamber of Commerce v. City of Boston, before the Supreme Court of the United States, and shall have to leave for Washington either Sunday night or early Monday morning.

In reference to the subject of roping off streets and displaying flags by the City Messenger, I think that it would be well for the City Council, to avoid misunderstanding; to put their question in writing and I will reply in writing as soon as I return.

As to the other subject, I should say nothing were it not for certain things which have appeared in the daily papers stating that I have given opinions concerning the duties of the City Council in regard to appropriations which I have never given, so I will now give an opinion in writing substantially on the same lines as my conversation with Mr. Mitchell on the subject.

With the exception of increasing appropriations, the provisions of the city charter amendments as to the respective duties of the Mayor and City Council seem to me to be perfectly plain.

The City Council cannot originate an appropriation. The Mayor sends in an appropriation bill to the City Council. The City Council can reduce or reject any item of the budget sent to them by the Mayor. If they reject any item that is the end of it and there is no appropriation made for that object until such time, if it ever arrives, as the Mayor and the City Council may agree on a supplemental budget containing the same item.

If, instead of rejecting an item in the budget, the City Council reduces an appropriation, it then goes back to the Mayor under section 4 of the amendments, it being an appropriation and vote of the City Council which requires to be presented to the Mayor for his approval or disapproval. If within fifteen days he files his objection to this appropriation in writing, then there is no appropriation for that purpose and can be none until both the City Council and the Mayor agree.

As far as the rejection or reducing of items in the budget are concerned, the powers of the City Council are exactly the same as they were under the old city charter except that the veto of the Mayor is absolute and cannot be overridden by a two-thirds vote. The charter seems to me to be perfectly plain on this point, that until the Mayor and City Council concur in the amount there can be no appropriation for any department.

Take as a concrete illustration—if the City Council should vote to reduce the item in the budget appropriating money for the Street Department by the sum of $500,000 and the Mayor should decline in writing to approve the appropriation so reduced, there would be no appropriation for the Street Department until such time as the Mayor and the City Council could agree upon the amount to be appropriated. If they couldn't agree, the department after it had exhausted its one-third of the appropriation for the former year which it is allowed to expend under the ordinances, would have to stop work because it would have no money to expend.

Now as to the only doubtful thing in the city charter on the subject of appropriations, section 3 says that the City Council shall not increase any item nor the total of a budget, nor add any item thereto without the approval of the Mayor. That is to be read in conjunction with section 4, which provides that every appropriation and vote of the City Council except votes relating to its own internal affairs, shall be presented to the Mayor for his approval or disapproval.

There can be three constructions put upon this phrase: First, that it is meaningless, being a mere repetition of what is contained in section 4. Second, that it means that the Mayor has to approve in advance the action of the City Council before it can increase or add any item to the budget. Third, that what is meant is that if any item is increased by the City Council or any new item inserted, such an item cannot become an appropriation unless it has the written approval of the Mayor, that is, it cannot become an appropriation simply by the Mayor not disapproving it within fifteen days.

Take the ordinary appropriation, and if it is presented to the Mayor and he does not disapprove of it in writing within fifteen days it becomes a binding appropriation and this phrase was intended to make a special exception of increases of items or the addition of an item. On the whole, I am inclined to the last interpretation and am of the opinion that it means that if the City Council has increased any item in the appropriation bill or added any item to the appropriation bill, in order to become binding, it must receive the written approval of the Mayor.

Yours truly,

THOMAS M. BABSON,
Corporation Counsel.

Coun. COLLINS—Mr. President, I move you, sir, that the opinion of the Corporation Counsel be printed and that each member of this Council be furnished with a copy of it.

Coun. Collins's motion was carried.

GENERAL RECONSIDERATION.

On motion of Coun. ATTRIDGE, the Board refused a general reconsideration of all action taken to-day.

ROPING OFF OF STREETS, EVACUATION DAY.

Coun. KENNY offered an order—That the City Messenger rope off such streets as the Police Commissioner may require on Thursday, March 17, 1910, in connection with the parade and celebration of Evacuation Day; the expense attending the same to be charged to the appropriation for City Council, incidental expenses, when made.

Passed.

CONVENIENCE STATION AND EQUIPMENT, McNARY PARK.

Coun. KENNY offered an order—That the Board of Park Commissioners be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to establish a convenience station and also to equip the playground at McNary Park with suitable lockers; the expense attending the same to be charged to the appropriation for Park Department, when made.

Passed.

CLOSING OF STREETS, EVACUATION DAY.

Coun. KENNY offered an order—That the Police Commissioner be authorized to close to travel by vehicles, except fire, police, hospital and mail wagons, such streets as may be required on Thursday, March 17, 1910, in connection with the parade and celebration of Evacuation Day.

Passed.

Adjourned, on motion of Coun. COLLINS, at 6.07 p. m., to meet on Monday, March 7, at 3 p. m.

(Mar. 5.)

HOW UNITED STATES PAY WARRANTS ARE ISSUED.

There are two kinds of pay warrants issued in the Treasury Department (Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants), accountable and settlement warrants. Accountable warrants are drawn on the authority of approved requisitions for advances to fiscal officers and for which such officers must account. Settlement warrants are drawn on the authority of a certificate of settlement of the auditor charged by law with the settlement of the account and for payment of amounts found due from the United States as declared by such settlement.

Accountable warrants, as may be seen, are issued in placing an advance of money in a United States depository, or sub-treasury, to the personal credit of the disbursing agent, who is held accountable for the funds under his official bond. These warrants are issued by the Treasury Department on request of the secretary of the department which the disbursing agent represents; the request is in the form of a requisition which must be duly approved by the secretary of the department, the chief of the division of book-keeping and warrants and the auditor of the respective departments, who, before approving the requisition, must be satisfied that the officer has rendered his accounts satisfactorily and that his bond will cover the funds on hand and the amount to be advanced. The routine work of recording accountable warrants in the Treasury Department is the same as that of a settlement warrant.

The settlement warrant is issued for the payment of claims against the government. The auditor of the respective departments settling the claim issues to the Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants a certificate approved by the auditor certifying the amount due the claimant and the appropriation from which it is to be paid. The appropriation book-keeper examines the certificate and O. K.'s it, if the appropriation to be charged is not exhausted. The warrant is then written and registered and taken to the examiner; from there it goes to the index clerk, who records the name of the payee and the amount of payment. The chief of the Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants O. K.'s it, and it is sent to the assistant secretary of the treasury for approval. Then follows a journey to the bookkeeping division of the comptroller's office, whose books are duplicates of those used in the Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants. The comptroller approves the warrant and it is taken to the treasurer's office for the signature of the treasurer and designation of the bank or sub-treasury to make payment. After the registering of the warrant is made in his office the warrant is mailed to the payee.

The time that it takes for the warrant before it is completed after it leaves the office of the Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants is two days, which is short considering the thousands of warrants issued and the other official business to be taken care of.

Many call this "red tape," but it seems necessary for the protection of the government; there is absolutely no chance that any claim shall be paid twice. As the auditors for several departments at the end of each day send a copy of the claims settled for payment to the treasurer's office, it is impossible that there should be any fraud as the warrant, before the treasurer's office mails it, is first compared with the amount certified for payment by the auditor on the separate certification and marked paid.—The Bookkeeper.

INAUGURAL ADDRESSES.

REPRINTS OF ADDRESSES DELIVERED BY THE MAYORS OF BOSTON AT THEIR INAUGURATION FROM THE INCORPORATION OF THE CITY.

William H. Whittemore, formerly City Registrar, and a man who delighted especially in the preservation of historical data relating to the city, started in 1890 a compilation of the inaugural addresses of the mayors of Boston. Up to that time they were available only in odd and scattered municipal documents, kept with indifferent care, or in some instances in privately printed documents.

In 1894 he produced the first volume which contained the addresses from Phillips to Bigelow. In 1896 he published a second volume, with the addresses from Chapman to Norcross. The two volumes make not only substantial but interesting reading for all citizens. Because of the fact that the volumes in question are out of print, it is proposed to reprint the addresses in probably weekly installments in the City Record.

Mayor Quincy's address, which was delivered to the City Council, January 1, 1827, was as follows:

No. 6.

Gentlemen of the City Council:

It is proper, on occasions of this kind, to survey the general relations of our city, and from the measures of preceding City Councils and their results to gain light and strength for future duties.

The condition of every city must be estimated from general circumstances and particular facts. Among the former are the state of its population, whether increasing or diminishing; the state of its improvements, whether progressive or stationary; above all, the state of public opinion concerning the conduct of its affairs. Among the latter are the condition of its finances, with reference to debt and resources; and the condition of its police, with reference to order, harmony and morals. The advance of our city, in population and improvements, requires no illustration. In respect of both it has been as rapid as there was any just reason to expect; perhaps, to desire. The satisfaction of our fellow citizens with the general conduct of their affairs has been indicated by recent events the language of which cannot be mistaken and which is at once consolatory and encouraging.

The state of the finances of our city is not less a subject of congratulation. Their condition has been, of late, very fully developed by reports of committees of both branches of the City Council. Nothing more will be necessary, therefore, on this occasion than to present some general views on the subject.

The character of every financial condition depends upon comparison of debt with resources. The mere fact of the existence or nonexistence of a city debt is in itself neither a matter of praise or blame. The right to create such a debt is a power granted by the city charter to the City Council. Powers granted to public bodies are like talents bestowed on individuals. Both are respectively responsible for the neglect or exercise of them. To neglect to use the power to create a debt, or any other power, on proper occasions and for the purposes for which it was granted is as truly an abuse as it is to use either on improper occasions and for purposes for which it was not granted.

Has a debt been created by public agents having authority to that effect? Their merit or demerit, in this respect, depends upon the fact of its being created for proper objects or on a just necessity. If the objects be of a nature for which it is proper to create a debt, then merit or demerit depends upon the importance of the objects attained, compared with the amount of the debt created. If, by creating a debt for such objects, resources adequate to its ultimate discharge be also created, there is no case in which the power to create a debt can be more unexceptionably exercised; nor can there be any more indicative of the wisdom and financial skill of public agents, except it be when the resources thus created shall be adequate not only to the ultimate discharge of such debt but also to add a considerable surplus to the public treasury.

The present city debt may be stated to be, in round numbers, $1,000,000 of which $100,000 was incurred under the town government and $900,000 under the city.

Of this last amount there was incurred for objects of general improvement	$234,000 00
For the purchase of land west of Charles street	58,000 00
For the extension of Faneuil Hall Market	608,000 00
Constituting the debt stated above as incurred by the city government of	$900,000 00

With respect to the above portion of the increased debt, which has been applied to purposes of general improvement, it would perhaps be sufficient to remark that the circumstances of the time and the nature of the objects render the expenditures of this class peculiarly expedient that the concurrence of our fellow citizens, in the measures adopted on this subject by the City Council, has been indicated by unequivocal tokens; and those measures have subsequently been sanctioned by distinct marks of general approbation. It cannot, however, but be satisfactory to know the amount of the expenditures for these objects which has been already paid out of the funds accruing within the years in which they were authorized and the comparative proportion which has been cast in the form of debt on future years.

During the four last years, from 1823 to 1826, inclusive, there has been expended:

For schoolhouses and land	$80,000 00
For engines — engine houses, land and all expenses of the Fire Department	34,000 00
For common sewers, beyond what they have as yet produced	15,000 00
For wardrooms and buildings at Deer Island	5,000 00
For widening streets (exclusive of the operations of the committee for the extension of Faneuil Hall Market)	106,698 00
For paving and repair of streets	119,900 00
For buildings, and improvements connected with the House of Industry and Correction	90,451 00
For reservoirs	9,000 00
Making a gross aggregate of	$460,049 00

In the above enumeration no notice has been taken of expenditures on account of general instruction of schools, health, cleanliness of streets, general police or support of the poor, either by the Overseers or the Directors of the House of Industry. The object selected are those of a permanent character and prospective usefulness and which, from their nature, have a direct influence on the convenience and hopes of future times. When, for such objects, $460,000 have been expended in a course of four years, of which $230,000 have been paid out of funds accruing within those four years, it seems altogether unexceptionable that a like amount of $230,000 should be distributed for reimbursement on the years which are to come.

The remaining objects for which this increased debt has been incurred are the lands at the bottom of the Common, west of Charles street, and the extension of Faneuil Hall Market. In the report of the committee on the last mentioned subject, which was printed and distributed through the city by order of the last City Council, it is, I apprehend, satisfactorily shown that the fair estimated value of the property transferred to or vested in the city by that committee is, in point of amount, not far short of the whole debt of the city. If to this be added the fair estimated value of the lands west of Charles street, no man can reasonably question that both descriptions of property are of themselves alone sufficient to discharge the whole debt of the city and also to add no inconsiderable, probably a large, surplus to the city treasury. Both, as available resources, have been attained by the operations of former City Councils. Both have been chief causes of the greatness of the increase, of the city debt.

To this it is no answer to say that the property, both in the market and in the land west of Charles street, has very intimate relations to the ornament, comfort, and health of the city and ought never to be sold. Grant such to be the fact, it only shows that, while the marketable value of this property is demonstrably more than the whole city debt, its value to the city is still greater than its marketable value. Whereby the wisdom and fidelity of former City Councils is still more apparent, being evidenced not only by the excess of the marketable value of this property beyond the city debt, but also by the great excess of its value to the city, considered as a property to be retained, over its value, considered as a property to be sold. It seems scarcely possible than any public debt can be justified on stronger grounds than can the whole, which the city government has incurred. It has been for proper objects. It has been faithfully applied. It has created resources, sufficient if the City Council choose so to use them to discharge, forthwith, not only the whole debt of which they have been the cause but also the whole antecedently existing debt of the city. If the City Council do not choose so to use them it is because in their sound discretion they believe them to be more valuable as a possession than as a resource. No better evidence can be given of financial skill and representative fidelity.

In relation to our police it is not to be expected that a city with a population equal to ours can exist with fewer interruptions of its peace or violations of its municipal rules. Complaints under every branch of police have diminished in a very extraordinary degree during the past year. Those parts of the city most characterized by tendency to vice and disorder have, by the vigilance of the public officers, been kept in a state of comparative order satisfactory to the good citizens in their vicinity.

Looking forward to the duties of the coming year it is a subject of congratulation that the foresight and enterprise of past years have limited to a comparatively narrow sphere the necessity of future expenditures. Those great, obvious, and expensive improvements, paving the Neck, reducing Pemberton's hill, widening Court street, the Roe-buck passage and Merchants row, above all those, relieving the embarrassments resulting from the narrowness of the great central market of the city, are finished. The City Councils of former years have taken the responsibility of exercising the powers entrusted to them with a fearless and independent spirit, exhibiting a confidence in the virtue and intelligence of their fellow citizens, which events have shown not to have been misplaced.

I do not perceive that the City Council of the present year will be called by the public interest to take the lead in any new and expensive project. Particular local improvements will be suggested from time to time by those interested in their success and will receive from the City Council that attention they may respectively merit. Circumstances indicate that our chief duty will be to finish what we have begun; to make productive the property we have acquired; to improve and correct existing establishments rather than to devise new ones; above all to arrange our resources on the principle of a distinct and permanent provision for the gradual extinction of the existing city debt. Circumstances seem favorable to such a system. At present the proceeds of the city lands, when sold, with the addition of $15,000 to be applied annually to the redemption of the capital and another sum of $15,000 to be applied annually to the payment of the interest of the city debt, constitute the general appropriations for those objects. The specific appropriation for the same objects of the whole property and incomes transferred to the city by the committee for the extension of Faneuil Hall Market is, in my judgment, a measure of great propriety and expediency, and I recommend it. Upon general principles it is proper not to consider property obtained by debt as property, that is, as a subject of complete ownership and applicable to general objects of expenditure until the debt for which it was incurred is paid. It is expedient because such a measure would, I know, give great satisfaction to many of our very judicious fellow citizens.

Should a measure such as I suggest be adopted, it would be right, perhaps, to withdraw one of the sums of $15,000, at present appropriated for the debt by way of offset for the old market revenues. The remaining $15,000 with the present Faneuil Hall Market and wharf revenues will constitute an annual amount of $58,000 applicable to the discharge of the principal and interest of the debt; and with the proceeds of the Neck lands and of the lands now to be sold, transferred to the city by the Faneuil Hall Market Committee will make a sufficient provision for the city debt and relieve the annual resources of the city from future burden on that account.

Should these funds be placed under the supervision of commissioners composed of public officers ex officio, appointed by the City Council, it would give a more permanent and efficient character to the system without creating any new office or expense. Where funds are vested in a board exclusively charged with these duties, it is found by experience to introduce order and distinctness into financial relations. Their general state is more easily comprehended by the community and the productive efficiency of the funds is less likely to be disturbed or diverted by general and extraneous financial exigencies.

Among the objects to which I allude, under the heads of finishing what we have begun and of making productive the property we have acquired, are the making sale of the lands above mentioned, invested in the city by the committee for the extension of Faneuil Hall Market and which to whatever objects the proceeds are appropriated ought not long to be delayed; and the putting to use the parts of Faneuil Hall, formerly occupied as a market.

In this connection I am irresistibly impelled to express opinions which I would willingly avoid, inasmuch as I have reason to fear they may be at variance with those of men whose judgments I respect, and cross interests or views with which I have certainly no wish to interfere. But the city charter, by making it the duty of the Mayor from time to time to recommend "all such measures as may tend to improve the finances, the police, health, security, cleanliness, comfort and ornament of the city," intended that in fulfilling this duty he should follow the deliberate convictions of his own judgment. To him who holds this office and who acts in relation to it upon right principles it ought to be of no consequence whatever, so far as respects himself, whether any particular measure he recommends be or be not adopted. But it will always be of infinite moment to his sense of well performed duty that his deliberate views of the interests of the city should be known, and fearlessly of all personal consequences made manifest.

Under these sanctions I recommend that the subject of the uses to which the vacated portions of Faneuil Hall and of the space on its western end shall be applied should be considered in connection with the sale and uses proposed to be made of the land lying in the rear of this (the county) courthouse and between it and Court street.

This last mentioned tract of land is a most valuable property. It cannot, however, be made to produce its market worth without previously providing for the accommodation of the courts which occupy the building at present in front of that land.

This subject has hitherto been considered as a distinct concern, and, as such it has been proposed to erect another courthouse on that part of the land which lies most distant from Court street at an estimated expense of certainly not less than thirty thousand dollars exclusive of the value of the land to be occupied by the building, which at the least fair estimate cannot also be worth less than ten thousand dollars.

The vacated parts of Faneuil Hall have also been considered as a distinct subject, and as such it has been proposed that they should be fitted up for shops and stores also at a very considerable expense.

Should these plans be carried into effect the consequence will be that the city will possess two expensive courthouses in the vicinity of each other and the city authorities will be left as occupants of an inconvenient and insufficient portion of one of them, under circumstances with which it is impossible they can be for many years content. If the present opportunity be lost of making a simple and economical arrangement, both of the public offices and of the courts, such as the nature and relations of this property seem unequivocally to indicate, I cannot question that before a very few years' elapse, the City Council will find themselves compelled to erect at a great expense a City Hall which expense, by taking advantage of the present occasion, may be saved.

Nothing can be more inconvenient for facilitating business than the location of our public offices. The Mayor and Aldermen, City Clerk, Auditor and Officer of Police are in one building. The Assistant City Clerk in another. The Treasurer in a third. The Assessors, Overseers of the Poor and Directors of the House of Industry in a fourth, neither building convenient as respects the other. Now, the interest of the city plainly dictates that the intercourse between these different departments of public service should be made easy by every possible, local, accommodation. By concentrating them under one roof they would always be in a position mutually to derive and communicate information, and occasionally to aid each other in case of pressure of public business in either department, thereby greatly increasing power, knowledge and facility in conducting it.

Besides, not one of our public city offices is possessed of a fireproof place of deposit. All the records of the city are exposed without any except the most common security against the most destructive of all elements.

These circumstances strongly impress my mind with the duty of recommending that all these important subjects should be considered in one general connected view.

With respect to the location of the City Council and city offices, I conceive there can be no place more suitable than Faneuil Hall. Since the removing of the market and the widening of Merchants row and the Roe-buck passage the objection on account of noise in the vicinity of that building is greatly obviated and will be more, if not wholly, as soon as by carrying into effect the proposed Marginal street the heavy city and country travel from Long wharf and State street to the northern parts of the city shall be determined through that avenue. Besides, the meetings of the Board of Aldermen being chiefly—and those of the Common Council with few exceptions wholly—in the evening, they would be but little exposed to interruption from that cause.

I say nothing concerning the natural and proud associations inseparable from that ancient and far-famed temple of American Liberty, because, should other considerations justify, it is impossible there can be on this subject more than one sentiment and feeling among citizens of Boston, and that deeply favorable to the connecting by an intimate and perpetual union all future municipal labors and character with a place consecrated by the patriotic services of our chiefest statesmen and endeared by recollections of talents and virtues which have identified the name of this city with the earliest, the purest and the most imperishable honors of our revolution.

In regard to economy this consideration will favor the course I suggest. A building capable of accommodating all the city offices—with suitable and separate rooms and fireproofs, the Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council, with their respective halls and committee rooms—may, I have reason to believe, be erected on the western end of Faneuil Hall at probably a less expense, but certainly for a sum not materially greater, than the proposed new courthouse; and, at a comparatively small expense, probably not more than the value of the land necessary to be occupied by the proposed new courthouse, a room as extensive in point of size as that at present occupied by the Supreme Judicial Court might be prepared in this building (the County Courthouse) for the courts of the United States and the present room occupied by the Common Council might be reserved for the Common Pleas. At any rate, when it is considered that this is the only mode in which the public offices can be concentrated under one roof, except at the expense of a new City Hall, the evidence in favor of its economy is decisive. By a plan of this kind the higher courts of the state and those of the United States will be located in one building; the city authorities with the public offices in another, and the whole land in the rear of this (the county) courthouse and between it and Court street will be left without incumbrance or diminution at the disposal of the City Council.

I have been thus particular in detailing my views on this subject because I deem the result of the deliberations of the City Council upon it to be very important in its character and consequences. Having conscientiously discharged my own duty, I cheerfully leave the subject to the City Council with a certainty that they will do theirs, and give as much weight to these suggestions as their nature deserves, and no more. Whether they coincide or differ with me in opinion I shall equally respect and support their decision.

It is known to the City Council that great complaints have lately existed concerning the state of the voting lists. In relation to the duty of preparing those lists and of responsibility for their correctness the general opinion was understood to be that the provisions of the city charter had made no change, but that, as under the town government, that duty and responsibility rested on the assessors. The Mayor and Aldermen have, accordingly, heretofore acted under that impression, and considered their duty to be only that of revising and amending errors which might occur in the voting lists furnished by the assessors.

Antecedent to the last election, in consequence of a communication from the assessors, the tenor and precise bearing of the terms of the city charter on this subject were brought under the distinct consideration of the Mayor and Aldermen. By that communication it appeared that, in the opinion of the assessors, "the duty of making out the voting lists" was devolved by the city charter on the Mayor and aldermen, and that the duty of the "assessors, assistant assessors, and other officers of the city" was to aid the Mayor and aldermen in the performance of their duty, as they might direct.

Although this construction did not coincide with former practice or preconceptions, the Board of Aldermen immediately adjourned to the assessors' room, and proceeded, by a committee, to execute the duty according to the literal construction given to the charter by the assessors and, calling in aid some of the assistant assessors and other officers of the city, in addition to the aid given by the assessors themselves, they caused lists, additional to the printed lists, to be made out and transmitted to the wards, a course of proceeding which has, as far as has come to my knowledge, given general satisfaction, and obviated every difficulty which had been the source of complaint at former elections.

The view taken by the assessors of the city charter is, as I understand, as follows: The responsibility that correct lists are made out rests upon the Mayor and aldermen. As incident to this responsibility, it is incumbent on them to direct the time, manner and form of making out the voting lists. By the provisions of the city charter they have a right to require the aid of the assessors, which aid it is their duty to give. By this construction it is not understood that the assessors claim to be exempted from the actual labor of making out the voting lists, nor yet from the duty of comparing them with their books and certifying their correctness, but only that so far as respects their fellow citizens the Mayor and aldermen are responsible that it shall be done, and in proper time, form and manner, and that the assessors are responsible to them and to the City Council; that whatever aid they shall on this subject be required to give shall be faithfully yielded.

Although I know that there is not a universal assent to this construction of the city charter, yet, as above expressed and explained, I deem it my duty not to conceal my own concurrence with it. It seems to me not only just as a matter of construction, but that such ought to be the provisions of the city charter is wise and expedient as a matter of principle. It is vital to the rights of election that the voting lists should be correct. The duty of seeing that so essential an interest is secured should be intrusted only with the highest executive authorities of the city, and those who are responsible directly to their fellow citizens through the process of election.

In conformity to the obligation resulting from this opinion, the Board of Aldermen have constituted the Mayor a committee to superintend the making out the voting lists, antecedent to the ensuing spring elections. Under that authority voting lists are now making out by the assessors in a new and, it is hoped, a more convenient form.

By this construction of the city charter, it is not apprehended that the labors of the Board of Aldermen will be in any material degree increased. The gratuitous labors of that important body of men who have hitherto fulfilled their duties in a manner so exemplary ought by every possible precautionary measure to be diminished in order to remove objections to the acceptance of that laborious and responsible office. But the duty of general superintendence and direction of the exercise of a sound judgment concerning all the great municipal relations of the city, and particularly concerning those which most immediately affect the elective franchise, naturally belongs to that board, and in this case seems to result from the express terms of the city charter.

Considering the importance of the subject, and knowing that misapprehensions existed in relation to it in the community, I have deemed the preceding development due to all concerned—to the assessors as well as to our fellow citizens.

I cannot close this address without expressing my gratitude for the support yielded to me by the recent suffrages of my fellow citizens under circumstances which put to a severe trial their justice and their confidence. The right to canvass the character and conduct of all tenants of public office and candidates for it is essential to the existence of a republic, and inseparable from its nature. So long as such animadversions are conducted in a spirit of candor and decorum, so long as care is taken to assert nothing but what is true and to insinuate nothing which circumstances do not justify, in a word, so long as they proceed in subordination to that sublime rule of Christian Charity of doing to others as in exchange of circumstances we should wish and think right that others should do to us, they are not only to be justified but to be encouraged and applauded.

If in any respect this just measure of animadversion has been exceeded in time past, or shall be in times future, so far as the present incumbent of this office is concerned, it will be, as it has been, left to the free decision of the virtue, intelligence and high sense of justice of the inhabitants of this city without interposition by him directly or indirectly of reply or defence.

He who rightly appreciates the nature of this office will consider it neither as a place for pageantry and display, nor yet as a vantage ground for the vaulting of unsatisfied ambition—still less as a station for seeking private ends for advancing personal or local interests, or for the distributing party favors—but as a condition of laborious service, including the performance of very difficult and often very dubious duties, chiefly to be valued for the opportunity it affords of usefulness, and no longer to be desired than he shall be able to deserve and attain the confidence of his fellow citizens by a diligent and faithful upholding of the true interests of the city and by a fearless maintaining of every essential principle of public virtue and honor in the conduct of its affairs.

FORT WORTH CHARTER VALID.

A firm of bond buyers of Boston, Mass., raised a question recently as to the validity of the city charter of Fort Worth, Texas, because of alleged irregularities in its passage through the Legislature. An opinion filed by Attorney General Lightfoot, February 8, holds, however, that there is no cloud on said charter. The journals of the house show that it was read on three several days as required by the constitution. Mr. Lightfoot finds, furthermore, that when the constitution means a certain vote taken for any purpose shall show a certain fraction of the "members elect" participating therein the constitution specifically so states as in the case of the provision governing the vote to give the emergency clause immediate effect. With regard to suspending the rule requiring bills to be read on three several days, however, there is no reference to "members elect," which leads to the conclusion that four-fifths of a quorum is all that is needed for that purpose.—Municipal Engineering.

OTHER MUNICIPALITIES WANT SOME OF NEW YORK'S WATER AT COST.

The towns of Westchester County, New York, are moving to secure an amendment to the Catskill water supply law reducing the charge to municipalities along the aqueduct which may take advantage of the privilege to draw from that main. The rate, according to the law, shall be the same as that paid by New York City consumers and 13 cents a thousand gallons is now being paid. The down-river towns say this "includes all cost due to fixed charges, sinking fund maintenance and operation of the distributing system within New York City, as well as the losses due to leakage in said distributing system, in the use of which the municipalities in Westchester could not join."

These towns declare that 13 cents is an excessive rate and the fact is pointed out that the metropolis will profit by the sales of water to the municipalities, as the increased consumption will not be attended with any additional cost to the city. The amendment of the law so that municipalities will pay for water taken from the aqueduct at the same rate the water costs the city of New York down to the point of connection is urged.

The request for a lower rate is generally regarded as reasonable and just.—Municipal Engineering.

FINANCE COMMISSION REPORTS.

The following was received:

Boston Finance Commission,
410-413 Tremont Building,
Boston, March 3, 1910.

The Honorable the City Council,
Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen,—The commission is in receipt of the order of the City Council dated February 28th ult., viz.:

"Ordered, That the Finance Commission be requested to submit all reports pertaining to the City of Boston to the City Council before giving to the public."

In reply the commission begs to state that all its reports addressed to the Mayor and City Council are handed to the Mayor and mailed to the Council before being sent to the newspapers.

The commission will consider any suggestion from the City Council intended to improve this method. The commission respectfully suggests that it might be helpful if the Council would designate some accessible person to whom communications to it might be delivered.

Very truly yours,

JOHN F. MOORS, Acting Chairman.

Coun. BRAND—Mr. President, as there seems to be some doubt in the minds of the Finance Commission as to who the accessible persons are in authority I wish to submit this order in connection with the report:

Ordered, That the Boston Finance Commission be hereby requested, as a matter of ordinary courtesy, to refrain from making public any report or recommendation which it proposes to submit to the City Council until after said report or recommendation shall have been presented to the City Council by the City Clerk, on an occasion when the said Council is duly assembled in a meeting for the transaction of city business.

Coun. HALE—Mr. President, I would offer an amendment to that order—"and that said commission be further requested to furnish a copy of any report concerning a department to the head of the department." That occurs to me because Mr. Gilman never received any copy of the report upon his department and never saw it until he read it in the newspapers and the City Record. I think it is a matter of courtesy to the head of the department criticised that a report should be sent to him direct.

Coun. Hale's amendment was adopted, and the order as amended was passed.

LICENSES.

Minors' licenses were granted to thirty-two newsboys, five bootblacks and three vendors.

Coun. KENNY offered an order—That the Bath Trustees inform the City Council of its rules relative to the opening and closing of the all-year-around bath house, stating the days and

Resolved, That in the opinion of the City Council the efficiency of the Sewer Division would be increased by the re-establishment of its yard in the Charlestown district; and that his Honor the Mayor be hereby requested to take such action as he may deem expedient to bring about such re-establishment at an early date.

SOUTHAMPTON STREET IMPROVEMENT.

Coun. BRAND offered an order—That the Superintendent of Streets be requested to immediately put Southampton street in proper condition and to construct sidewalks thereon, and to report to this Board a schedule of the cost of said sidewalks.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I move to amend that by making it the entire length of Southampton street, to the junction with Massachusetts avenue, I am informed, as is the gentleman on the other side of the chamber, that Mr. Emerson now has about 60,000 paving blocks located on a lot on Massachusetts avenue just waiting for the weather to break to do that work; and I will suggest that amendment, if agreeable to the councillor on the other side of the chamber.

Coun. BRAND—I am quite agreeable, Mr. Chairman, if it will accomplish its purpose. The amendment was adopted, and the order as amended was passed.

BANDS AND CARRIAGES, EVACUATION DAY.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I intended to present an order that in the matter of engaging bands and carriages for the Evacuation Day celebration in South Boston the committee give preference to those bands that are Union bands, and to those carriages that are run by members of the Carriage Drivers' Union. It has always been customary, Mr. President, to have the matter of spending money in connection with any holiday placed in charge of the Clerk of Committees department or of the Mayor's secretary. I am informed this year, however, that it has been placed in charge of a member of the City Council. As to whether a member of the City Council has a right to contract for the expenditure of money on the part of the city or not, I would say that I am very much in doubt, but if he has the right I feel, in justice to those organizations representing organized labor, and which insist on the payment of a living rate of wages, that they should be given preference over those who conduct the musical business or the carriage business as an adjunct to some other general business. I desire to call this matter to the attention of the chairman of the Committee on Evacuation Day celebration.

Coun. McDONALD—Mr. President, the chairman of the Committee on Evacuation Day not being present, I would simply say that the committee from the Central Labor Union called this to his attention to-day and he said he was very much interested that such should be the case, that union bands and carriages should be employed, but he said that Lieutenant McInnes, who is chief marshal of the Evacuation Day parade had full charge of that matter. The committee, as I understand it, has had a talk with Lieutenant McInnes, and he didn't seem to be interested as to whether union men would be given the preference or not. The committee has gone down to see Mr. McInnes and get a final answer from him. I intended to bring the matter up to-day, but I had a talk with the chairman of the Evacuation Day Committee, Coun. Kenny, and he said he was perfectly willing and hoped that what Coun. Curley suggests would be the case, but that in South Boston on Evacuation Day the chief marshal of the parade would spend that money and make those arrangements. I do not think myself that he is the proper person to spend the city's money or that he should be the man to make those arrangements, as he is not a member of or a representative of the government. While the thing may be settled between now and next Monday, if it is not settled, I propose to introduce an order compelling the chief marshal or the councillor from the district to give preference to union men.

President BALLANTYNE—The Chair would say at this time that the matter is not properly before the Council at all. The Evacuation Day parade matter not having been brought before the Council, and not being properly before us now, the Chair awaits any motion.

Coun. CURLEY offered an order—That the Committee on Evacuation Day celebration be directed to give preference in the matter of music, carriages, etc., to organized labor unions.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, in order that the matter might be properly before the Council I have drawn and present this order.

President BALLANTYNE—The Chair will rule that the order cannot be maintained, because there is no committee of the Council having charge of the matter at present.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I desire to speak to a question of privilege. My question of privilege is the right of a member of this body to see that the wishes of the citizens and voters of the City of Boston are carried out. It was called to my attention that it was proposed to engage nonunion bands and to have carriages participate in the parade the drivers of which were not members of organized labor. I want to say at the outset that I have never been a member of a labor organization in my life, but I recognize the great good that has been accomplished through organized labor. I recognize the fact that this order may be properly ruled out by the Chair—under what section of our rules, however, I don't know, although I do not propose to question it, because I recognize the power of the gavel. I simply felt, however, that the order as drawn might bring the matter home directly to the committee. In view of the fact that the Acting Mayor is on the job, if in order, I would move to amend the order as presented so that it will read as follows:

"Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be requested to direct the chairman of the committee having in charge the Evacuation Day celebration to give preference in the matter of music, carriages, etc., to organized labor unions."

The order as amended by Coun. Curley was read a second time and passed.

Adjourned at 4.42 p. m., on motion of Coun. HALE, to meet on Monday, March 14, at 3 p. m.

PLAYGROUNDS FOR EMPLOYEES.

Playgrounds for employees in large mercantile establishments have come to be recognized by a number of such concerns in Chicago to have a far-reaching effect. Several of these establishments have erected in the last two or three years very extensive warehouses, most of which are in congested manufacturing districts along the Chicago river and apart from the central business part of the city. Practically no opportunity for desirable amusement at the noon hour is afforded the employees in the surrounding territory. Appreciating the various evil effects of this situation, Messrs. Sprague, Warner & Co., a wholesale grocery house having several thousand employees, provided last year a tract of about two acres as a playground for the latter. Recently an area of three acres has also been purchased for the same purpose by Messrs. Montgomery, Ward & Co., who have an average of 5,000 employees. These areas have tennis and baseball grounds, gymnasium apparatus and arrangements for various other sports. In short, they give the employees a chance to get a breath of air during the noon hour. Although they are provided at large expense, on account of the high price of property in the vicinity, the investment is considered by those who have authorized the expenditure to give good returns in the increased efficiency of the employees.—Engineering Record.

NEW YORK BARGE CANAL.

The barge canal terminal commission submitted to the New York State Legislature last week a preliminary report on the results of its inquiry concerning the terminal facilities which should be provided to make this waterway of the greatest usefulness. It contains a positive assertion that the steady decrease of freight transported in bulk and package form on the canals is largely due to the inability of shippers to avail themselves of necessary terminal facilities along the water front of Manhattan. While the state possesses sites for terminals at Buffalo, Whitehall and Oswego, it has donated to the city of New York and to private parties all its underwater property in the borough of Manhattan, and in order to provide the needed terminal facilities there the commission recommends the Legislature to take action enabling the city to cede back to the state several sites for terminals on the East and North rivers. The intention is to utilize these sites for receiving and delivering the freight of the city. The very important import and export freight requires different accommodations, and these may be found in a number of places possessing so many individual advantages and disadvantages that the commission has not yet reached a decision regarding their relative order of merit. Neither has it decided what types of terminal facilities should be selected.—Engineering Record.

Springfield, Ill., and Wheeling, W. Va., have joined the ranks of American cities that will have a sane Fourth of July hereafter. Nine governors of states have given assurances to the national organization that is agitating for a sane Fourth that they will do all in their power to help in the crusade. These states are: Massachusetts, Vermont, Illinois, Idaho, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Washington.—Pacific Outlook.

PROCEEDINGS OF SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

Mar. 7, 1910.

A regular meeting of the School Committee of the City of Boston was held in the School Committee Chamber, Mason-street Building, at 6:20 o'clock P.M., the Chairman presiding.

Present: Messrs. Brock, Ellis, Lee, Magenis and Scannell.

AMENDMENT AND APPROVAL OF RECORDS.

On motion, it was ORDERED. That the records of the meeting of Feb. 21, 1910, be amended on page 25 by inserting in the annual budget under the heading "Day Industrial Schools," the following item:—

5 Instructors$420

The records of said meeting were thereupon approved as printed as amended.

APPOINTMENTS OF TEACHERS.

The Chairman stated the question was on approving the appointments of teachers on probation, as reported by the Superintendent and laid over at the last meeting.

The appointments were approved.

COMPENSATION OF JANITORS.

The Board proceeded to grant a hearing to a committee representing the Janitors' Association on the application of said association received at the meeting of Jan. 17, 1910 (see p. 203), for a ten per cent increase in the schedule of compensation for janitor service, and also with reference to the compensation for extra inside window cleaning, use of halls after hours, and other extra work not included in the schedule.

Walter H. Bickford, Chairman of the Arbitration Committee of the Janitors' Association, appeared and conducted the hearing for the petitioners, and it was agreed that the question of compensation for extra window cleaning be deferred.

Patrick H. Brennan, janitor of the Old Mather School-house, was heard on the question of the supplies furnished to janitors, objecting to the kind and quality of various articles of that nature.

William M. Kendrick, janitor of the Dillaway School-house, also referred to the same subject, and went into the question of the regular hours of service required of janitors by the rules, and requested an adjustment of pay for extra work performed by them, and of the methods of paying the amounts due for such service.

Walter H. Bickford addressed the Committee in support of the proposition that janitors on account of the increased cost of living since the establishment of the present schedule of compensation are equitably entitled to an increase of at least ten per cent on the present schedule and cited instances wherein the rate of payment for various items in connection with their work is inadequate.

The hearing was then declared closed, the Committee taking the various matters presented to it under further consideration.

Subsequently, a communication was received from the Joint Council of City Employees Unions in Boston, under date of March 5, 1910, informing the Board that at a regular meeting of said council it was unanimously voted to endorse the petition of the school janitors for a ten per cent increase over the wages they are now receiving.

Placed on file, and the Secretary directed to acknowledge the receipt of said communication, and to inform said Council that the Board thanks it for this expression of its interest in the matter and will give the subject careful consideration.

PENSIONS FOR TRUANT OFFICERS.

The Board took from the table the petition from the truant officers, received at the meeting of Jan. 17, 1910 (see p. 203), that application be made to the Legislature for the passage of a bill providing for the retirement and pensioning of truant officers, and John T. Hathaway, Chairman of the Committee on Pensions for said officers, appeared, and was heard on the subject, and submitted a statement relating to the duties performed by the truant officers and the responsibilities imposed upon them. Mr. Hathaway stated that the truant officers desire a pension of one-half their salary, and do not wish to be included in any general pension bill applicable to teachers giving a pension of a less amount, and being informed that the Committee could not undertake to recommend that the truant officers be paid a larger rate of pension than may be granted to the teaching force generally, stated that the officers preferred to withdraw their application.

The hearing was then closed, the Board taking the matter under advisement, and the petition was again laid on the table.

RECESS.

The Board took a recess at 7:17 o'clock P. M.

The members of the Board reassembled in the School Committee Chamber at 8:30 o'clock P. M., and were called to order by the Chairman.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEE ON VOCATIONAL ADVICE.

The Board took from the table the report received from the Committee on Vocational Advice at the meeting of Feb. 7 (see p. 5), and a further report and recommendations received from the same committee at the meeting of Feb. 21 (see p. 19), and in accordance with its action at the latter meeting proceeded to grant said committee a hearing thereon.

At the conclusion of the hearing, the reports were again laid on the table to be given further consideration hereafter.

ADDITIONAL SCHOOL ACCOMMODATIONS.

Dr. Melville F. Rogers appeared on behalf of the Savin Hill Improvement Association, and asked that the Board rearrange the items in the order designating the districts in which additional school accommodations are to be provided during the current year (see p. 30), so that Item 8, specifying an elementary school building for the lower grades in the Edward Everett District, and Item 11, specifying an elementary school building for the lower grades in the Robert G. Shaw District, may be advanced to positions nearer the head of the list.

The Board took the matter under advisement.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

The Board went into executive session. The doors were opened.

STATISTICS RELATIVE TO SCHOOL POPULATION.

A communication was received from the Board of Schoolhouse Commissioners, under date of Mar. 3, 1910, with reference to the discrepancy between the figures submitted to the School Board by the Superintendent on the school population and the figures that are taken off by the Schoolhouse Commission, and the figures that are given to the Schoolhouse Commission by the Superintendent.

Referred to the Superintendent, with the request that he make an appropriate statement to His Honor the Mayor with reference to the figures submitted by him as to school population.

APPROPRIATION FOR SCHOOLHOUSE DEPARTMENT.

A communication was received from the Board of Schoolhouse Commissioners, under date of Feb. 25, 1910, calling attention to the inadequate amount which is appropriated for the work of that department.

Placed on file, and the Secretary directed to request the Schoolhouse Commission to furnish a detailed statement relating to the proposed expenditures of that department for cost of administration, for repairs to school buildings, and for various items referred to in its communication, during the current financial year.

CONFERENCES RELATIVE TO ADDITIONAL SCHOOL ACCOMMODATIONS.

A communication was received from the Board of Schoolhouse Commissioners, under date of Feb. 25, 1910, requesting that before the School Committee makes a statement relative to existing or needed additional school accommodations, the Schoolhouse Commission be given an opportunity to advise with the Committee.

Placed on file, and the Secretary directed to reply thereto in explanation of the attitude of the Board with regard to the replacing of certain existing school buildings by new structures.

ADDITIONAL SCHOOL ACCOMMODATIONS.

A communication was received from the Board of Schoolhouse Commissioners, under date of Feb. 25, 1910, in response to the order passed at the meeting of Feb. 21 (see p. 30), designating the districts in which additional school accommodations are necessary, stating that the Commission desires to call attention to certain facts relative to these items before certifying in writing the amount which in its opinion will be required for additional accommodation in the districts specified.

Placed on file.

The Board thereupon rescinded the order passed at the meeting of Feb. 21 (see p. 30), designating the districts in which additional school accommodations are to be provided during the current year under Chapter 450 of the Acts of 1907, and instead thereof unanimously passed the following:

ORDERED. That in accordance with Chapter 450 of the Acts of 1907, the following-named school districts be, and hereby are, designated as the school districts in which additional school accommodations are necessary, the said school districts being named in the order in which, in the opinion of the School Committee, provision should be made for additional school accommodations from the funds that may become available during the current year under the provisions of Section 2 of said chapter, and the number of pupils set opposite each of the school districts being the approximate number of additional pupils for which provision should be made in each of said school districts:—

Poor, Secretary of the Boston Teachers' Council on Pensions, under date of Mar. 7, 1910, submitting the following draft of a proposed act amending Section 589 of the Acts of 1908, relative to the retirement on pension of teachers in the public school service of Boston:—

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
In the Year One Thousand Nine Hundred and Ten.

An Act Relative to the Retirement on Pension of Teachers in the Public Day Schools of the City of Boston.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:—

Section one of chapter five hundred and eighty-nine of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight is hereby amended by striking out the words "at a rate not exceeding one hundred and eighty dollars a year," so as to read as follows:—

Section 1. The school committee of the city of Boston shall forthwith establish a permanent pension fund for the payment of pensions as hereinafter set forth to the members of the teaching or supervising staff of the public day schools of the said city.

Section 2. Section four of said chapter is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the words: "The School Committee shall also annually appropriate for the purposes contemplated by this act, an amount equal to all money deducted or withheld on account of absence from the salary of any member or members of said teaching or supervising staff, except that during the years nineteen hundred and ten, nineteen hundred and eleven, and nineteen hundred and twelve the amount so appropriated shall be respectively equal to one-fourth, two-fourths, and three-fourths of all such deductions"—so as to read as follows:

Section 4. In addition to the amount which the School Committee is now authorized by law to appropriate for the support of the public schools of this city, and for other purposes, it shall annually appropriate for the purposes contemplated by this act, and in the same manner in which it makes appropriations for other school purposes, the sum of five cents upon each one thousand dollars of the valuation on which the appropriations of the city council of the city are based, and shall from time to time pay to the treasurer of the permanent pension fund such portions of the proceeds of said five cents upon each one thousand dollars of the valuation aforesaid as, in the opinion of the School Committee, will not be needed for the purpose of paying pensions to teachers during that year. The School Committee shall also annually appropriate for the purposes contemplated by this act, an amount equal to all money deducted or withheld on account of absence from the salary of any member or members of said teaching or supervising staff, except that during the years nineteen hundred and ten, nineteen hundred and eleven, and nineteen hundred and twelve the amount so appropriated shall be respectively equal to one-fourth, two-fourths and three-fourths of all such deductions.

Section 3. Said chapter is further amended by striking out sections six and seven, and inserting in place thereof the following sections: Section 6. The total amount of pensions payable hereunder in any one year shall not exceed the proceeds of the said five cents upon each thousand dollars of the valuation aforesaid, and the aforesaid deductions from the salaries of said teaching and supervising staff, together with the interest accruing during that year from the investment of the permanent fund. Section 7. The school committee of said city, by a majority vote of all its members, may retire with a pension any member of the teaching or supervising staff of the public day schools of the city of Boston who has attained the age of sixty-five years, and such other members of the teaching or supervising staff of said schools as, in the opinion of said school committee, are mentally or physically incapacitated for further efficient service. If a person so retired has been employed in teaching or supervising in public day schools for a period aggregating thirty years or more, ten years of which shall have been in the public day schools of the city of Boston, such a person shall be paid a pension at the annual rate of one-third of the annual salary paid to said person at the time of retirement. And in no case shall the pension of any person so retired after thirty years of service, be less than three hundred and twelve dollars. If a person so retired has been employed in teaching or supervising in public day schools for a period aggregating less than thirty years, said person shall be paid a pension which bears the same ratio to the pension provided for on retirement after thirty years of service as the total number of years of service of said person bears to thirty years. The pension of any teacher retired because of mental or physical incapacity shall terminate if, and when, in the judgment of the school committee such person's mental or physical incapacity shall have ceased.

In determining the aggregate length of service of any person retired under the provisions of this act, any period of leave of absence under salary shall be considered as equivalent to an equal amount of teaching service. The treasurer of the city of Boston shall pay pensions under this act in accordance with monthly pay rolls prepared and certified to by the school committee. The school committee of the city of Boston shall establish a schedule of pensions in accordance with the provisions of this act. The pensions of persons already retired under the provisions of chapter 589 of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight shall be re-established in accordance with the provisions of this act, provided, that the pension already established for any such person shall not be decreased. The annual pension of persons who come under the provisions of chapter 537 of the acts of nineteen hundred and nine shall be one hundred and eighty dollars. Section 8. The term "teaching and supervising staff of the public day schools of the city of Boston," in this act shall include the superintendent, assistant superintendents, supervisors, assistant supervisors, directors, assistant directors, principals and all regular and special teachers permanently employed in giving or supervising instruction in the public day schools of the city of Boston, and for the purposes enumerated in this act, the principals and the assistants of the Boston Parental School and the director of evening schools. Section 9. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed. Section 10. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Laid on the table, and the Secretary directed to inform the Teachers' Council on Pensions that this Board is unable to make an appropriation for the payment of pensions from funds for the support of the public school system, and desires to inform the Teachers' Council on Pensions seasonably to that effect, so that if this determination affects any of the petitions reached by said council it may have an opportunity to modify them at once.

Placed on file, and the Secretary directed to reply thereto to the effect that the Board cannot entertain individual suggestions and recommendations with regard to a pension plan in view of the establishment of a Teachers' Council for that purpose.

RESOLUTIONS ON DEATH OF ARTHUR I. FISKE.

On motion, it was unanimously
RESOLVED, That this Board has learned with deep and sincere regret of the death on February 19, 1910, of Arthur I. Fiske, late Head-Master of the Public Latin School.

Mr. Fiske was born on August 19, 1843, in Holliston, Mass. He first entered the service of the city as a master in the Latin School on September 7, 1863, a position he filled with consummate skill, and on June 1, 1892, was elevated to the headmastership of that school, the most ancient public school in America, the position to which he was thus assigned being one of the most prominent in the school system.

During his thirty-six years of service, the sincere devotion to his duties which he has always displayed, his zeal and efficiency, and his genial, unassuming personality have merited and won the high regard of his associates and pupils. The fruits of his work and the inspiration of his life will leave a lasting impression, and his influence will long be felt in the community.

MUNICIPAL BATHS.

Milwaukee has four municipal bathing places and is planning a fifth. Number four, which has just been completed, cost $15,000, a handsome two-story structure of concrete and pressed brick, which is a model of completeness and careful construction. There is a plunge, 30 feet by 72 feet in size, in which the water is maintained at 70 to 75 degrees. There are shower baths along one side and end of the plunge, and there are dressing room facilities for 100. Wednesdays and Fridays the natatorium is reserved for girls and women, Tuesday and Sunday it is used by men only, and the rest of the time, excepting Monday, by men and boys. Monday it is closed to the public and is given a thorough cleaning. Milwaukee has a large foreign population, including many nationalities where personal cleanliness is not a regular habit. It is believed that when this bathing custom is introduced to these people the satisfaction of being clean will encourage them to make it a regular custom.—Pacific Outlook.

VEGETABLE GARDENS AND PLANT LIFE IN CITIES.

In Berlin several hundred thousand children are enabled to live in the open air in the summer, because the city uses every unused rod of land, divides it into plots of about a third of an acre each, which it rents for about 20 cents a month. Temporary houses are constructed by the tenants. The children are taught to make gardens of vegetables or flowers. The work is healthful and also ennobling, teaching independence, self-respect, regard for the property of others and mutual helpfulness. A committee has charge of the gardens collectively, and where would-be garden colonists are too poor to build and equip their arbors assistance is given. Not only the poor take advantage of these arbors; they are rented also by tradesmen, laboring men and even civil officials of low degree.

Other German municipalities have adopted the same plan, writes Bolton Hall in the World's Work for December under the title "Homes in Waste Places." In this country a few similar experiments have been successfully tried, as Orchard Beach, Pelham Bay Park, New York, where tenting sites are furnished by the city on application; but in New York most of the vacant land is speculatively held and cannot be rented.—The American City.

A CITY WITH A GENERAL MANAGER.

The council of Staunton, Va., a city of about 12,000, thoroughly dissatisfied with the existing government, where everybody's business was nobody's business, hit upon the expedient of appointing a salaried officer whose entire time should be devoted to the city's affairs, and in a broad and simple ordinance created the office of general manager.

Staunton has for two years been run as a strictly business corporation would be run. The mayor corresponds to the president; the general manager is the executive and business manager; the council, corresponding to the board of directors, "adopts the ordinances, fixes the rate of taxation and formulates the policy."

Mr. John Crosby, president of the common council, who writes the article, says:

"It has not only been a complete success in every particular, but has produced better results in a shorter time than was anticipated by its most enthusiastic supporters."

Streets have been markedly improved, expenses greatly reduced, purchases for the different departments standardized; citizens having business with the city always know to whom to go; and responsibility is fixed. Due credit is given to the general manager, Mr. Charles E. Ashburner, who is, as should be the case in small cities, a practical engineer.—The American City.

PRESERVING THE TREES.

That the cities and towns of Pennsylvania are awakening to the importance of shade tree commissions and the proper care of shade trees on the highways of the borough is apparent to any one who keeps in touch with municipal developments in the various cities of the commonwealth. One of the first in western Pennsylvania to take up the work of municipal improvement in a systematic manner was the borough of East Washington, a residence suburb adjoining Washington, Penn. Burgess W. P. Warne has been instrumental in having the ordinance passed through the East Washington council which provides for a commission of three men to be known as the shade tree commission, to have full control and care of the shade trees on the thoroughfares of the borough.

This commission has exclusive custody and control, power to plant, set out, remove, protect and care for all trees on the highways. D. W. Myers, J. W. Emery and W. R. McIlvaine, all public-spirited citizens, who will serve without compensation, have been named on the commission and assumed their duties on the first day of February.

The actions taken by the burgess and town council are being met by the approval of the citizens, and it is evident that all possible means will be given to make East Washington one of the prettiest boroughs of homes in that part of the country.—Municipal Engineering.

Camden, N. J., will hereafter collect garbage at night only.—Pacific Outlook.

PARK DEPARTMENT.

On March 12 the Mayor granted to the Board of Park Commissioners, on their representations contained in the following letter, authority to engage Mr. Arthur Shurtleff as an expert, the sum of $1,000 per annum to be paid for his services:

March 9, 1910.

To the Mayor of Boston:

DEAR SIR,—For many years after the establishment of the Boston parks Mr. Olmsted, who designed them, or his firm advised the commission and the superintendent professionally as to matters affecting the design of the parks. Later, Prof. Charles Sargent performed a somewhat similar service. At this moment the commission has to rely entirely for such advice on their superintendent. We think that when professional experts are obtainable we should not take the full responsibility in matters of landscape design ourselves, nor, competent as our superintendent is, do we feel that we should shift this responsibility wholly upon him. Besides, we desire additional counsel on many small matters that in total have a lasting effect on the parks,—such advice as our predecessors have had from Messrs. Olmsted and Sargent. We could obtain this as occasion requires and pay for it by the time required, but we also find it possible to arrange that for $1,000 per year we can have as much advice of this sort as we shall probably need for ordinary routine work and unless some large or special work is undertaken. We ask your authority to employ in this latter way Mr. Arthur Shurtleff, a landscape architect of this city and a former assistant of Messrs. Olmsted and Eliot, the original designers of the park.

Yours very truly,

ROBERT S. PEABODY, Chairman.

Increase in wages granted to Thomas Dillon, chauffeur, from $2.25 per day to $3 per day.

VALUE OF PARKS.

William E. Harmon of New York contributes to a recent issue of the "Survey" an article demonstrating, on the basis of figures obtained from a number of real estate men, that in a new residence section not generally built up it pays for the owners of the four blocks surrounding a fifth block to purchase the latter on an assessment plan and turn it into a park. Of course this may not be practicable when the interior block contains many improvements. These real estate authorities figure that the increase in the value of the property fronting on the park will amply pay for its original cost, without reckoning the advantage to property near at hand which does not front on the park. —Pacific Outlook.

New York City had two heavy snow storms this winter within a space of three weeks, and the cost of removing the snow for the two storms was $1,100,000. —Pacific Outlook.

HUDSON BAY RAILWAY.

The Hudson Bay railway is one of those projects which inevitably arouse marked differences of opinion. The Canadian Northwest is rapidly developing into one of the greatest wheat producing districts of the world. Few Americans probably appreciate the large number of emigrants from this country into the fertile regions of Saskatchewan and Alberta. The projected route to Hudson Bay is intended for the transportation of the products of this district to a harbor whence they may be shipped to Europe. Just how the people of Winnipeg will regard a diversion of the grain business of the Northwest provinces from their city to the northern route by way of Hudson Bay is not apparent; moreover, the commercial possibilities of the route remain to be determined. While Mr. M. J. Butler was deputy minister of railways of the Dominion he reported that if the road were constructed grain might be placed at Hudson Bay on board ships as cheaply as at Port William, and hence freight rates to Europe would probably be something like 5 cents per bushel cheaper than by way of Montreal, provided the risks of navigation through Hudson Strait and Hudson Bay did not raise them so as to counterbalance all the theoretical saving due to the short railroad haul. Moreover, the estimates of low cost of rail transportation to Hudson Bay are based on the use of special rolling stock, very heavy shipments and the management of the line by some of the great Canadian railway companies in such a way as to give the cheapest possible service, assumptions that may not be justified by actual conditions if the line is built. —Engineering Record.

PROPOSALS FOR MILK.

The trustees will receive sealed proposals for a supply of milk for the Hospital Department between May 1, 1910, and November 1, 1910. Proposals for the total supply or for part of the supply, but not less than 400 quarts a day, will be considered. The milk supply is to include delivery at the hospital proper, 818 Harrison avenue, the South Department, 745 Massachusetts avenue, the Haymarket Square Relief Station, the East Boston Relief Station, 14 Porter street, East Boston, and the Convalescent Home, 2150 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester. Each proposal must be accompanied by a properly certified check for one hundred dollars ($100), and a bond will be required of an approved surety company not exceeding two thousand dollars ($2,000), as fixed by the trustees, for the faithful performance of the contract. The quantity of milk desired for all departments will vary from 1,148 to 1,488 quarts per day, more or less, according to the requirements of the season and the number of patients. Each receptacle must be clean and particularly free from dents, and have the name of the contractor, the dairy from which the milk comes and "The Boston City Hospital" stamped or otherwise indelibly marked thereon, and be sealed when it leaves the dairy. The milk is to be transported in coolers with a capacity of from twenty to forty quarts. These coolers are to be used exclusively for the Boston City Hospital. The contractor will be required to furnish to the trustees a list of the dairies from which the milk supply for the hospital will be taken. The milk from each dairy must be properly identified. In each case the product and the premises will be subject to the approval of an inspector appointed by the trustees. The employees must also be subject to an examination by this inspector. The contract calls for pure dairy milk, neither skimmed, topped nor watered, and which, when subjected to analysis, shall be shown to have none of its natural constituents removed and nothing added thereto, and be of the quality required by the laws of the Commonwealth. The bacterial count must not exceed 100,000 bacteria to the cubic centimeter. The animals in each dairy must be of record as having passed successfully the test with tuberculin at dates satisfactory to the trustees. If the dairies are situated outside of the Commonwealth, the right is reserved to have them inspected by an officer of the State Board of Health, as well as by the special inspector of the trustees. Milk must be delivered at the hospital before 12 o'clock noon on each day, and must not be more than twenty-four hours old. The bid of a proposer who does not receive an invoice of milk on Sunday will not be considered. Price to be per quart. The contractor is to be responsible for the cleanliness of the coolers. Proposals should be addressed "The Boston City Hospital, Proposals for Milk Supply," and left at the hospital not later than March 29, 1910, at 12 o'clock noon, at which time and place they will be publicly opened. A duplicate copy of the proposal must be filed with the City Auditor before 12 o'clock noon on the date given above for receiving proposals. The right is reserved to reject any and all proposals. THE JAMAICA BAY IMPROVEMENT.

The last fortnight has witnessed much progress in the project for the development of Jamaica Bay as an important part of the port of New York. The proposition has been talked about for many years but nothing came of the discussion until about four years ago, when a commission was appointed to investigate it. The time was fully ripe for such a study. The city has developed in spite of its location rather than because of it. Manhattan Island is practically isolated from the main land except on the north, and its long, narrow shape makes the local transportation problem particularly difficult. Practically everything in the way of freight, coal, provisions and building supplies must be delivered by lighters to its water front. The borough of the Bronx is a little better off, since two railroads serve it and it has a long water front capable of development in some places, although the strong currents along other parts of it are unfavorable to transportation by lighters. In the case of the Long Island boroughs, however, the conditions have been decidedly unfavorable, for here there is no direct railroad connection with the main land. All supplies for these two boroughs must be delivered by lighters or car floats along the water front of the East river or the upper bay. Owing to the peculiar topographical conditions and street plans the trucking from this water front to the centers of business and manufacturing is extremely costly at the present time. Looking at the city as a whole, the water front is pretty thoroughly taken up, and in parts of Manhattan it is difficult at present to find wharves where building materials and other supplies for the immediate needs of the people of the island can be delivered at all. The great shipping problem, therefore, is to find a section of the city at present undeveloped where it will be possible to construct wharves and warehouses for both transfer purposes and storage, where manufacturing establishments needing water front facilities may be accommodated and where railroad connections can be made.

There seems to be no part of the city where these requirements can be met so well as at Jamaica Bay. The country about it is at present undeveloped and the city can control its development according to logical methods if it takes the initiative now. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is engaged in constructing a very important through freight route from Greenville on the New Jersey shore by car lighters to Brooklyn, and thence through that borough and Queens to a bridge it is to build over the East river to the borough of the Bronx. Connections from this line to Jamaica Bay will afford railroad shipping facilities of an unusually complete nature, while car floats can be used during a large part of the season to deliver freight directly to the bay. The location of the latter is such that communication by local electric railways with various parts of the city can be readily arranged, in all probability. There is no other part of the city possessing a great land dock basin having such advantages, and as more port facilities are urgently required it has been practically certain for several years that Jamaica Bay would be the scene before long of very important engineering work.

Just what improvements will be carried out has remained uncertain, and even to-day there is a material difference of opinion regarding some features of the plan. It is certain, however, that the city will be well warranted in spending money to the extent of a good many millions of dollars in the improvement of the bay so that the territory about it may develop as rapidly as its numerous advantages, now nullified by limited transportation facilities, warrant. The Jamaica Bay Improvement Commission, the engineers of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the United States engineer officers and practically all others who have investigated the matter agree that full justification exists for spending enough money to make the bay useful as soon as possible as a receiving place for building material, coal and other supplies necessary for the development of this territory. There is every reason for believing that the population stimulated in this way will increase at a substantial rate and that manufacturing will develop along the shores of the bay as soon as the advantages of the locality for certain lines become recognized.

The city has accordingly practically decided to spend $1,000,000 in the preliminary work for this development, and Congress is now considering, in the river and harbor bill, a substantial appropriation for the purpose. The State of New York also stands ready to co-operate by granting to the city its valuable underwater rights in the bay. The improvement is practically instructive as an example of the intelligent co-operation of local, state and national authorities. It is proposed that the general government will construct the entrance channel to the bay and the main interior channel, leaving to the local authorities the work of providing secondary channels and basins, piers, bulkheads and all other necessary works for local use. The national authorities have taken the position of requiring the city to give assurance of executing its part of the work before the federal dredging is begun. This is as it should be, for the investment of the money required to develop the bay, which will unquestionably be very profitable to the city, is absolutely necessary for the success of the project, and it should be definitely assured at the very outset of actual work, for national funds will otherwise be wasted.—Engineering Record.

COMMERCIAL AND CIVIC IMPROVEMENTS.

To-day the whole civilized world is witnessing a public recognition of the fact that the problem of the hour is that of municipal life. The frontier problem has been solved with the majority of nations, and with its solution there has come a backward sweep in the tide of people from the country to the city. Once more, as in the olden time, it is the city that is the heart of the nation, and city problems most heavily tax the powers of present day statesmanship. Population concentrates; demand for new facilities to meet the new requirements of new population grows more insistent each year. The power of light as a police agent, of the beautiful in environment as a civilizing agent, the right of the people to aid in the pursuit of happiness, are now recognized as present day governmental problems—factors to be taken into consideration by the rulers of to-day in national, state and municipal affairs.

This recognition of the new claim of the city is world-wide and has its foundation in a true reading of current events and conditions. London has just completed a most ambitious work by cutting a highway through the very heart of the business section. Berlin with its great city canal scheme and new city park lands, Paris with its new plans of city development which involve an expenditure of $160,000,000, testify an awakening along these lines. In South America, Rio Janeiro shows city improvements of the most monumental character, including the cutting of a great highway through the center of activity and involving an expenditure running into many millions.

Valparaiso is now spending twenty millions of dollars on new harbors, and other less conspicuous municipalities are equally testifying their virility in the character of their municipal work. Within the United States, Boston, New York, San Francisco, St. Louis and a long line of other American cities are at the moment engaged on work of a similar character, all showing in their present day policy the influence of this world-wide movement to better conditions of city life and in that betterment make the city more beautiful.

Ordered, That the City Auditor be authorized to transfer the sum of five hundred thirteen dollars ($513) from the appropriation for Mystic Playground, sanitary and shelter, to the appropriation for Roslindale Playground sanitary.

Board of Commissioners of the Department of Parks,

February 14, 1910.

Honorable Mayor and City Council of the City of Boston:

Gentlemen,—The Board of Park Commissioners wish to explain to you certain work that is needed on various sanitary buildings and playgrounds. Some of this needed work has been already done from money saved from the appropriation for purchase of the land. At some places, owing to the location, sewer, water and electric connections of considerable length are needed. Also the auditor desires that the architect's fees should be charged to each building instead of being paid from maintenance as we had intended.

At the William Eustis Playground, Ward 17, enough money was left from the appropriation for purchase of land to grade and fence the ground in a very thorough and satisfactory manner, and we have had designs made for a suitable sanitary building and have money enough left from the appropriation for land to build gateways in the fence, which gateways will form a portion of the finished sanitary building. We shall still have $2,700 left toward the sanitary building, but that is not enough to build a substantial portion of the building. We should like to build the whole building and thus close up a very complete and carefully economized job, and to do that we should need a further appropriation of $10,000.

The contract for the sanitary building on the Columbus Avenue Playground has been let at a very nearly the amount of the appropriation. We desire to place the building away from the street, because it will thus screen the playground from the railroad and other buildings. This makes long sewer and water and electric connections, and for these and the architect's services and a small sum for grading a sum is needed of $670.

The fence at this playground is practically gone, and it is very desirable to fence it towards the street with concrete posts and iron lattice, as we are doing at other playgrounds, particularly because the playground is next to a crowded thoroughfare. Toward the railroad a wooden fence has been intended. All this is estimated at $2,835.

Across the entire west side of the lot there is a concrete retaining wall, and the railroad will pay half the cost of the proposed wooden fence. Our share is included in the above estimate, but as the foundation is all there it would seem much wiser to build there a concrete wall. We do not know how much of this the railroad would pay, but the total cost above what is included above for the wooden fence would be $1,865.

At the Charlestown Playground the west wing of what is intended to be a final sanitary building has been contracted for to the amount of the appropriation, but to supply this building with sewerage, water supply and electric light conduit and pay for the design of this wing and for the completed building it is estimated that a sum will be needed of $1,000.

For Billings Field we have had designs made for a sanitary building and obtained bids, but the lowest bid exceeds the appropriation by $395. We think it is just what is needed there and do not like to reduce it, but the appropriation will not suffice to put in the sewerage and water supply and electric light conduit, and this would demand an extra sum of $1,700.

At the North Brighton Playground a great deal of grading has been lately done. To complete the grading and planting there is needed the sum of $2,500; and to supply electric conduit wiring and fixtures to the sanitary building would require $700.

At Savin Hill Park enough money was left from the purchase of land to clean out the useless scrub growth and cut away the dead trees and get everything ready for loam and planting. This loam and planting would cost $2,500.

At Franklin Field the locker building has never been completed, and to make it look finished and in accord with the great playground, the following work seems to us both necessary and desirable: Concrete flooring and plastering in the basement, $1,000; railings to the porch and balustrade and steps on the front walk or terrace, $3,500; wall and curbing, largely made from old stone on hand on Blue Hill avenue, $2,300; grading, loaming and planting, $2,500; to which add architect's services, $100.

At Roslindale Playground the contract has been made for a sanitary building, but for the sewerage and water supply a further sum of $439 is necessary. A balance of $513 from the appropriation of Mystic Playground sanitary building will remain after the building is completed, and we request that it be transferred for the completion of the Roslindale Playground sanitary building.

The appropriations requested above for the Franklin Field locker building and grounds, for Savin Hill Park and for the North Brighton Playground are urgent, as they are required for completion and utilization of work now in hand, and all the above appropriations should be provided as soon as may be. We respectfully ask for them your consideration.

Very truly yours,
ROBERT S. PEABODY, Chairman.
Referred to the Committee on Finance.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE REPORT.

Coun. HALE, for the Executive Committee, reported on the order (referred March 7) that the minutes of the City Council as published contain only the motions, orders and resolutions, and such papers as the Council may see fit to incorporate in its records, and that the verbatim reports of all speeches be eliminated from such printed records—that the same ought not to pass.

The question came on accepting the report. The report was accepted and the order rejected yeas 6, nays 2.

Yeas—Coun. Attridge, Brand, Buckley, Curley, Hale, McDonald—6.
Nays—Coun. Collins, Kenny—2.

On motion of Coun. BRAND the Council refused a general reconsideration of all votes taken to-day.

The question came on the passage of the order.

It was voted that the matter lie over to the next meeting of the Council; and it was voted, on motion of Coun. CURLEY, that the City Clerk be directed to forward the order as presented to the Corporation Counsel, with a request that he submit his opinion on it to the Council in executive session next Monday.

Adjourned, on motion of Coun. ATTRIDGE, at 6.20 p. m., to meet on Monday, March 21, at three o'clock p. m.

MECHANICAL FREIGHT HANDLING.

Mechanical freight handling has been discussed this winter before numerous railroad clubs and commercial organizations by Mr. H. McL. Harding, whose system of overhead tracks for covering a given area by means of telfers is probably familiar to most readers. By means of permanent tracks, others connecting with them placed on traveling cranes called transpherers, and tracks carried on cantilevers running out from the walls of warehouses, it is practicable to handle freight in this way without interfering with the men and goods below. While the system is familiar, however, the great financial advantages claimed for it are practically unknown, except among the people introducing the system and the companies which have it under consideration. The financial argument for the introduction of such a method of handling is, of course, the all-important consideration, and space is accordingly given in this issue for a presentation of it. It is based on the so-called "unit movement" of freight, which seems to be growing in favor as a method of analyzing such costs. It is apparently the only method of eliminating numerous assumptions and substituting for them factors which can be determined by actual counts at any terminal or warehouse where freight is being handled. The cost of handling packages by telfer can be estimated very closely, since these overhead carriers have been in use for a good many years under many classes of service; the units of freight can be counted, the men employed in handling them can be enumerated and the saving due to the mechanical system can be predicted very closely. While the paper referred to relates mainly to the cost of handling goods at docks and railroad terminals, it will be useful also to managers of industrial plants which transfer considerable quantities of materials from one department to another. The method of cost analysis suggested by Mr. Harding for freight will apply, with certain modifications, equally well to these problems of the manufacturing plant.—Engineering Record.

The city of Mexico will spend a million pesos this year in the construction of better quarters for the poor and the cleaning up of the streets in the slum region.—Pacific Outlook.

HARBOR AND POWER BONDS.

Next month the people of Los Angeles will pass another important milestone in their municipal progress when they vote—as we confidently believe they will—for three millions for harbor and over three millions for electric power. The report of experts recently made public shows greater possibilities in the production of electric energy than had been suspected, the maximum rising from 80,000 horse power to 120,000. Considering that the city now uses only about one-sixteenth of the smaller figure, this means an incredible development of manufacturing and transportation. No doubt the power bonds will carry by a good majority, in spite of possible opposition of corporate interests. It is by no means so certain that the harbor bonds will carry. Factious opposition has developed, based on an alleged discrimination in favor of the inner harbor and against the outer. Now, the project for these bonds was planned by the best friends the harbor has, including Captain Fries. The public may be sure that the plan is the one that will give the best possible results and that it is fair to both sections of the harbor. If it is defeated it will postpone all harbor development by the city for years. The national government will do some work, but it will be slow and it will not include the construction of wharves for immediate commercial use. While some of the objectors are, no doubt, sincere, there are others that are actuated by sinister motives and who will bear watching. Why does the machine-corporation daily paper exploit these objections so eagerly? That means something. The friends of the harbor should be on guard. A committee should be appointed by the commercial bodies to work for the success of the harbor bonds, just as was done in the case of the Owens river project.—Pacific Outlook.

WATERWAY IMPROVEMENT IN MEXICO.

By the improvement of its few waterways Mexico hopes to develop more fully its natural resources. Unlike the United States, Mexico has few rivers of importance, and its coast line of 6,000 miles has few inlets and lagoons. Canals will be dug wherever possible. One intended to connect Tampico and Tuxpam on the Gulf coast is already under way. This will be 120 miles long, 5 feet deep, 40 feet wide, and will cost about $2,000,000. This work is being done by an American contractor who promises to complete the job in two years.

Much American capital is finding its way into Mexico and there is a growing demand for information about the great land over which President Diaz holds sway. As a matter of fact, we Americans are far deeper in the dark about Mexico, which is right at our doors, than we are about England or Germany, which are thousands of miles away. American manufacturers and American salesmen should keep their eyes open to the commercial possibilities in Mexico and the great countries of South America.

When the great manufacturers have a foreign outlet these little panics and financial disturbances which, owing to our unsettled sociological and economic conditions, constantly interfere with production and distribution will not count for so much. Mexico, rich and only partially developed, offers one great outlet for American products.—The Book-keeper.

INAUGURAL ADDRESSES.

REPRINTS OF ADDRESSES DELIVERED BY THE MAYORS OF BOSTON AT THEIR INAUGURATION FROM THE INCORPORATION OF THE CITY.

William H. Whitmore, formerly City Registrar, and a man who delighted especially in the preservation of historical data relating to the city, started in 1890 a compilation of the inaugural addresses of the mayors of Boston. Up to that time they were available only in odd and scattered municipal documents, kept with indifferent care, or in some instances in privately printed documents.

In 1894 he produced the first volume, which contained the addresses from Phillips to Bigelow. In 1896 he published a second volume, with the addresses from Chapman to Norcross. The two volumes make not only substantial but interesting reading for all citizens. Because of the fact that the volumes in question are out of print, it is proposed to reprint the addresses in probably weekly installments in the City Record.

Mayor Quincy's address, which was delivered to the City Council January 1, 1828, was as follows:

No. 7.

Gentlemen of the City Council:

We assemble under circumstances of great municipal prosperity and with very decisive evidences of the content of our fellow-citizens with the general conduct of their affairs. A brief recurrence to a few of the principal relations of our city, will, however, be useful, and tend to strengthen public satisfaction and confidence.

During the first years of the city government its attention was naturally directed to important local improvements, and to the enlarging of our means of protection against the dangers to which all great cities are subject, and which the form of the ancient government was not well calculated to effect. The number and greatness of these improvements and preparations, together with the short period in which they were executed, led necessarily to the creation of a debt on a scale which excited in some minds apprehensions—cautious men began to fear lest an increase of debt would become the habit of the city government. The experience of the past year has shown that it is no less willing to adopt and enforce a rigid system of economy than the practice of preceding years had shown it to be capable of using, on proper occasions, the public credit. The appropriations made at the commencement of the last year have been respected with an exemplary strictness. None have as yet been exceeded. To one or two additions will be required, but in every instance it is believed it will be found that they have been occasioned by circumstances accidental in their nature, and not within the control of the expending authority, and that they can be supplied by the transfer of the surplus, existing in other appropriations. There can scarcely be expected in any future year a greater exactness in this respect than the past has exhibited.

The measures adopted by the last City Council to give a permanent and efficient character to the reduction of the city debt have been attended with all the success which was anticipated. Before the current financial year closes more than $100,000 of the pre-existing city debt will be discharged. It requires only a steady perseverance in the same system to place the resources of the city on an enviable and satisfactory foundation.

The diminution of the number of complaints in every branch of police indicates a very general content with its administration. In no preceding year has the general order been better maintained. Nor in a population so great and rapidly increasing can it be expected that vice and crime should be less obtrusive or more restrained.

It is a subject of congratulation that the new arrangements in our Health Department, whereby responsibility and efficiency have been endeavored to be obtained by the concentration of its powers in the Board of Aldermen the health physician and police officer, should have resulted in such apparent advantage. Notwithstanding a constant and increasing intercourse with Halifax,—a city suffering under the most malign form of the smallpox; notwithstanding the same disorder has been brought to this city in repeated instances from that and from other cities, and notwithstanding it has appeared with some activity in towns in our immediate vicinity, yet by the vigilance of the Health Department every occurring case has been detected, insulated or removed. Until the last week no instance of its having been communicated within this city is known or suspected. The circumstances of that week have been the subject of a public official statement. Since that publication only one case has occurred and that has been promptly removed to the island. Nor is any case now known or believed to exist within the city.

Although great credit is due to the health physician and police officer for their vigilance and activity, yet it cannot be questioned that their labors have been diminished and their success facilitated by the general vaccination which took place under the authority of former City Councils.

The state of the hospital at Rainsford's Island and its general police, so far as depends on the health physician and island keeper, is very satisfactory. Applications from the local authority of several towns in this vicinity to transfer their infected citizens to that establishment have been promptly granted. The willingness with which those citizens have permitted themselves to be thus transferred, and even the desire exhibited by some of them who were individuals of great respectability in their respective towns, to avail of this privilege in preference to remaining insulated in their own vicinity, strongly indicates the satisfaction of the public with that establishment, and their confidence in the professional ability with which it is conducted.

The general state of the health of the city is not only a subject of devout thankfulness, but is also a circumstance not to be omitted in estimating the effects of the general arrangements of its police. Tables founded on the bills of mortality of this city, and constructed on the usual principles, show that for the four years past, from 1824 to 1827 inclusive, the annual average proportion of deaths to population has not only been less than that in any antecedent year, but it is believed less than that in any other city of equal population on record.

The bills of mortality of this place, and calculations made on them for the eleven years, from 1813 to 1823 inclusive, show that the annual average proportion of deaths to population was about one in forty-two.

Similar estimates on the bills of mortality of this city since 1823 show that this annual average proportion was for the four years, from 1824 to 1827 inclusive, less than one in forty-eight; for the three years, from 1825 to 1827 inclusive, less than one in fifty; for the two years, from 1826 to 1827, inclusive less than one in fifty-five; and for the last year, 1827, scarcely one in sixty-three.

Upon the usual estimates of this nature, a city of equal population in which this annual average should not exceed one in forty-seven would be considered as enjoying an extraordinary degree of health.

Calculations of this kind are necessarily general, and exactness in precise results, owing to the uncertainty in the annual increase of population, cannot be expected; enough appears, however, from unquestionable data to justify the position that since the year 1823 this city has enjoyed an uncommon and gradually increasing state of general health, and that for the two last years it has been unexampled.

It will be recollected by the City Council that in the year 1823 a systematic cleansing of the city, and removal of noxious animal and vegetable substances was adopted under their auspices, and have been persevered in to this period with no inconsiderable trouble and expense. Now, although it would be too much to attribute the whole of this important improvement in the general health of this city to these measures, yet when a new system was at that period adopted, having for its express object this very effect,—the prevention of disease by an efficient and timely removal of nuisances,—it is just and reasonable to claim for those preventive measures, and credit it to them a portion of that freedom from disease which has subsequently to their adoption resulted in a degree so very extraordinary, it is proper to adduce this state of things by way of encouragement to persevere in a system, which has its foundation in the plainest principles of nature and reason, and which is so apparently justified by effects.

I am thus distinct in alluding to this subject, because the removal of the nuisances of a city is a laborious, difficult and repulsive service, requiring much previous arrangement, and constant vigilance, and is attended with frequent disappointment of endeavors, whence it happens that there is a perpetual natural tendency in those intrusted with municipal affairs to throw the trouble and responsibility of it upon subordinate agents and contractors; and very plausible arguments of economy may be adduced in favor of such a system. But if experience and reflection have given certainty to my mind upon any subject it is this, that upon the right conduct of this branch of police the executive powers of a city should be made directly responsible more than for any other; and that it can never, for any great length of time be executed well except by agents under its immediate control and whose labors it may command at all times in any way, which the necessities, continually varying and often impossible to be anticipated, of a city in this respect require.

In the whole sphere of municipal duties there are none more important than those which relate to the removal of those substances whose exhalations injuriously affect the air. A pure atmosphere is to a city what a good conscience is to an individual,—a perpetual source of comfort, tranquility and self-respect.

The general confidence resulting from our Fire Department is an ample justification of the great expenditures which have been made in bringing it to that state of preparation and efficiency in which it now exists. Besides the sense of security it has induced, the direct pecuniary gain to the community is capable of being very satisfactorily estimated. Since the renovation of that department and its establishment on its present footing the rates of insurance on real property within this city have been reduced 20 per cent. I am authorized by several presidents of our principal insurance offices to state that this reduction has been solely owing to confidence in the present efficiency of that department. The saving in this reduction of premium alone is stated by them not to be less on the insurable real estate of this city than $10,000 annually; in other words, it is equal to a remuneration in three years for the whole cost of the department. It is now distinguished not only for the efficiency of its engines and apparatus, but by its exemplary spirit of discipline. The utmost harmony also exists among its members, officers and companies.

The expediency and mode of still farther extending our present system of public schools, so as to embrace higher branches than those at present taught in them, will probably in some form be brought before the City Council.

In a city which already expends $60,000 annually on its public schools, which has a capital of certainly not less than $200,000 invested in schoolhouses alone, and whose expenses under this head must from the increasing nature of its population unavoidably increase every year, attempts to extend the existing system of instruction must necessarily give occasion to much solicitude and reflection. The great interest and duty of society and its great object in establishing public schools is to elevate as highly as possible the intellectual and moral condition of the mass of the community. To this end our institutions are so constituted as to put every necessary branch of elementary instruction within the reach of every citizen, and to infuse by the books read and branches taught in them similar general views of duty and morals, and similar general principles relative to social order, happiness and obligation throughout the whole society. Such is the present general character of our common schools, so called because they are the common right and common property of every citizen. If other and higher branches of instruction are to be added to those embraced by our present system of public education, it deserves serious consideration whether the duty and interest of society does not require that they should be added to our common schools, and enjoyed on the same equal principles of common right and common property. In other words, whether the new branches shall not be for the benefit of the children of the whole community, and not for the benefit of the children of comparatively a few.

Every school, the admission to which is predicated upon the principles of requiring higher attainments at a specified age or period of life than the mass of children in the ordinary course of school instruction at that age, or period, can attain, is in fact a school for the benefit of the few, and not for the benefit of the many. Parents who, having been highly educated themselves, are therefore capable of forcing the education of their own children; parents, whose pecuniary ability enables them to educate their children at private schools, or who by domestic instruction are able to aid their advancement in the public schools, will for the most part enjoy the whole privilege. In form it may be general, but it will be in fact exclusive. The sound principle upon this subject seems to be that the standard of public education should be raised to the greatest desirable and practicable height, but that it should be effected by raising the standard of our common schools.

Among the general principles of public policy by which the prosperity of cities is effected there is one which by many of our citizens and those of great wealth and respectability is considered to be onerous and oppressive, and which it is thought has a material and injurious influence on the advancement of a city like ours, engaged in an active mercantile competition with intelligent and enterprising rival cities in which no such principal of public policy exists. Although the subject properly belongs to the sphere of state legislation, yet as the mischief is thought chiefly to affect this city it seems desirable, and would give satisfaction to a very great class of our fellow citizens, to have the practicability of a change in this principle submitted to the test of a public examination.

I allude to the system of assessing taxes on the principle of an arbitrary valuation without relief.

Although the formal provisions of the law are so framed as to conceal the character of the principle, yet it is practically that which I have stated. It is a valuation arbitrary in its nature and in point of fact without relief.

The character of the principle is concealed by the opportunity which is formally given to every individual, if he pleases, to exhibit previous to assessment perfect lists of his estate. On his neglect of this opportunity the right to doom—that is, arbitrarily to value and assess—is assumed and justified.

Now it is notorious that in every great mercantile city such an exhibit would, if made truly, as it respects many, be ruinous; that as it respects very many it is absolutely impracticable, and that a public annual development of the exact relation of his resources would disastrously affect almost every man of property in society, either by embarrassing his operations or by needlessly exposing his condition to the curious, the envious or the inimical. When therefore the law offers an opportunity to exhibit true lists of their property as a privilege, of which multitudes cannot avail themselves, and which it is the interest of every man in society to reject, it offers a shadow and not a substance; it is only a formal and not a real privilege. And when it founds the right arbitrarily to assess, on the neglect of an opportunity of such a character it exercises in effect a despotic power, not the less objectionable on account of its being veiled under the pretence of being justified by failure to perform an impracticable or ruinous condition. To show that such is the practical character of this principle it will be sufficient simply to state that the last year an uncommon number of persons and a greater amount of property was exhibited in previous lists than in any antecedent year in this city, yet out of more than twelve thousand taxable persons only twenty-six gave in such lists, and in a city the valuation of which exceeded $65,000 the amount exhibited in these lists was only $403,000. A more direct proof how nominal and fallacious this privilege to exhibit is universally deemed could not be adduced. It is in effect an arbitrary valuation and it is without relief. For if this fallacious privilege be neglected the courts are by statute provision prohibited from making abatements; and in our convention of assessors, in all cases above $16, it is practically a settled principle that such neglect precludes the applicant from the privilege of abatement.

Did the effect of these principles terminate with the individual it would be of less importance, but it reacts upon society and especially on a mercantile community, whose prosperity must necessarily be affected by it in a greater or less degree.

It should be the settled policy of mercantile cities to allure and detain capitalists. Of all classes of men these are the quickest to discern, and are in a situation the most favorable to take advantage of the relative principles which the laws and policy of different cities apply to their condition. Their activity, enterprise and capital, give life and support to the industry of the laboring and mechanic classes. Whatever drives capitalists from a city or makes them discontented with it has a direct tendency to deprive those classes of their best hopes. Now, what can have a more direct and natural tendency to such an effect than the certainty that there is no escape from an arbitrary valuation and assessment except compliance with a condition which is ruinous to some, impracticable to others, and repulsive to all? Unless, indeed, it be a further certainty, which in this case also exists, that from such an assessment once made there is absolutely no hope of relief!

That this city has lost important and valuable citizens and great capitalists in consequence of the operation of this principle is a known fact. How many more have been deterred from uniting their destinies with ours and have been led by it to place their capital in employ in other cities it is not possible to estimate, but that there have been such is also positively known.

Other great cities, our neighbors, and honorable rivals, have no such arbitrary principle connected with their system of assessment. Having opened a correspondence with the respective mayors of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore on the subject, they have each of them, with great promptitude and politeness, transmitted a transcript of the principles and course of proceedings of their respective cities in relation to assessments.

In all of these cities there seems to exist a general content with the principles on which assessment is made, whatever discontent may individually exist in the application of it. In neither of them is any exhibit of personal property required antecedent to assessment. In all of them previously to finally closing the assessment an opportunity is given to those who deem themselves aggrieved to be heard, and to have the assessment modified according to the truth of their case.

The subject has great relations. I refer to it out of respect to an opinion very general in this city that our principles of taxation are injurious to its prosperity. It is a subject worthy of deliberate consideration, and an examination into it would give to many good citizens great satisfaction; even should the result be that a change was impracticable, or inexpedient.

For the renewed evidences I have recently received of the confidence of my fellow citizens I can only renew the assurance of a life and thoughts exclusively devoted to understand and pursue their best interests.

HOW HOUSTON MAKES GOOD.

The appropriation by the United States Congress of $1,250,000, contingent upon the Houston navigation district appropriating an equal sum for the same purpose, must necessarily be gratifying to Houstonians and Texans generally, as it gives them what they have been striving to get for a long while. The general government over thirty years ago had its engineering corps make surveys to ascertain the possibility of connecting Houston with the Gulf of Mexico by a deeper water channel. A complete survey was made and Congress approved the report of the engineers by making an appropriation to get the work started. The report disclosed that $4,000,000, wisely used, would result in making a channel twenty feet deep to connect Houston with deep water in the Mexican Gulf. Accordingly an appropriation was made sufficiently large to start the work, and the task was inaugurated and advanced to the present status or very near it. It was this report of leading government engineers that proclaimed to the world that Houston had comparatively an easy way to secure a depth ample to accommodate ocean-going vessels to a point within two miles of the city limits. Not only did this action of Congress declare the fact to the world, but it spurred Houstonians on to the pitch of determination that emboldened them to place an offer of $1,250,000 for the work, provided Congress would appropriate a like sum, the total amount, $2,500,000, to be applied to deepening, widening and straightening the ship channel to still greater capacity. The depth fixed is 25 feet, with a proportionate width, and perhaps a minimum of 200 feet. The congressional appropriation becomes available as soon as the people, by vote, make good their proposal. Hence it is up to the tax payers to bind it.—Progressive Houston.

SALE OF WHARF PROPERTY.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, March 21, 1910.

To the City Council:

The wharf property at 492-494 Chelsea street, East Boston, has lain idle for many years, and no use has been suggested for it that would justify the city in withholding it from occupancy. I recommend the adoption of the accompanying order, which will enable this tract to be applied to commercial purposes and will bring revenue to the city in additional taxes.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

Ordered, That the Superintendent of Streets be authorized, subject to the approval of the Mayor, to sell by public auction a parcel of land now in the custody of the Street Department, on the northeast side of Chelsea street, East Boston, numbered 492 and 494 on said street, and containing about fifteen thousand square feet of filled land and about one hundred and seven thousand square feet of flats.

Referred to the Executive Committee.

The Boston City Hospital,
March 7, 1910.

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald,

Mayor of Boston, City Hall:

Dear Sir,—I wish to call your Honor's attention to the fact that there is a balance in the appropriation for New Ward for Isolated Patients of $2,130.08, and in the appropriation for Surgical Out-Patient Department Building of $1,296.37, making a total of $3,426.45. This money was reserved at the time of the failure of F. G. Coburn & Co. to complete their contracts on these two buildings, until the affairs of the company were settled. I have been notified by the City Auditor that the claim has been settled in favor of the hospital. Now that this money is available, I would ask your Honor to have it transferred to the appropriation for Hospital Buildings Improvements. In behalf of the Trustees,

Yours very truly,

A. SHUMAN,
President, Board of Trustees.

Ordered, That the City Auditor be authorized to make the following transfers: A balance of $2,130.08 from the appropriation for New Ward for Isolated Patients and a balance of $1,296.37 from the appropriation for Surgical Out-Patient Department Building to the appropriation for Hospital Buildings Improvements.

EIGHT DOLLARS MINIMUM METER RATE.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, March 21, 1910.

To the City Council:

I recommend the passage of the following order, fixing the minimum rate for metered water service at $8 per year, instead of $15, which is the present rate. The higher rate has proved a hardship to many small householders, who receive no credit for such economies in the use of water as they may practice. The reduction is recommended by the Water Commissioner.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

Ordered, That section 2 of chapter 42 of the Revised Ordinances of 1898 be amended by striking out the word "fifteen" in line eleven of said section, and substituting therefor the word "eight," so as to read as follows, beginning with line ten:

"that all bills for water furnished and measured by meter shall never be less than eight dollars per year."

The following was received:

I am in receipt of an offer to purchase 1,273 square feet of land now owned by the city on Public Alley No. 444, the said offer being based upon a valuation 25 per cent above the assessed valuation of the adjoining property. FURNITURE FOR REGISTRY OF DEEDS.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, March 21, 1910.
To the City Council:

The Superintendent of Public Buildings requests that he be allowed to purchase steel furniture for the Registry of Deeds, a sum sufficient for the purpose being available under order appropriating $12,000 for "Registry of Deeds, Fireproof Bookcases," and I recommend the adoption of the accompanying draft of order, which would give him the authority he requests.

Respectfully,
JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

City of Boston,
Office of the Public Buildings Department,
March 18, 1910.

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald,
Mayor of Boston:

Sir,—On January 19, 1910, an order of the City Council of last year, of which the following is a copy, was approved by Mayor G. A. Hibbard:

Ordered, That the City Auditor be, and he hereby is, authorized to transfer the sum of $12,000 from the appropriation for Police Department to an appropriation for Registry of Deeds, fireproof bookcases, said appropriation to be expended by the Superintendent of Public Buildings.

This order provides a special appropriation for "Registry of Deeds, Fireproof Bookcases," and I find after consulting with the commissioners having charge of the alterations now being made on the courthouse, Pemberton square, that they desire to have furnished and installed considerable steel furniture, such as tables, etc., in addition to the bookcases, and have had plans prepared to include the same.

The City Auditor advises me that unless additional authority is given only bookcases can be installed on the present wording of the order, thereby eliminating the furniture.

I inclose an order for consideration of the City Council, which would give me the desired authority to purchase the furniture, but not changing the amount of appropriation as made.

Yours respectfully,
G. W. MOHRISON,
Superintendent of Public Buildings.

Ordered, That the Superintendent of Public Buildings be hereby authorized to purchase the necessary metal furniture, etc., for the Registry of Deeds and that the expense of the same be charged to the special appropriation, as made, for "Registry of Deeds, Fireproof Bookcases."

OFFICERS OF CITY COUNCIL.

The following was received:

Boston Finance Commission,
March 16, 1910.

To the Honorable the City Council:
Gentlemen,—The commission is in receipt of the order of the City Council, dated March 14, 1910, namely:

Ordered, That the Finance Commission be hereby requested to attend, by one or more of its members, the meeting of the Executive Committee of the City Council on Monday, March 21, at 4 p. m., in relation to appointing officers of the City Council to perform the duties formerly discharged by the Clerk of Committees and City Messenger.

In the opinion of the commission no additional officers are necessary, but, on the contrary, on account of the reduction in the work of the Council, due to the charter amendments of 1909, the services of either the Clerk of Committees or City Messenger should be dispensed with at a saving of $2,500 a year. If the City Council desires the commission to state its reasons for this opinion it will be pleased to submit them in writing.

Respectfully submitted,
By JOHN A. SULLIVAN, Chairman.

APPORTIONMENT OF SEWER ASSESSMENTS, ETC.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Law Department, March 19, 1910.
City Council of Boston,
City Hall, Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen,—I am asked by your honorable body for an opinion on an order introduced into the Council at its last session accepting chapter 177 of the Acts of 1907, being an act relative to the apportionment of sewer assessments and the payment of interest thereon.

The Act of 1907 is an act amending section 15 of chapter 49 of the Revised Laws. Sewers in Boston are not laid out, constructed and assessed for under the provisions of chapter 49 of the Revised Laws, and the acceptance of your honorable body of this amendment would have absolutely no effect.

Sewers in Boston have been for a great many years constructed and assessed for under special acts passed by the Legislature concerning this city. The present act under which streets and sewers are laid out and constructed is chapter 393 of the Acts of 1906. The sewer assessments under that act are to be made by the Board of Street Commissioners and the proceedings in regard to the levying of such assessments, the amount of them, how they are to be revised, or under certain circumstances abated, how they are to be paid or apportioned, and what interest they shall bear, are regulated by sections 5, 6, 7 and 8 of said chapter 393 of the Acts of 1906, and these provisions can be changed only by an act of the Legislature amending our sewer assessment law.

Yours truly,
THOMAS M. BARBON,
Corporation Counsel.

Placed on file.

PENSIONS.

The Superintendent presented the following redraft of a proposed act relative to the payment of pensions to members of the teaching or supervising staff of the public schools of the City of Boston, which had been approved by the Teachers' Council on Pensions:—

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in the Year One Thousand Nine Hundred and Ten.

AN ACT Relative to the Payment of Pensions to the Members of the Teaching or Supervising Staff of the Public Schools of the City of Boston.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by authority of the same, as follows:—

Section 1. Section one of chapter five hundred and eighty-nine of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight is hereby amended by striking out the words "at a rate not exceeding one hundred and eighty dollars a year" so as to read as follows: The school committee of the city of Boston shall forthwith establish a permanent pension fund for the payment of pensions as hereinafter set forth to the members of the teaching or supervising staff of the public day schools of the said city.

Section 2. Section 4 of said chapter is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following: "Accrued interest not expended during any year shall be added to the permanent fund" so as to read as follows: Section 4. In addition to the amount which the school committee is now authorized by law to appropriate for the support of the public schools of this city, and for other purposes, it shall annually appropriate for the purposes contemplated by this act, and in the same manner in which it makes appropriations for other school purposes, the sum of five cents upon each one thousand dollars of the valuation on which the appropriations of the city council of the city are based, and shall from time to time pay to the treasurer of the permanent pension fund such portions of the proceeds of said five cents upon each one thousand dollars of the valuation aforesaid as, in the opinion of the school committee, will not be needed for the purpose of paying pensions to teachers during that year. Accrued interest not expended during any year shall be added to the permanent fund.

Section 3. Said chapter is further amended by striking out sections six and seven and inserting in place thereof the following sections:

Section 6. The total amount of pensions payable hereunder in any one year shall not exceed the proceeds of the said five cents upon each one thousand dollars of the valuation aforesaid, together with the interest accruing during that year from the investment of the permanent fund. In case the amount available in any one year under this act is not sufficient to pay the pensions that have been granted, the amount so available shall be divided pro rata among those to whom pensions have been or may be granted on the basis of the amount of the pension each is then receiving. Section 7. The school committee of said city, by a majority vote of all its members, may retire with a pension any members of the teaching or supervising staff of the public day schools of the city of Boston, who shall have attained the age of sixty-five years, and such other members of the teaching or supervising staff of said schools, as, in the opinion of said school committee, shall be incapacitated for further efficient service. If a person so retired has been employed in teaching or supervising in public day schools for a period aggregating thirty years or more, ten years of which shall have been in the employ of the school committee of the city of Boston, such a person shall be paid a pension at the annual rate of one-third of the annual salary paid to said person at the time of retirement; provided, that in no case shall the pension of any person so retired after thirty years of service, be less than three hundred and twelve dollars. If a person so retired has been employed in teaching or supervising in the public day schools for a period aggregating less than thirty years, ten years of which shall have been in the employ of the school committee of the city of Boston, said person shall be paid a pension which bears the same ratio to the pension provided for on retirement after thirty years of service as the total number of years of service of said person bears to thirty years. The pension of any teacher retired because of incapacity shall terminate if, and when, in the judgment of the school committee such person's incapacity shall have ceased and said teacher shall have been tendered reappointment in the public schools of the city of Boston. In determining the aggregate length of service of any person retired under the provisions of this act, any period of leave of absence under salary shall be considered as equivalent to an equal amount of teaching service. The treasurer of the city of Boston shall pay pensions under this act in accordance with monthly pay rolls prepared and certified to by the school committee. The school committee of the city of Boston shall establish a schedule of pensions in accordance with the provisions of this act. The pensions of persons already retired under the provisions of chapter 589 of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight shall be reestablished in accordance with the provisions of this act to date from the first day of the calendar month next following the passage of this act.

Section 4. The school committee of said city may from time to time grant a pension to any person who was an annuitant of the Boston Teachers' Retirement Fund Association at the time when chapter 589 of the acts of the year 1908 took effect, and to any other teacher who had retired previous to said time, and who had taught in the public day schools for a period aggregating thirty years, twenty of which had been in the public day schools of the city of Boston, at a rate not exceeding one hundred and eighty dollars per annum, which shall be payable from the fund established under the provisions of this act.

Section 5. The term "teaching or supervising staff of the public day schools of the city of Boston" as used in this act shall include the superintendent, assistant superintendents, supervisors, assistant supervisors, directors, assistant directors, principals and all other persons permanently employed in giving or supervising instruction in the public schools of the city of Boston and the principal and the teachers of the Parental School of the city of Boston, provided, that all appointments of principals or of teachers in the Parental School of the city of Boston, after the passage of this act shall be approved by the school committee of the city of Boston, before said principals or teachers begin service.

Section 6. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 7. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Unanimously approved for presentation to the Legislature, and the Chairman and the Superintendent authorized to appear before the Committee on Education of the Legislature at the hearing to be held on Mar. 22, 1910, in support thereof.

The communication received from Lillian B. Poor, Secretary of the Boston Teachers' Council on Pensions, at the meeting of Mar. 7, 1910 (see p. 37), submitting a draft of a proposed act amending Chapter 589 of the Acts of 1908, relative to the retirement on pension of teachers in the public school service of Boston, was taken from the table and placed on file.

CIRCULAR FROM THE MAYOR.

The following circular has been sent to the heads of the various city departments:

April 2, 1910.

To the Heads of Departments:

I desire to impress upon you the importance of maintaining a high standard of courtesy among your employees in their dealings with the public. Every office in the city departments should be open during the required hours and citizens should be made to feel that they are there of right and not by favor. All reasonable inquiries should be answered and all proper information supplied without delay or reluctance on the part of the clerks in charge. Any instance of intentional discourtesy to callers should meet with severe rebuke, and habitual offensiveness of manner on the part of any employee should be corrected by stringent measures. This is particularly true if the callers are persons in humble walks of life, who cannot be expected to be familiar with office rules and technical requirements, or foreign-born citizens who have not yet acquired a perfect knowledge of English.

Respectfully,
JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

PROCEEDINGS OF CITY COUNCIL.

Monday, March 28, 1910.

Regular meeting of the City Council, held in the Council Chamber, City Hall, at three o'clock p. m., President BALLANTYNE in the chair and all the members present.

The Council voted, on motion of Coun. COLLINS, to dispense with the reading of the records of the last meeting.

REPAIR OF SOUTHAMPTON STREET.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, March 24, 1910.
To the City Council:

I return herewith without approval an order of your honorable body requesting the Superintendent of Streets to immediately put Southampton street in proper condition, to construct sidewalks thereon and to report to your body a schedule of the cost of said sidewalks.

The cost of the work, as estimated by the Superintendent of Streets, according to his letter herewith inclosed, would be about $88,000, less such amount as the Boston Elevated Railway may expend for the construction of a roadbed for its tracks. This amount is estimated at $32,000, making the net expense to the city about $56,000. In my opinion this is too large a sum to be taken from the annual appropriation. If the Street Commissioners should pass an order for the construction of the street, an assessment could be levied upon the abutting estates, and the matter would in all probability receive favorable consideration as a part of the general scheme for street improvements this year.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

City of Boston,

Street Department, March 24, 1910.

To the Honorable the Mayor:

In the matter of the appended order of the City Council, regarding the construction of Southampton street, Southampton street was laid out by the Street Commissioners without order of construction, and the expense of placing a permanent form of pavement is so great that it will not be feasible to take it from the annual appropriation for the department. If any work is done, it should be under an order of construction, passed by the Street Commissioners, rendering the work assessable upon the abutting property.

To pave this street completely with granite blocks, with edgestones and gravel sidewalks would require approximately $88,000. If, as is now contemplated, the elevated railroad places double tracks in this street, the expense would be reduced to approximately $56,000 on account of the paving work which would be done by the railroad in connection with its tracks. If brick sidewalks are laid, the sum of $7,000 would have to be added to each of the above estimates.

Very respectfully,

GUY C. EMERSON,
Superintendent of Streets.

Placed on file.

MONEY FOR FINANCE COMMISSION.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, March 25, 1910.
To the City Council:

I recommend to your honorable body that the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) be added to the appropriation originally recommended by me for the Boston Finance Commission. The commission has consented, in response to my recent request, to conduct an investigation of the School and Schoolhouse departments, but represents that the additional sum mentioned above is necessary if the investigation is to be a thorough one. As the subject is one of supreme importance, and the report of the commission may influence public opinion to a very great degree, to say nothing of its possible effect upon legislative action, it would be unwise, in my opinion, to withhold the financial support estimated by the commission to be essential for the proper carrying out of their plans.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

Referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

SETTLEMENT FOR CHANGE OF GRADE.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, March 26, 1910.
To the City Council:

In connection with the communication of the Corporation Counsel recommending the settlement of the suit brought by the Commonwealth against the city on account of the change of grade of Bowdoin street, I submit a draft of an order authorizing the Corporation Counsel to make the settlement requested, also a loan order for the sum of forty-nine thousand dollars to cover the amount of the settlement. If you are of the opinion that the settlement is a proper one (and there seems to be no defence to the suit), you can pass the order authorizing it in advance of the loan order, as the loan order will have to be passed in the manner provided for in section two of the amendments to the city charter.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

City of Boston,

Law Department, March 19, 1910.

To the Mayor and City Council of Boston,
City Hall, Boston:

Gentlemen,—I have agreed with the Attorney-General, who I understand has received the approval of the Governor and Council to the settlement, to settle suit of the Commonwealth v. City of Boston, now pending in the Superior Court, being No. 54460 on the docket of that court, for the sum of $48,758.86.

In 1901 the Legislature passed sundry acts concerning the improvement of the State House and its grounds. By chapter 525 of the Acts of 1901 it was provided among other things that the Governor and Council might change the grade of Bowdoin street from Beacon street to Ashburton place, so that the street would be substantially level in that part, and might widen Bowdoin street at any part to a width not exceeding fifty feet. The act then went on to provide that any person who suffers damage to his property by the laying out and grading of Bowdoin street may bring suit against the Commonwealth and recover its damages so sustained. The act then provided that the City of Boston shall repay to the Commonwealth all damages which the Commonwealth shall be required to pay for the change of grade of Bowdoin street, and shall repay the amount expended by the Commonwealth for the work done on Bowdoin street as aforesaid.

The Governor and Council went ahead under this act and all the abutters and tenants on this portion of Bowdoin street brought actions against the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. As the city was in the end to pay these damages, I told the Attorney-General that I would try the cases for his office and did try them. The parties finally recovered damages to the amount of $51,003.73, and the Commonwealth brought suit to recover them back from the city, together with interest on that sum from August 20, 1909.

However unfair this act might have been to the City of Boston, the city has no defence against it except as to some sums that were allowed by the auditor to the tenants and others for damages occasioned by the street being blocked up and made impassable while the work was going on, the only access to the buildings being by means of a high footbridge, which went along the street about the level of the present second story of the buildings.

The damages awarded by the auditor for this temporary damage were, in the Hanson case, $1,417; in the Chapman case, $1,455; in the Blake case, $1,418.50; in the LaMoss case, $1,500; and in the case of the Swedenborgian church, $2,000, making in all $7,790.50. I contended that part, if not the whole of this temporary damage, should be borne by the Commonwealth which did the work. I finally agreed with the Attorney-General that the Commonwealth and the city should each pay half of these damages, or $3,895.25. This sum being subtracted from the $51,003.73, the total damage, leaves $47,108.48. Interest on that sum from August 20, 1909, to March 20, 1910, is $1,648.80, making in all $48,757.28. To this sum was added the disbursement by the Commonwealth of $1.58 for service of writ, making in all the sum agreed on.

As this is a large amount I should like to have the approval of the Mayor and City Council to this settlement. If it is not made the amount will be continually growing by means of interest.

Yours respectfully,

THOMAS M. BABSON,
Corporation Counsel.

Ordered, That the Corporation Counsel be authorized to consent to judgment against the city in the sum of forty-eight thousand seven hundred fifty-eight and $\frac{1}{2}$ dollars (\$48,758.86) in the action brought by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts v. City of Boston, to recover amounts expended by the Commonwealth for land damages occasioned by the change of grade of Bowdoin street.

Ordered, That the City Treasurer be authorized to issue, from time to time, on the request of the Mayor, bonds of the City of Boston to the amount of forty-nine thousand dollars ($49,000); and the proceeds thereof to said amount are hereby appropriated to be expended in settlement of Bowdoin street grade damages, under chapter 543, Acts of 1902.

Referred to the Committee on Claims.

CONFERENCES OF DEPARTMENT HEADS.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, March 28, 1910.
To the City Council:

At a meeting of the Boston Society of Architects held February 1, the following resolution and motion were adopted:

"Resolved, That the Boston Society of Architects is interested in and active through its various committees in furthering the practical, healthful and æsthetic development of the City of Boston, and believes that co-operation among the many associations and organizations in the city, both of a public and quasi-public nature, and the officials of the city, would help towards a better understanding of the problems to be met in planning for a systematic and homogeneous development.

"Be it therefore ordered, That this society present to his Honor the Mayor of the City of Boston a request that he organize some form, agreeable to him, of intercommunication between the heads of departments, and so far as possible accredited representatives of various associations and organizations interested in city affairs that information and suggestion relating to the growth and development of the city may be available for each.

"Motion, That the President appoint a committee of five, naming himself as chairman, to further consider the matter and take such action in the name of the society as seems to them best, in pursuance of the sense of this meeting as expressed in the resolve."

In connection with this motion a committee, composed of members of the Society, waited upon me and the inclosed draft of an ordinance was afterwards framed. It is an extension, with some modifications, of the practice enjoined under chapter 266 of the Acts of 1885, but long abandoned. The present ordinance aims to revive the conferences prescribed by that act, making them more definite in their scope and allowing the representatives of public organizations to take part in the proceedings, upon invitation from the members of the conference.

I recommend the passage of this ordinance, believing that valuable suggestions would be developed through a free exchange of ideas between the heads of departments and that the city would benefit by harmonious action along larger lines of co-operation and design.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

City of Boston,

An Ordinance Providing for Monthly Conferences of Heads of Departments.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Boston, as follows:

The heads of the following departments,—Bath, Building, Engineering, Fire, Health, Hospital, Library, Park, Public Buildings, Public Grounds, Schoolhouse, Street, Commissioners, Treasury, Water and Wire, and of such other departments as may be designated by the Mayor, shall meet at the City Hall, at three o'clock on the first Tuesday in every month, for discussion and co-operation concerning the business of the departments. The Mayor, or such person as he may designate, shall act as Chairman, and, on organization, one of their number shall be elected as secretary. The secretary shall mail notices of all the meetings.

The heads of departments so assembled shall in their discretion, upon application of accredited representatives of associations and organizations interested in city affairs, designate a time when such representatives may appear before them and be heard upon the subject of their application.

Referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

IMPROVEMENTS AT McNARY PARK.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, March 28, 1910.
To the City Council:

I transmit herewith a communication from the Board of Commissioners of the Department of Parks containing a reply to your order requesting certain improvements at McNary Park.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

City of Boston,

Board of Commissioners of the Department of Parks, March 24, 1910.

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor:

Dear Sir,—Referring to the order of the City Council of February 23, requesting the Board of Park Commissioners to establish a convenience station and also to equip the playground at the Strandway Playground with suitable lockers, the expense attending the same to be charged to the appropriation for Park Department when made, which order was referred to our Board by you for suitable action, we think that there is no question but that a sanitary and locker building is very much needed at this playground, but as the Strandway Playground is likely to become a very important athletic center, it would be well to erect a building of such a design as would accommodate present needs and which could be added to to meet the requirements of the future development of the playground.

The estimate that the part needed for present use would cost about $14,000.

It has been at times suggested that the money appropriated for a bath house in Ward 15 might be used for a bath house on the Strandway Playground, thus saving money for a site that such a building would require in Ward 15.

It probably would be a good plan to join these utilities—bath house, locker and sanitary buildings—on this playground.

Yours very truly,

ROBERT S. PEABODY, Chairman.

Placed on file.

LOAN FOR DRAINAGE.

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, March 24, 1910.

To the City Council:

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

INFORMATION CONCERNING ASSESSING DEPARTMENT.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, March 28, 1910.

To the City Council:

I forward herewith a report made by the Board of Assessors upon the recommendations of the Boston Finance Commission with regard to the Assessing Department.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

City of Boston,
Assessing Department,

City Hall, March 26, 1910.

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald,

Mayor of City of Boston:

Sir,—Your communication, containing a copy of the recommendations of the Finance Commission, addressed "To the Honorable Mayor and City Council," under date of February 12, 1910, duly received. The Board has given the subject much consideration, and in a desire to be absolutely fair has made a careful study of the methods in vogue in Brookline and Worcester, which places were used as a basis of comparison by the Finance Commission.

In addition a subcommittee has also visited Lowell, Lawrence, Cambridge and Lynn. It may also be added that in 1908 a committee visited New York, Cleveland, Baltimore and Philadelphia, and a report of its investigations were made at that time. In many ways the findings made then are pertinent to the present inquiry.

One of the first allegations by the Finance Commission is in effect that the appointments of the principal and assistant assessors have been made for political reasons. In refutation of this statement we would say that of the present board of principals one has served continuously for twenty-five years as principal, having previously served for three years as second assistant and five years as first assistant; another has served twenty years as principal, having served three years as second and nine years as first assistant prior to promotion; two of the other members served five years as second assistant and fourteen years as first assistant, and one year as a first and two years as a second assistant, respectively. This shows effectively that experience and training has been a factor in the appointments on this Board.

Pay Roll Comparisons.

To the comparison made of the annual pay roll of the department with the pay roll cost per person and per bill in Brookline and Worcester, the Board says there is no parallel and that this must be obvious to anyone familiar with the work. Brookline, for instance, a residential section covering about 4,000 acres, noted as a home of wealthy people, many of whom are in business in Boston, cannot be compared with a cosmopolitan city of about 630,000 inhabitants. West Roxbury alone has twice the acreage, and Dorchester one and one-half the acreage, of Brookline. Worcester is not to be compared in any sense, as the conditions are entirely dissimilar.

The valuation of the City of Boston is almost equal to the total of the other thirty-two cities of the Commonwealth, and when it is taken into consideration that in Boston every piece of property is visited annually and a valuation placed upon the same, the conditions are so different that no fair comparison can be made.

As far as the clerical force of the department is concerned, we admit that the clerks make good pay, and that they are on a schedule which was adopted after the most careful consideration. The Board believes the schedule is in the main a good one.

The clerks are valuable on account of their long experience. The average service of the ward clerks is fifteen years or more, and as they are paid according to work done (the men work from ten to fourteen hours per day, working nights, Sundays and holidays during the busy season), we believe that the money is fairly earned.

The commission admits that more work is performed by clerks in the Boston department than in any other. This being so, it becomes merely a matter of judgment of the officers of the department as to how valuable these men truly are. Surely the experience of from fifteen to fifty odd years must be a valuable asset, and the honesty, as well as the ability, of the clerks must be considered and due weight given to that feature. The clerks are employed almost the entire year, and are, therefore, clearly in touch with the detail of the department, and are indispensable to its good work.

Referring to the so-called excessive compensation paid in Boston for clerical work, and comparing the clerical expenditure with each million of real estate, personal and total in Boston and Worcester, it is unfair to make a comparison along these lines.

Much time is taken looking after persons who have ceased to be residents of Boston and who have changed their domiciles. This is also true concerning tax dodgers, and again in the reduction of valuations, which, in some sections of the city, is as an important a feature to have properly done as are the increases in valuation.

Further comment at the increased cost of clerical work is not justified by the increase in population or in the work of the department. We believe that the increase is not due entirely to the gain in population.

The commission says the clerical work has increased 44.7 per cent, the increase in polls only 14.2 per cent. As the poll work is paid entirely by item, it naturally follows that of this 44.7 per cent, 14.2 per cent was due to increase in polls, and the balance, 30.5 per cent, due in a great measure to the following causes: More careful probate work; increase in registry work; more care on our corporation credits at the State House (a man being specially assigned to such work); very large increase in special assessments on street construction and sewer assessments; work on gypsy moths; the making of new assessment districts to meet the increased growth of the city; liens for the collector; Tax Commissioner's data, regarding inventories and real estate; Court of Land Registration certificates; additional work on plans and new buildings, and Massachusetts corporations which have increased over 70 per cent.

Much time is spent each year in searching, locating and identifying persons, who, by change of domicile, have left Boston. Effort is made to properly locate and notify other towns thereof, and further effort is required in the distribution of estates which have increased about 100 per cent in ten years and requires care in the marking of the books and in the following distributees of the estates, many of whom reside outside of Boston. The various towns are always notified of the amounts received by the beneficiaries, all of which work would not appear either in the increased value of the city or the increased number of polls, but, on the contrary, much would be noted as a decrease. Some of this work, the change of domiciles for instance, has increased 170 per cent in ten years.

To compare this work with that done in small places by women, or girls who are in school and who work during their vacation for "pin money," as was expressed by some of the assessors visited, at rates varying from fifteen cents to twenty-five cents per hour, is obviously unfair. In a city the size of Boston, under the existing laws, it would not be possible to have competent clerks do the street and other clerical work that is required of them, and have girls also at work.

About two years ago there was a 7 per cent reduction made in the clerks schedule, and one dollar per day on the street, which has resulted in a reduction of the earnings of the men. The clerks are obliged to pay for extra assistance out of their compensation.

The Street Work.

Comparison with the city of New York or with cities of other states where the laws and labor are entirely different is also unfair. To give an illustration: In New York no bills for real estate are made except on a request from the owner of the property, who must describe the same by street, lot, block or number sufficiently well for the assessors to make the bill, as they do not keep any records of transfers. The ownership of the property is not recorded except on application, the applicant bringing his deed to the Assessing Department to have it done. They do not assess a poll tax, and while the population is seven times that of Boston, and the valuation of the real estate is nearly seven times that of Boston, the personal property taxed is less than double, as is shown by the following figures for 1908:

	New York.
Population	4,442,685
Real Estate		Valuation.
Personal	$6,722,415,789
	435,774,611
Total	$7,158,190,400
Population		Boston.
	618,310
Real Estate		Valuation.
Personal	$1,082,405,300
	242,606,856
Total	$1,325,012,156

Under the present system the Boston assessors, with their clerks, visit every building annually, which gives them the opportunity to see how a man lives, to learn the character of his home, to obtain a record showing whether or not he is the owner, whether he has servants, horses, automobiles, etc., and also to inquire as to his place of business. These facts are all necessary in determining the amount of personal estate or income upon which he shall be taxed.

To divide the responsibility and say that the assessors must accept a list of names taken by the police for taxation purposes we believe is undesirable, and that eventually it would result in lowering the efficiency and standard of a department which should be strengthened and improved, if possible. This plan could not be considered this year even if the Legislature in its wisdom should decide that such a proposition is desirable, therefore we make no further comment, although there are many other reasons which could be given why this proposition is not desirable.

Cost of Assessing Single Polls.

The cost of assessing and collecting single polls as estimated by the commission at $115,000 is excessive and also unfair. The actual expenditure for this work for 1909 was as follows: In the tax books, upon the bills, and in the collector's manuscript (items 2, 3 and 5 of their report) is about $10,409.60; upon the cards used to prepare the consolidated manuscript (item 6), $1,513.15; in the consolidated manuscript (item 7), $1,990.90, making a total of $13,913.20. We make no estimate of the expenditure in the street books (item 1), or upon the bill coupons (item 4), but we feel that this vast difference between the estimate of the Finance Commission and the actual cost of assessing and collecting these polls is due to arbitrary judgment regarding the remaining items.

The Finance Commission states that the name of the single person assessed for a poll is written seven times and has ridiculed this proposition. We find, however, that the same process is used in other places, where the name is written ten times in some instances, and in no place less than six. Where it is written ten times, however, two of the extra writings are occasioned by the making of a list of persons liable to enrollment in the militia, and making a copy for the Registrar of Voters to be used in making up the voting list. In writing such a list seven times in Boston, two of the writings are necessary in preparing the consolidated manuscript.

It is evidently the intention of the commission that the assessors shall use the list of names furnished by the police, which is not a voting list but a list of male residents twenty years of age and upwards. If the Listing Board was to furnish this Board with cards copied from those taken by the police, it would only make another writing by another department, which we believe would be undesirable.

The assessors originally supplied the Election Commissioners with the names from which the voting list was prepared successfully for many years, and in our opinion money could be saved if we performed this work as formerly.

We consider that the taking of the poll on the street is only an incident to the assessment of the person, and that a personal tax frequently follows the person taken on the street for simply a poll tax. The first assistant assessors are empowered to fix a personal tax under $5,000 and investigate all of the persons who in their judgment would be liable for more than a poll tax. Much personal property is secured in this way that might otherwise be lost.

The Finance Commission suggests that the single poll cards can be separated. In answer, the assessors never know what a single poll is until after the rate is declared, as hundreds of thousands of dollars are placed on individuals in Boston just before this rate is determined.

The Finance Commission suggests that from this list the bills and coupons could be made at one operation either by typewriter or by hand. The assessing departments visited had this work done by hand, the same as in Boston. Those familiar with the methods of typewriting and the assessors agree that there would be no economy in doing the work in this manner.

The commission claims that from the same list, at one operation, duplicate sheets could be made, one for the assessors' single poll tax book for the entire city, and one for a duplicate book for the collector.

The Department's Books.

The "single poll" tax book for this department, also the collector's manuscript, which the Finance Commission speaks of as the "duplicate book," are books that are in constant use and that have hard service. The best material is required and it is doubtful that paper of enough stability to withstand the hard usage to which these books are subjected could be used in preparation of a carbon copy.

The Finance Commission says that these sheets could be subsequently bound in book form, thus rendering unnecessary the entry of "single poll" items in the consolidated manuscript, which now contains the list of single poll and personal and real estate assessments, and that the new single poll book would be as useful to those who have settlement claims as the present consolidated manuscript.

To this we reply that the alphabetical list for the collector covering the entire city was in vogue many years and was abandoned some forty years ago as a cumbersome and undesirable proposition. We attach to this report copies of the letter written to the collector and his reply thereto.

The commission also says this book, which they speak of as a "single poll" tax book, could be used by the public and parties who have settlement claims, and that it would be as useful as the present consolidated manuscript. We call your attention to the fact that tax books are behind the rail where they are in constant use by the clerks in making bills for the public. If people looking up settlement cases and the public were deprived of the use of the books they would be greatly inconvenienced. The work of this department would also be seriously hampered if people desiring to consult the same had possession when it was absolutely necessary that they should be used by the department.

The question of doing away with a list of this kind was brought up at the time of a report of the former Finance Commission, and the Board of Assessors omitted writing a list of the single poll tax payers, but it was found so necessary that it was afterwards done, although later than usual.

Regarding the method of handling the single polls, in event of the police list being adopted, and a responsible private company offering to do the work for $1,955, we believe the price is absurdly low. It requires, first of all, the assortment of about 200,000 cards, which, at the lowest estimate, would take twenty men twenty days. After this assortment it would be necessary to examine each of these cards, and to mark the poll tax payers separate from the property tax payers, almost as much work as assorting, before the writing is started. The writing of these names with carbon copies would naturally be slower and would take more time than one writing.

It is important in considering the estimate of a private concern to know whether this work, which they agree to do for a low price, is for one year, or would be a contract for three, five or more years, and, also, whether the work is done as an advertising proposition, thus placing in competition clerks who are men of experience, training and ability with a business house contending for advertising purposes.

We believe that this is not practicable, as our books could not be turned over to any private concern, because they would be wanted by our clerks on work of more importance at the same time. However, this whole proposition is entirely dependent upon legislation.

Use of Real Estate Books.

Regarding our real estate books (which contain the record of all the real estate in Boston, written by our clerks, giving the name of the owner, location, area, value of land per foot, total value of the land, value of the building, and the total valuation of the property), they are constantly in use by the public. There are many serious objections to adopting a system in a public office such as is employed by the Real Estate Exchange, which has a membership of about three hundred. The book used by them is perhaps suitable for their use, as it is consulted mostly by women clerks in that department, who give valuations over the telephone to members of the Exchange.

We believe that a loose leaf book of such a record in a public office is not desirable and that it would not last for five years. In other words, much of it would have to be rewritten and the expense eventually would be greater, and the record would be far inferior to the present one.

The city of Cambridge formerly used a book of the kind in use by the Real Estate Exchange, but has discontinued it owing to the confusion created among the public and the number of complaints made. We consider that with the rough usage given to a book of this kind at our office, it would have to be rewritten at the end of three if not two years, and the change of the index necessary in many wards each year on account of new streets and divisions of estates would add considerable to the expense.

In place of these five-year books for record, if more than one year is considered necessary, we suggest for consideration, although not for adoption, a card system, which would be very expensive to adopt the first year, including the cost of cards and cases to hold them, but would undoubtedly show some slight saving for each succeeding year.

The Dooming Board.

A card system introduced into the work of the Dooming Board about seven years ago has been developed and we are getting good results from the work. These cards are valuable as showing the record of assessment for each person for a period of years, and in every way are satisfactory. The only danger lies in the wrong possession of the cards. The Assessing Department alone should have access to them. They are used exclusively by the officials of the department. If used by the public there would be great danger of loss, as no duplicates are ever made. While the card system for the Dooming Board is satisfactory, we believe that its extension to other parts of the department would be against the best interests of the city, as the Board now gives the public a very much better record than any system of cards yet devised.

The cards have also been used in the preparation of the consolidated manuscript for many years. They are not used as a record, but are used to compile an alphabetical index, each clerk writing the cards for his ward, and they are afterwards brought together in strictly alphabetical order for the index.

We believe that the information given to the Dooming Board by the local assessors is of great value. In this connection we call attention to an abstract from the report of F. R. C. Steele of the firm of Patterson, Teale & Dennis, experts employed by the Finance Commission:

"The principal assessors, along with the first assistant assessors, compose the Dooming Board, which is usually in session from June 16 to August 15, and this Board determines the assessments of personal estates amounting to $5,000 and upwards. We attended a meeting of the Board and were favorably impressed by its careful and systematic work. The principal assessors review the statements of personal property submitted under oath by persons assessable, and in the fall all claims for abatement come before them, and they conduct a hearing for the disputed abatement claims."

We claim that the judgment of forty-six first assistant assessors and seven principals is better than that of a smaller body of men, no matter how competent, and that a more representative judgment is obtained, especially as all of the dooming in other places in this Commonwealth is done on memorandum information. It is also true that a large body of men is not as easily corrupted, and there is naturally less chance of conspiracy.

In the city of Lowell this Board found the assessors and the clerical force composed of able men, but, owing to an investigation made a few years ago, the City Council of that city has failed to appropriate sufficient funds to run the department as it should be. This Board is satisfied that the city of Lowell is losing an income, the amount of which is much larger than would be required to run the department properly.

Taking the city of Lowell as an example, we should say, therefore, that it is a "penny wise and pound foolish policy" to tie the arms of the assessors so that a few dollars may be saved on labor, resulting in many thousands lost by a failure to tax.

In conclusion, we say that, after careful and searching investigation, we are satisfied with the work of this department, and believe that it is not excelled by any city in the country. Instead of "the methods of administration of the department being antiquated," every recognized modern idea that could be reasonably taken has been adopted by the department, and a better and more complete record is made and given to the public than in any city or town in the country. We believe that the people of Boston are entitled to all this consideration.

We also call attention to the fact that the assessors are state officers and are under the supervision of the state authorities. They levy the state tax as well as the city and county tax, and the revenue from this depends upon the efficiency with which the department is conducted. Lack of appropriation to do the work properly would be quite likely to result in more loss to the city than the whole amount of the appropriation.

Respectfully submitted,
for the Board of Assessors,

CHARLES E. FOLSOM,
Secretary.

City of Boston,
Assessing Department,
City Hall, March 2, 1910.

Charles R. Brown, Esq.,
Collector of City of Boston:

Dear Sir,—It is proposed that a list of single polls be made, from cards taken by the police officers on the day of assessment, by assorting these cards alphabetically for the whole city, and that a carbon copy of said list be furnished you in place of the collector's manuscript now furnished.

Will you kindly advise me whether or not this is a feasible proposition as far as it relates to your department, and oblige,

Yours very truly,
CHARLES E. FOLSOM,
Secretary.

City of Boston,
Collecting Department,
City Hall, March 2, 1910.

Mr. Charles E. Folsom,
Secretary of the Board of Assessors,
City Hall, Boston:

Dear Sir,—In answer to your communication of even date in relation to the method of listing single poll taxes, I desire to state that so far as it relates to the Collecting Department, to my mind it is not a feasible proposition, for the reason that, first, you are returning to an antiquated system that was discarded years ago by both the Assessing and Collecting Departments as cumbersome and inadequate; second, as each ward in the city for the purpose of bookkeeping in this department is held as a separate account, and a balance is made at certain intervals during the year, which would be impossible if single polls should be listed as proposed; third, individuals of similar names living in a ward, it would be impossible for the employees of the Collecting Department to identify one from another, and thus bring about a situation of the wrong man being credited with the payment.

In relation to carbon copies of the same I will state that while the law does not stipulate the collector's authority in the matter, as these records are permanent, to be on file for all time for information, I would deem it my duty, as an officer of the city, with its welfare at heart, to oppose such methods, knowing as I do the amount of handling which is necessary in the ordinary transaction of business. There is great danger of a carbon copy becoming obliterated, and the records thereby destroyed.

If it was fully understood that upon these records depends the settlements of individuals applying for aid, either through the Overseers of the Poor, the Soldiers' Relief, the City Hospital and other institutions, and the work necessary to establish those settlements, it would be seen at once that a carbon copy would be wholly inefficient for the service.

Yours respectfully,
CHARLES R. BROWN,
City Collector.

STATEMENT FROM FINANCE COMMISSION.

The following was received:

Boston Finance Commission,
Boston, March 24, 1910.

To the Honorable the City Council of Boston:
Gentlemen,—The commission is in receipt of the communication of the City Council, dated March 23, 1910, requesting the commission to submit to the City Council at the next meeting its reasons in writing for the opinion stated in its communication of March 16. In the said communication of March 16, the commission stated that in its opinion the services of either the Clerk of Committees or City Messenger should be dispensed with, at a saving of $2,500 a year. This statement was a repetition of the statement previously made by the commission in its report to the Mayor and City Council, dated February 18, 1910.

The commission believes that the office of Clerk of Committees is unnecessary and should be abolished, and that the office of City Messenger is necessary and should be maintained. The reasons for the opinion are as follows:

The duties of the City Council have been greatly reduced by sections 9 and 28 of chapter 486 of the Acts of 1909. Under section 9 the power formerly exercised by the Board of Aldermen in the confirmation of officials appointed by the Mayor is to be exercised by the Civil Service Commission. By virtue of section 28 a number of duties of considerable importance, the discharge of which occupied much of the time of the Board of Aldermen, have been transferred to the Board of Street Commissioners. Section 28 reads as follows:

"The jurisdiction now exercised by the board of aldermen concerning the naming of streets, the planting and removal of trees in the public ways, the issue of permits or licenses for coasting, the storage of gasoline, oil, and other inflammable substances or explosive compounds, and the use of the public ways for any permanent or temporary obstruction or projection in, under, or over the same, including the location of conduits, poles and posts for telephone, telegraph, street railway, or illuminating purposes, is hereby vested in the board of street commissioners, to be exercised by said board with the approval in writing of the mayor; and the mayor and city council shall have authority to fix by ordinance the terms by way of cash payment, rent, or otherwise, upon which permits or licenses for the storage of gasoline or oil, or other inflammable substances or explosive compounds, and the construction or use of coal holes, vaults, bay windows, and marquees, in, under, or over the public ways shall be issued."

On account of these reductions the clerical work formerly performed by attendants upon both branches of the City Council, consisting of eighty-eight members, has likewise been greatly reduced. Thus, the Clerk of Committees, who formerly was obliged to attend meetings of all committees of both branches of the City Council, under chapter 13 of the Revised Ordinances of 1898, would, if retained, have to attend the committees of a City Council consisting of nine members only. Under a recent order of the City Council the duty of the Clerk of Committees to issue licenses and badges to minors under section 3 of chapter 13 of the Revised Ordinances of 1898 has been transferred to the City Clerk Department. The other duties of this officer, under said chapter 13, relating to the keeping of records of the committees and a calendar of their meetings, the issuance of notices of such meetings to the members, and the care of the library, can be performed by the City Messenger and his assistant, aided by the members of the City Council, in the manner hereinafter described.

The City Messenger, having been relieved of the care of the City Hall building by the transfer of the force of janitors, etc., to the Public Buildings Department, will under the new system have time to perform additional duties. He and his assistant can attend all the regular meetings of the City Council, issue notices of the meetings of the Council and of its committees, have the custody of the records of committee meetings, keep the calendar thereof, keep the reference library and furnish the members of the Council with such documents as they may require. They can also perform the other duties enumerated in chapter 12 of the Revised Ordinances of 1898 relating to the display of flags, etc. The City Messenger, who under said chapter 12 has assisted of the police assigned for the protection of City Hall, and is also charged with the duty of preserving order in the City Hall, can also act as sergeant-at-arms during the meetings of the City Council.

The City Clerk, under chapter 11 of the Revised Ordinances of 1898, is required to attend all meetings of the Board of Aldermen and to keep records of such meetings. By virtue of the charter amendments of 1909 (chapter 486, section 22), such duties in relation to attendance upon the Board of Aldermen are to be continued with reference to the new City Council. Section 3 of said chapter 11 of the ordinances provides that the assistant City Clerk shall assist the City Clerk in the performance of the duties of his office, and the assistant City Clerk, therefore, in the absence of the City Clerk, could attend the meetings of the Council and keep its records. The Commission assumes that the stenographer who keeps a record of the proceedings of the City Council and of the speeches of its members will continue to be employed.

The commission sees no reason why one member of each committee of the City Council cannot act as clerk of the committee, thereby dispensing with the necessity of maintaining the office of the Clerk of Committees. This practice has been followed successfully by the Massachusetts Legislature, whose duties are as numerous and important as those of the City Council. If it should happen that two or more committees of the City Council should be conducting hearings at the same time, and stenographers are required, which may not occur frequently, it would probably be less expensive to employ outside stenographers at the rates usually paid public stenographers, than to employ a permanent assistant stenographer. There does not seem to the commission to be any necessity, for the present at least, of maintaining an assistant stenographer. The committees of the Massachusetts Legislature do not employ stenographers for committee hearings, except upon extraordinary occasions, and then only when authorized by a vote of both branches of the Legislature.

The commission submits that the service formerly performed by a great number of attendants can now be performed by the following officials:

1. The City Clerk.
2. The Assistant City Clerk.
3. The City Messenger.
4. The Assistant City Messenger.
5. The official stenographer.

The commission does not express any opinion as to whether the present City Messenger or the present Clerk of Committees should be appointed to the office of City Messenger.

Respectfully submitted,

by JOHN A. SULLIVAN, Chairman.

The Clerk proceeded to read the communication, and when he reached the words, "The other duties of this officer, under said chapter 13, relating to the keeping of records of the committees and a calendar of their meetings, the issuance of notices to such meetings to the members, and the care of the library, can be performed by the City Messenger and his assistant, aided by the members of the City Council, in the manner hereinafter described."

Coun. CURLEY said—Mr. President, I move that further reading of the communication be dispensed with.

Coun. KENNY—Mr. President, I trust that that motion will not prevail.

President BALLANTYNE—The Clerk will proceed.

The Clerk finished reading the communication, which was placed on file.

Ordered, That the sum of three hundred thousand dollars be appropriated for the construction of sewerage works, under the provisions of chapter 426 of the Acts of 1897 and chapter 204 of the Acts of 1908; and that to meet the said appropriation the City Treasurer be authorized to issue, from time to time, on the request of the Mayor, bonds of the city to said amount.

(2) Report on message and order referred February 10, for loan of $425,000 for a new ferryboat of improved modern type—that the same ought not to pass.

Councilor Buckley dissents.

Councilor Buckley was not present until later in the meeting.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I was not present at the meeting of the Committee on Finance, but I am informed that the Superintendent of Streets was not there either. I should like to ask the chairman if that is so.

Coun. ATTRIDGE—Mr. President, the Superintendent of Streets was not present at the meeting of the Committee on Finance, but Mr. James Sullivan, the superintendent of the Ferry Division, was.

President BALLANTYNE—The motion having been withdrawn, the motion comes on the acceptance of the report and rejection of the order.

Coun. KENNY—Mr. President, I believe if Coun. Buckley has brought in or wishes to bring in a minority report that we ought to hear it, and I move, therefore, that action upon the matter be postponed until we reconvene after our recess.

Coun. ATTRIDGE—Mr. President, as I understand it, Coun. Buckley did not submit a minority report. He merely directed the clerk to record him as dissenting from the report of the majority of the committee, that is all.

Coun. KENNY'S motion to postpone further action until later in the meeting was carried. (See later in meeting, under "New East Boston Ferryboat.")

INVESTIGATION OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

Coun. CURLEY offered an order—That the Board of Health, through his Honor the Mayor, be requested to investigate the cause of infantile paralysis in Boston, and further take such steps as may be necessary to determine what effect the spraying of trees with arsenate of lead has upon the general health of the children in this city.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, in connection with this order I would like to read an article that appeared yesterday in the Boston American:

"PARALYSIS MENACE TO BOSTON INFANTS.

"Spread of Disease is Alarming as Physicians Hunt for Cure.

"Infantile paralysis is becoming alarmingly prevalent, especially in Massachusetts, and the disease, although fatal only in a small per cent of cases, leaves a large majority of its victims incapacitated or paralyzed for life," said Dr. John Lovett Morse of the Harvard Medical School faculty, in his lecture at the Medical School last evening.

"Infantile paralysis," Dr. Morse said, "is becoming altogether too common. From 1880 to 1884 there were 23 recorded cases, while between 1905 and 1909 there were 6,190. It is increasing especially in Massachusetts. During the epidemic of 1909 there were about 300 cases in Boston, although this number is not abnormal in proportion to the number of infants in this city.

"So far, no vaccine, serum or specific treatment has been discovered for this disease, but I believe scientists are on the verge of such a discovery. That we are close to a new era in our understanding and treatment of the disease seems certain from the discoveries of physicians. That no such discoveries would have been possible if live animals had not been used in the experimentation is equally certain.

"There is still a marked difference of opinion as to whether the disease is contagious. The safer course is for parents to at once remove their children to some other locality if they happen to reside in a district where an epidemic of the disease appears."

In connection with the order I would say that the matter was called to my attention last fall when the spraying of the trees was general throughout the city. A large number of children in the district that I have the honor to represent were affected with infantile paralysis, and the father of one of the children, a man with a scientific turn of mind, in looking about for a possible cause came to the conclusion that it could be traced to the spraying of trees with arsenate of lead. If such is the case, I believe it is the duty of the Board of Health to recommend that some other means be used to prevent the spraying for gypsy moths, because I believe the cure is much worse than the disease. There was a large number of cases of this disease in Boston last year, and if the Public Grounds and Park Departments propose to carry on this work on an even more extensive scale this year than last year—and I understand that such is their purpose—in all probability the spread of infantile paralysis may be greater the present year than it has been in previous years. If some other method can be devised for ridding the city of the gypsy moths—in the event of the Board of Health discovering that infantile paralysis may be traced to the arsenate of lead used in spraying the trees—I think some other means of attacking the moths should be adopted. I sincerely trust that the Board of Health will make such investigation as may determine whether or not the paralysis of children may be traced to the use of the arsenate of lead. A number of the children in the locality from which I come were laid up, made permanent cripples, for from one month to ten months, unable to move their arms or legs, and, according to the reports of the physicians, there were 6,190 such cases in Massachusetts in the five years between 1905 and 1909. During the period from 1880 to 1884 the entire number recorded for the state was but 23. So there is an increase from 23 in the five years from 1880 to 1884, to 6,190, in the five years from 1905 to 1909. It is about time that the Board of Health woke up and tried to discover the trouble, and I sincerely trust that they will investigate and ascertain whether in any way the spraying of trees with arsenate of lead is responsible for the spread of this disease among the children.

The order was passed.

LICENSES.

The President submitted petitions for minors' licenses from twenty-one newsboys, four boot-blacks and three vendors, and asked for the approval of the Board on the same.

Approved by the Board.

EXTENSION OF COMMITTEES' TIME.

President BALLANTYNE—I would call the attention of the various committees to rule 24: "Committees to whom any matter is especially referred shall report within four weeks or ask for further time." I would call the attention of the different committees to the fact that reports will be called for each week hereafter.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, in behalf of the committees of which I am chairman—which committees I don't know—I will respectfully ask that they all be given further time.

President BALLANTYNE—On what matters?

Coun. CURLEY—Such committees as I happen to be chairman of, before whom some business may be pending, as for instance, the Committee on Ordinances.

President BALLANTYNE—Coun. Curley asks further time for the Committee on Ordinances.

The Council voted to grant further time to the Committee on Ordinances on matters before it.

Coun. ATTRIDGE—Mr. President, on behalf of the Committee on Finance I desire to ask further time on the matters now before the committee on the matters not acted upon.

Further time was granted to the Committee on Finance.

Coun. HALE—Mr. President, on behalf of the Committee on Soldiers' Relief I would like to ask further time on certain things now before the committee.

Further time was granted to the Committee on Soldiers' Relief.

Coun. BRAND—Mr. President, on behalf of the Committee on Appropriations I most respectfully ask further time.

Further time was granted to the Committee on Appropriations.

NEW EAST BOSTON FERRYBOAT.

Coun. KENNY—Mr. President, I would like to call up at this point the report of the Committee on Finance in the matter of the proposed new ferryboat for East Boston, which I had assigned until after our recess in the absence of Coun. Buckley. As Coun. Buckley is now here, I would call the matter up.

The report of the Finance Committee (submitted earlier in meeting and postponed), with the accompanying order for loan of $125,000 for new ferryboat, was taken up.

The question came on the acceptance of the report of the committee and the rejection of the order.

Coun. BUCKLEY—Mr. President, I move you, sir, that the matter be referred to the Executive Committee for further consideration, so that the Mayor and the Superintendent of Streets will have a chance to appear and give us the necessary information before we pass on such an important matter.

The report and order were referred to the Executive Committee. (See later in meeting, under "Executive Committee reports.")

STATEMENT FROM CLERK OF COMMITTEES.

Coun. HALE offered an order—That the Clerk of Committees be requested to prepare a written statement as to whether or not the Finance Commission's recommendation in regard to the abolition of his position be adopted.

The order was read a second time, and the question came on its passage.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I feel that the Finance Commission is becoming one great big huge joke, and that the public are now so familiar with facts concerning that commission that it has ceased to be a useful force in the affairs of the city. Its only purpose apparently is to condemn, criticize and suggest improvements for others, while it practices the reverse of what it continually preaches. I don't know what may be revealed by the investigation of the attorney for the Finance Commission, but if the bills as presented by him and paid by the City Treasurer are as I have reason to believe they are, I will pay to have photographs taken of those bills and have them published in every newspaper in Boston.

The order was passed.

STATEMENT FROM CITY MESSENGER.

Coun. HALE offered an order—That the City Messenger be requested to prepare a written statement as to whether or not the Finance Commission's recommendation in regard to the abolition of the office of clerk of committees be adopted; also as to the number of assistant city messengers needed in the performance of his work.

Passed.

PRINTING OF FINANCE COMMISSION'S STATEMENT.

Coun. HALE offered an order—That the report of the Finance Commission in regard to the abolition of the Clerk of Committees position, and the statements of the Clerk of Committees and City Messenger be printed as a public document.

Passed.

Coun. Curley's motion to print the communication from the Assessing Department as a public document was declared lost.

Coun. KENNY—Mr. President, I now move that the action of the Board in ordering the report of the Finance Commission printed as a public document be reconsidered.

Coun. Kenny's motion to reconsider the passage of the order offered by Coun. HALE—to print as a public document the communication from the Finance Commission upon the Clerk of Committees and Messenger Departments, and the statements by the heads of those departments in regard to said communication—was lost, yeas 1, nays 6.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I now move a reconsideration of the vote whereby the Council refused to publish as a public document the report of the Assessing Department on the charges made by the Finance Commission. If the Board sees fit to so vote on it, I will refuse to talk on it.

Coun. HALE—Mr. President, a case of leprosy just came to my attention which is said to have been caused by false hair. The false hair is reported to have come from the head of a Chinese leper. I think it is a very serious thing, if true, that the women of Boston cannot buy false hair without being apt to become lepers. I would like to have that matter investigated.

The order was passed.

On motion of Coun. KENNY, reconsideration of all action taken to-day was refused.

CITIES HAVING BOTH MUNICIPAL AND PRIVATE WATER PLANTS.

Will you please inform me if you know of any cities in which there are both municipal and private water plants and the names of any such cities?

J. DAVIS REED,
Mayor, Portsmouth, Va.

Large cities, such as New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Pittsburg, Indianapolis, Camden, Austin, Niagara Falls, have both municipal and private plants, on account of the annexation of adjoining small towns.

The following cities and towns are reported to have two or more water plants, one of which is under municipal ownership: Mobile, Ala.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Pueblo, Col.; Petersburg, W. Va.; Shenandoah, Millvale, Penn.; Gloversville, N. Y.; Nome, Alaska; East Providence, R. I.; Tyler, Tex.; Santa Rosa, Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz, Cal.; Montpelier, St. Johnsbury, Vt.; Grand Haven, Niles, Mich.; Cherryvale, Kan.; Montpelier, Ind.

There are also a number of places, most of them in New Jersey, where the water is supplied by a company and is distributed by the city. And there are other cities which own all or part of the waterworks plant and lease it to an operating company.

The latest report giving full details is in the "Municipal Year Book" for 1902 ($4), and there are doubtless some changes in the list since that date.—Municipal Engineering.

CONTRACTS AWARDED.

The following contracts for work, materials and supplies have been awarded with the approval of the Mayor. Those awarded without public advertisement are specially indicated. Week ending April 7, 1910:

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

On April 4 the Mayor approved a contract with the Bertelsen & Petersen Engineering Company for building a new fireboat, they being the only bidders, as indicated in the following communication from the Fire Commissioner.

HEADQUARTERS FIRE DEPARTMENT,
BRISTOL STREET, BOSTON,
March 25, 1910.

HON. JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor:

SIR,—Bids for building a new fireboat were advertised for in the City Record on December 10, 1909, and January 18, 1910. On each occasion the Bertelsen & Petersen Engineering Company of East Boston were the only bidders, their first bid being $55,874 and the second bid $54,500.

I respectfully ask permission to award the bid to the Bertelsen & Petersen Engineering Company for $54,500.

Respectfully,

S. D. PARKER,
Fire Commissioner.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT.

On April 4 the Mayor approved a contract with the Standard Oil Company, of New York, for furnishing 200,000 gallons of emulsion oil and 200,000 gallons of emulsified oil. They having agreed to meet their prices of last year, i. e., $3\frac{3}{8}$ cents per gallon for emulsion oil and $4\frac{5}{8}$ cents for emulsified oil, as per the representation of the superintendent that—"I have awarded the contract for the oil to the Standard Oil Company, subject to your approval, that company agreeing to meet their prices of last year and their oil being the only one of the three that has stood the analysis and which meets the requirements called for in the specifications."

Bids for these goods were opened March 16, and were as follows:

	Emulsion Oil per Gallon.	Emulsified Oil per Gallon.
Standard Oil Company, of New York.....	$0 04	$0 05
Indian Refining Com- pany.....	03 $\frac{3}{8}$	04 $\frac{5}{8}$
Gulf Refining Company	03 $\frac{1}{2}$	04

WATER DEPARTMENT.

On April 4 the Mayor approved a contract with the Hersey Manufacturing Company for furnishing water meters. Bids for these goods were publicly advertised February 28, 1910, the Hersey Manufacturing Company being the second lowest bidder. All bids were rejected, and the contract awarded to the Hersey Company, on the recommendation of the Water Commissioner, as contained in the following letter:

OFFICE OF THE WATER COMMISSIONER,
BOSTON, March 30, 1910.

HON. JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor:

DEAR SIR,—On February 28, 1910, the Boston Water Department received bids as shown below, for furnishing fifty-five hundred (5,500) $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch disc meters, six hundred (600) $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch disc meters, two hundred (200) 1-inch disc meters and fifty (50) $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch disc meters. After the bids were opened they were taken under advisement and have since been rejected. The bids were rejected because the lowest bidder submitted a price on a meter which had never been used in Boston. The lowest bid received at that time was from the Pittsburg Meter Company for their "Type E" meter at the following prices:

$\frac{3}{8}$ -inch meters.....	\$5 00 per meter.
$\frac{1}{2}$ -inch meters.....	7 60 per meter.
1-inch meters.....	10 00 per meter.
$1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch meters.....	19 50 per meter.

The Hersey Manufacturing Company, of South Boston, was the second lowest bidder, as follows:

$\frac{3}{8}$ -inch meters.....	\$5 20 per meter.
$\frac{1}{2}$ -inch meters.....	7 80 per meter.
1-inch meters.....	10 40 per meter.
$1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch meters.....	19 50 per meter.

The Hersey Manufacturing Company, having been consulted about furnishing water meters, has agreed that if a contract was made with their concern, without publicly advertising, they would sell the required number of meters at the prices submitted by the lowest bidders. I further desire to say that the Hersey Manufacturing Company's meters have always given satisfaction to the Water Department, that the concern is a local one, and that the prices are certainly advantageous to the City of Boston, for last year when bids were opened for furnishing the Water Department with meters, the Hersey Manufacturing Company was the lowest bidder at the following prices:

	1909.	1910.
$\frac{3}{8}$ -inch disc meters, each..	\$5 60	\$5 00
$\frac{1}{2}$ -inch disc meters, each..	8 40	7 60
1-inch disc meters, each..	11 20	10 00
$1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch disc meters, each..	*	19 50

* Not advertised.

It can readily be seen that in making a contract with the Hersey Manufacturing Company a saving of 60 cents will be made on each $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch meter, 80 cents on each $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch meter, and \$1.20 on each 1-inch meter, as compared with our contract of last year.

I therefore respectfully ask for authority to purchase, without advertising, fifty-five hundred (5,500) $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch disc meters, six hundred (600) $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch disc meters, two hundred (200) 1-inch disc meters and fifty (50) $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch disc meters, at the following prices:

$\frac{3}{8}$ -inch meters.....	\$5 00 per meter.
$\frac{1}{2}$ -inch meters.....	7 60 per meter.
1-inch meters.....	10 00 per meter.
$1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch meters.....	19 50 per meter.

The total amount of the contract which I desire to make amounts to $35,035.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM E. HANNAN,
Water Commissioner.

(See canvass of bids, next column.)

WITHOUT ADVERTISING.

PARK DEPARTMENT.

On April 7 the Mayor, in view of the representations made in the following letter from the Park Commissioners, approved a contract with J. H. MacAlman for the purchase of a Columbia motor car without advertising.

PARK DEPARTMENT.

Boston, March 29, 1910.

HON. JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor,
City Hall, Boston:

DEAR SIR—Our Board requests your approval to the making of a contract, without advertising, for the purchase of a Columbia automobile for the use of our assistant superintendent, which would greatly facilitate the work of the department.

The machines offered in the market are of such varied merit that it would seem useless to advertise; besides our experience with Columbia cars leads us to purchase another car of this make rather than to experiment with another machine, while repairs would be facilitated.

The contract which we wish to make will call for a Columbia car for $2,475.

Respectfully,

ROBERT S. PEABODY,
Chairman.

ADDITIONS AND ALLOWANCES TO CONTRACTS.

SCHOOLHOUSE DEPARTMENT.

On April 1 the Mayor approved a deduction on the contract with Whiton & Haynes Co., for the construction of the William Lloyd Garrison School, on account of the omission of water-closets, in boys' and girls' toilets, also urinal, amounting to $33; omitting slate base in corridors, etc., $200; and omitting brick paving and substitution of grass plot, $100. Deduction, $333. Contract price, $55,600. Total deductions, $4,518. Contract as standing, $51,082.

On April 1 the Mayor approved a deduction on the contract with William Crane for building addition to Girls' High School, for savings made on account of changes in the plans and specifications as per architect's order of March 24, amounting to $9,175. Contract price, $105,880. Total deductions, $9,175. Contract as standing, $96,705.

CONTRACT FOR SIDEWALKS.

On April 6 the Mayor granted to the Superintendent of Streets authority to award a contract for the construction of artificial stone sidewalks in the public streets of Boston to Robert Edgar, Jr., without advertising, the estimated amount for labor and materials to be furnished by the contractor being over $2,000.

"The contractors who lay artificial stone sidewalks furnish a surety company guarantee bond for maintaining the work for a period of five (5) years to the satisfaction of the Superintendent of Streets. The amount paid by the city toward the cost of constructing these sidewalks is a fixed one (6 cents per square foot), equal to one-half the cost of a brick sidewalk, which the city assumes as its share of the cost of a new sidewalk. The list submitted for your approval includes all reputable companies known by this department who desire such a contract with the city."

"(Signed) GUY C. EMERSON,
Superintendent of Streets."

OPINION OF CORPORATION COUNSEL.

CITY OF BOSTON.

LAW DEPARTMENT, March 30, 1910.

To the Mayor of Boston:

DEAR SIR,—Although I was and am of the opinion that the appointment of Election Commissioners does not require to be made under the provisions of section 9 of chapter 486 of the Acts of 1909, and that the words "except the election commissioners, who shall remain subject to the provisions of existing laws," are applicable to all of the provisions of the last sentence of said section as well as to the last two lines as claimed by Mr. Sullivan, yet there is a doubt arising from the peculiar wording of this section and it is desirable that no legal questions should be raised concerning such important matters as the preparation of the voting lists and jury lists.

I would recommend, therefore, in order to make certain that no legal question should be raised tending to throw doubt upon our jury lists and our elections, that Mr. Minton should also receive the certificate from the Civil Service Commission as well as your appointment under the Statute of 1907. I would recommend writing a letter to the Civil Service Commission stating that although you believe in accordance with the opinion of the Corporation Counsel, that the appointment you have made of Mr. Minton is a legal one, yet in order to avoid any possible legal complications you send the following certificate of appointment:

I appoint John M. Minton to the position of Election Commissioner of the City of Boston, and I certify that in my opinion he is a person specially fitted by education, training or experience to perform the duties of said office and that I make the appointment solely in the interest of the city.

Mr. Minton is a lawyer, a graduate of Harvard University, and has been for eight years one of the Election Commissioners of the City of Boston.

Yours respectfully,

THOMAS M. BABSON,
Corporation Counsel.

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor:

Sir,—I have been directed by the trustees to reply to the inclosed communication that the City Hospital trustees do not consider it advisable to inclose the corridors at the South Department of the Boston City Hospital, the reason being that the closing of the corridors would interfere with the proper ventilation of the hospital.

I remain, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JOHN H. MCCOLLOM, Superintendent.

City of Boston,

Bath Department, 64 Pemberton Square,

April 2, 1910.

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor of Boston:

Sir,—I beg leave to call your attention to the appropriation of $35,000, made by the City Council of 1909, for the L Street Bath. Owing to a clerical error, the appropriation as it now stands would have to be expended solely on the women's side of said bathing establishment, whereas it was intended to cover improvements in the entire plant. To the end that the appropriation may be expended as originally intended, I would urge on your Honor and the City Council the advisability of amending the order so as to meet the requirements as outlined above.

Very truly yours,

JOSEPH B. MACCABE, Chairman.

Referred to the Committee on Finance.

Ordered, That the City Auditor be and is hereby authorized to transfer the sum of $35,000 from the appropriation for "L Street Bath, addition for women," to an appropriation for "L Street Bath, additions, alterations and repairs."

NURSES FOR PATIENTS.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, April 2, 1910.

To the City Council:

I forward herewith for your information two communications, from Dr. Durgin, the Chairman of the Board of Health, and Mrs. James G. Mumford, of the Boston District Nursing Association, recommending the employment of additional nurses for the care and instruction of patients afflicted with contagious diseases. If any or all of these nurses are employed, it will be necessary to increase the appropriation for the Health Department, in accordance with the scale of compensation recommended by the Chairman of the Board of Health.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

Health Department,

Boston, March 30, 1910.

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald,

Mayor of Boston:

Dear Sir,—The Board of Health begs to say that it has had, without expense to the city, the services of two nurses for several months, whose duties have been to secure and preserve proper isolation of cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria in the homes where such cases could not be removed to the hospital. This service, which has been supported by private funds, is now coming to an end unless continued at the expense of the city. The Board of Health is unable to do this work with its present force, and begs that it may have his Honor's approval for securing three nurses, one for tuberculosis, one for scarlet fever and one for diphtheria. The instruction and surveillance by these nurses in the homes of the patients will be invaluable in preventing the spread of contagion among the uneducated and careless people.

The salaries and incidental expenses of these nurses are $75 per month for wages and $35 per month for car fares, uniforms, laundry work and disinfection.

Very respectfully yours,

SAMUEL H. DURGIN, Chairman.

Tel. No. 123 Back Bay.

29 Commonwealth avenue, Boston,

March 25, 1910.

Dear Mr. Leahy,—Referring to our telephone conversation of this morning, allow me to put before you the following statement of facts and figures concerning the work of the contagious nurses supplied to the Board of Health by the Instructive District Nursing Association.

Some two months ago the Nursing Association began to supply nurses to the Board of Health, in order to supplement the work of the health officers of the city. The functions of these nurses have been three, and have been found to be of great value:

1. The nurses have visited, so far as possible, the cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria which have been reported to the Board of Health, and have instructed the families of the patients in the care and isolation of the patients. It develops that hitherto the isolation of these patients has been extremely inefficient or negligible.

2. The nurses have visited the infected houses, after fumigation by the Board of Health, in order to make certain that no cases of contagious disease have developed subsequently.

3. The nurses have kept an oversight of all suspected cases, that is, cases from whom cultures for study have been taken. Such cases have, therefore, been kept under proper quarantine until the question of the development of contagion was determined.

The results of this work have been, briefly, as follows: Two nurses only have been supplied, on account of lack of funds to furnish the required number—four or more. For the nine weeks ending March 25, 1910,—diphtheria cases visited, 273; scarlet fever cases visited, 357. Of these cases 95 per cent were school children. It was found that few of the households visited were keeping a proper quarantine, and that 60 per cent were keeping no quarantine whatever. The territory visited included the congested districts in the North, West and South Ends of Boston and in Charlestown.

After the work had been taken well in hand and become organized it was found that but half of the necessary work could be done, on account of lack of time and sufficient number of workers.

The spread of contagion was found to take place most commonly through milk bottles, circulating library books, children's school books, family pets, improper lavatory arrangements and constant intercourse with neighbors and tradesmen.

The Instructive District Nursing Association, through its agents and managers, has kept in close touch with this work of the contagious nurses, and believes, as do the health officers of the city, that the work is extremely valuable and important; that it should not be given up. Unfortunately, the appropriations made by the Nursing Association for the work are now exhausted, and the nurses must be withdrawn from service, unless further appropriations are forthcoming. Under the circumstances, the Nursing Association does not feel able to advance the money. We, therefore, appeal to the Mayor to have the work of contagious nurses continued by the city.

The cost to the association hitherto has been $110 per month, per nurse.

Very truly yours,

HELEN MUMFORD.

CLERK OF COMMITTEES' WORK.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Clerk of Committees Department.

City Hall, April 4, 1910.

To the City Council:

Gentlemen,—I am requested by your order of March 28 to make a statement as to whether or not the Finance Commission's recommendation in regard to the abolition of the office of Clerk of Committees should be adopted.

In reply I will say that a recommendation made without the slightest investigation as to the amount or character of the work formerly performed by the Clerk of Committees Department, or now performed by the Clerk of Committees, is hardly worthy of serious consideration.

While it is true that the charter amendments reduced to some extent the powers of the City Council, the reduction is by no means so great as to justify the assumption that work formerly requiring four employees in the Clerk of Committees Department and six employees in the City Messenger Department can now be performed by the City Messenger and one assistant.

even though the confirmation of appointments, with which neither the Clerk of Committees nor the City Messenger had any connection, has been turned over to the Civil Service Commission.

For example, in 1908, in the five weeks immediately following the appointment of committees, there were thirty-eight committee meetings; in 1909, there were thirty-nine meetings, and this year in the corresponding period, there have been thirty-seven meetings, including those of the Committee on Claims, whose work alone is sufficient to require practically all the time of one clerk.

The present Clerk of Committees has endeavored to perform his duties to the best of his ability, although it must be evident to any one familiar with the City Government that it is impossible for one man to do the work of the Clerk of Committees Department or of the City Messenger Department.

However, the members of the City Council are the ones to determine what officials they require, and those who are most familiar with the work of the City Council are the ones who are the least likely to underrate its importance.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. DEVER,
Clerk of Committees.

Ordered printed as a public document and placed on file.

WORK OF CITY MESSENGER.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

City Messenger Department.

To the Honorable the City Council of Boston:

Gentlemen,—In compliance with your order of March 28, 1910, "That the City Messenger be requested to prepare a written statement as to whether or not the Finance Commission's recommendation in regard to the abolition of the office of Clerk of Committees be adopted; also as to the number of Assistant City Messengers needed in the performance of his work," I submit the following, and if, in doing so, the suggestion of Priscilla to John Alden presents itself to me, I trust I may be pardoned if I apply it. Therefore I shall comply with the latter part of the above order first, and in so doing shall endeavor to demonstrate by enumerating, in detail, the duties of the City Messenger, the necessity for the two assistants I recently personally requested of the Executive Committee of your honorable body.

The general duties of the City Messenger are defined in your order of February 21, 1910, which is as follows:

Ordered, "That the City Messenger, already elected by the City Council, shall have the care, custody and distribution of all documents, pamphlets and books printed for the City Council, and of all such documents, pamphlets and books formerly in charge of the City Messenger; shall attend all meetings of the City Council and committees thereof; shall, under the direction of the presiding officer, have the supervision of such chambers and rooms as may be assigned for the use of the City Council or any committee thereof; and shall perform all services required of him by the Mayor, the City Council and any committee thereof, for the conduct of their affairs; shall have the charge of all regular or special details of police for the preservation of order in City Hall, and may spend such money as may be necessary for the performance of his duties, subject to the approval of the City Council, such money to be paid from the appropriation for City Council, Incidental Expenses."

The care, custody and distribution of the documents, etc., occupy an important place in the duties of the City Messenger. In the office of the City Messenger, in compartments made for them, are the minutes of the meetings of the City Council for the present and the preceding year. When received a certain number, formerly two hundred, are set aside, sent to the document room in the basement, and held there until the close of the year, when they are sent to the bindery. When returned bound they are distributed as directed by a vote of the Printing Committee, usually in the following way: A copy is sent to each member of the City Council, one to each department, one to each of the ex-mayors, and several to the State and Public Libraries, the Mayor, etc. In the office are also compartments for the unbound documents of the present and previous year. We have in the document room packages containing a certain number of each of these documents as they come from the press, that is, in sheet form, and these are held until the end of the year, then sent to the bindery, and when returned bound are addressed and sent out by us to the places designated by vote of the Committee on Printing. These documents are known as the bound volumes of the City Documents. These include all documents ordered printed by the City Council and the department reports.

In addition to these are such publications as the "Revised Ordinances," "The Statutes relating to Boston," "The Municipal Register," "The Rapid Transit Commission's Report," "Report of Special Commission on the Disposal of Garbage," "Tenement House Commission's Report," "City Employees' Book," publication entitled "Brighton Day," "Report of Commission on Height of Buildings," also "Dorchester Day Celebration," "Finance Commission's Report," "Closing Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen," these and many others.

I am about to receive 1,500 copies of a book entitled "List of Streets," 1,000 of which will be on sale in the office.

The documents in the office are for public distribution, as are most of the books. All are sent when received to the City Council and departments. All of the above mentioned books, and many others, are done up by us in packages and sent as directed by the Committee on Printing. For instance, within a few days, I received 590 "Dorchester Day Books," and have sent them as directed by the committee. A considerable amount of time is of necessity consumed in doing up packages, addressing and sending these books and documents, as well as caring for them.

In the document room in the basement and in the Old Court House are 4,865 boxes of documents containing 6,434 different kinds of documents. They date from 1824 to 1910 (all are indexed), and can be procured upon application until the supply reaches a single document of each kind. Daily requests are made by individuals, not only for current issues of the city publications but for files of back reports for five, ten and even twenty years; many similar requests are received from libraries and cities all over the country, hence many trips to the document room must be made. Last year the City Messenger's office sold 301 copies of the Revised Ordinances, at a dollar each, and also 183 copies of the Codifications of the Statutes relating to Boston, compiled by Mr. Babson, for one dollar each.

Although the Legislature is in session but five or six months two men are constantly employed in the document room, one in charge, the other an assistant, caring for the Legislative documents only; the other documents, such as the Agricultural Reports, etc., are cared for by the Secretary of State.

In relation to my duties in immediate connection with the Mayor and City Council, I would say that I am in attendance at the regular meetings on Mondays and at any and all special meetings of the Council or any of its committees, such as Appropriations, Finance, Claims, etc., also at all public hearings held in the Council Chamber. Since Inauguration Day, February 7, 1910, the Mayor and Council have held eight night meetings in different sections of the city, the Committee on Appropriations, ten night meetings in City Hall, the Evacuation Day Committee of the South Boston Citizen's Association held four night meetings, to which I had been assigned; none of these meetings adjourned earlier than 10 o'clock and many of them much later. In addition to these are numerous hearings in the Council Chamber, as, for instance, the one conducted by the Mayor, in connection with the sale of the fire house on Mason street, by the Street Commissioners in relation to wooden pavements in certain down-town streets, by the Park Commissioners in relation to the planting of trees on Commonwealth avenue, by the Mayor in relation to Moving Picture Theatres, and others. These are public hearings, and it is my duty to look after the comfort of the citizens attending them and to preserve order in and about the meeting.

My duties in the regular and in the committee meetings consists of my personal attendance, in the delivering of the orders of the members, the supplying of necessary documents, stationery, etc., attendance on the Mayor when drawing jurors, and such service as may be required by the members in relation to matters pertaining to various departments, etc.

The City Messenger is given under the direction of the President the supervision of such chambers and rooms as may be assigned for the use of the City Council. The duties are to attend the delivery of the mail of the City Council, the filing of documents and minutes on the desks of the members, supplying stationery and ink and seeing that the rooms are kept in proper condition. When the new chamber and committee rooms are completed the care will be greater.

The City Messenger is ordered to "Perform all services required of him by the Mayor, City Council and any committee thereof, for the conduct of their affairs."

Among those duties are attendance upon the Mayor at reviewing parades. This necessitates acquiring information as to time, place, etc., and the ordering of the erection of reviewing stands, ropes, etc. In recent years holidays have been amongst my busiest days, complying with requests and attending to various matters in connection with the public events in different sections of the city. The office has in the past on occasions looked after the comfort of the city's guests. This is eliminated to some extent now, although within a week a delegation of over 300 from Toronto visited City Hall, and the Mayor requested the City Messenger to aid them in their visit to the State House and Library. In times of great calamities, such as fires and floods, when the city has given aid in the form of food, clothing, bedding, etc., the City Messenger's office has rendered very valuable assistance in the handling and forwarding the supplies, notably in the case of the Chelsea fire. For years, a fire-alarm tapper has been in the office, that we may be notified at any time of a great fire. The displaying of flags on certain days prescribed by ordinances, the care of the flags and flagstaffs, the roping off of the streets, Common and public grounds for parades, drills and other public events, such as fireworks, races, athletic games, etc., are also among his duties. The receiving of election returns, State and City, have been performed by him. The preparation and keeping of a directory of persons employed in City Hall for the use of the office and letter carriers.

The City Messenger's office is also in a great degree an information bureau. All kinds of inquiries are made in person and by telephone in relation to departments—from their location to their respective duties. The incidental expenses attending the performance of all these duties assigned to the City Messenger include a variety of small matters, but require as careful book-keeping as if larger, and take considerable time. These facts are mentioned to give an idea of the variety of the work the City Messenger is called upon to perform.

The preservation of order in City Hall requires the assignment of policemen to duty at hearings, etc. All these duties, previously mentioned, require time and cannot be performed in rotation, nor can they be properly performed by two persons. For instance, if a person desired a document of a few years back, and called for it between the hours of twelve and two o'clock any day (if an hour is to be allowed for meals), it would be impossible to accommodate him without leaving the office unattended while the person in charge went to the document room to procure the document wanted. The same condition would prevail on Monday afternoon, when the City Council is in session; on Thursday, when the Committee on Claims meet; whenever there is a public hearing in the Council Chamber, or when there is a committee meeting; when the City Messenger is attending a review, or looking after the matter of roping the streets, or when he is for any reason absent from the office. Under any and all of these conditions the office must be left without someone in charge, to the disadvantage of the next person, whether a member of the City Council, representative of a department, or others, having business with the office at the same time. If, as it is often the case, a number of documents are desired, the delay is greater.

Some of the afternoon meetings or hearings have been prolonged to such an extent that by the time the documents, stationery, etc., were arranged for the evening meetings, there was hardly sufficient time left to procure a lunch before the evening meeting began. I wish to say that I have absolutely no complaint to make as to the number of hours I may be on duty, and still that may not be understood. For example, I have been on duty twenty-two nights since February 7, that is, twenty-two of our forty-two nights of the working days of that time.

The Finance Commission suggests that because of the fact that the janitor service has been transferred, the City Messenger with one assistant can find time for the performance of other new duties. The fact is, that when the janitor service was included in my department, I had five assistants to aid me in the work. The janitors were well organized, and required little service from the office with the exception of the bookkeeping. With the remaining duties, as numerous as they are, it is utterly impossible to do the work as it should be done without at least two assistants. At present, there are days when neither Mr. Silloway (who is temporarily assisting me) nor myself can find time for lunch until it is too late to go.

The Finance Commission, while recognizing the necessity for the office, does not fully understand the amount of work involved in the fulfillment of the duties assigned it. It is impossible for anyone not intimately connected with it to do so. The hours of duty are so uncertain, and the work so varied in its nature, demanding the presence of some one in so many different places, often at one and the same time, that it is not fair to judge it by ordinary office standards where purely clerical work is required. While to a casual observer it might appear that the City Messenger and one assistant were able to perform all the duties required, to one who is thoroughly acquainted with the office, and the multiplicity of calls made upon it for service of all kinds (many of which I have endeavored to explain in detail), it is evident that the work cannot be properly done by two persons.

Having, therefore, clearly demonstrated that two assistants are at present necessary, it is apparent that under these conditions it would be impossible for the City Messenger to assume even the few additional duties of the Clerk of Committees, recommended to be transferred to him in the report of the Finance Commission on March 28, 1910, without additional assistants. In view of these facts, my opinion in relation to the Finance Commission's recommendation concerning the abolition of the position of Clerk of Committees is that, in so far as my office is concerned, it should not be adopted, and I assume that it is in this regard that my opinion is requested or desired by the City Council.

Very truly yours,

EDWARD J. LEARY.

Ordered printed as a public document and placed on file.

Coun. COLLINS—Mr. President, I think it is due to the Council to explain that this merely contemplates expending an unexpended balance of $1,317 for this purpose. One of these bath houses in the storm of last year was carried out to sea, and the order contemplates the expenditure of this money for the purpose of building a new bath house.

The order was read once and passed, yeas 9.

NEPONSET PLAYGROUND, FILLING AND GRADING.

Coun. CURLEY offered an order—That the Committee on Finance be requested to include in the loan bill the sum of $10,000 for filling and grading Neponset Playground.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I would like to say just a word on this matter. The Neponset Playground site was purchased by the city a number of years ago and is below the high water level in that section of the city, so that when we have extreme high tide the water gets on to the playground so that it is impossible to use it for baseball. I saw Mr. Clarke, the secretary of the Park Commission, who runs the Park Department, and he informed me that it would be necessary to raise the ground at least two to three feet, and that in all probability it would cost in the vicinity of $10,000 to grade the playground out in Neponset. I am informed that one of the large corporations is to-day and has been for the past year carrying on the work of reclaiming marsh land in that section and that they stand prepared to-day to furnish all the filling the city may require for 10 cents a load. I have put the figure at $10,000, not because I think that amount is necessary, but that there may be sufficient money there to do this work and to provide other improvements that will be necessary. That playground represents on the part of the city an expenditure of probably from $60,000 to $70,000, and it is not available for use more than about three months in the year. It is gradually becoming one of the most congested portions of my congressional district, with the possible exception of South Boston, and consequently I am interested. I sincerely trust that the chairman of the Committee on Finance will call a meeting at the earliest possible date and have this matter forcibly brought to the attention of the Park Commission.

The order was referred to the Committee on Finance.

PICTURES OF COUNCIL PRESIDENTS.

Coun. CURLEY offered an order—That the City Clerk be authorized to procure photographs of cabinet size of the presidents of the Common Council from 1881 to 1909, inclusive, and provide a suitable frame for the same, the expense of the same to be charged to the appropriation for City Council, incidental expenses.

Passed.

THEATER AND MOVING PICTURE ADVERTISEMENTS.

Coun. HALE offered an order—That the President appoint a special committee to investigate the advertisements of Boston theaters and moving picture shows which have been inserted in the Republic from February 7 to date, and their relation, if any, to the granting of licenses by the Mayor to said theaters and moving picture shows.

The question came on giving the order a second reading.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I desire to move a little amendment to that order, adding at the end, "and that the committee further investigate all advertisements published in the Commercial Bulletin, during the time that Curtis Guild, Jr., served as Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The question came on the adoption of the amendment.

Coun. (Curley's amendment was declared lost. Coun. CURLEY doubted the vote and asked for the yeas and nays.

The amendment was rejected, yeas 2, nays 6:

Yeas—Coun. Buckley, Curley—2.

Nays—Coun. Attridge, Ballantyne, Collins, Hale, Kenny, McDonald—6.

The question came on assignment for one week.

Coun. Collins's motion to especially assign to the next meeting was declared carried. Coun. CURLEY doubted the vote and asked for the yeas and nays.

The order was assigned to the next meeting, yeas 6, nays 2:

Yeas—Coun. Attridge, Ballantyne, Collins, Hale, Kenny, McDonald—6.

Nays—Buckley, Curley—2.

CITY MESSENGER DEPARTMENT.

Coun. BUCKLEY offered the following:

City of Boston.

In the Year Nineteen Hundred and Ten.

An Ordinance Establishing a City Messenger Department and Defining the Duties of City Messenger.

Be it ordained by the City Council of Boston, as follows:

Section 1. There shall be elected annually by vote of the City Council a City Messenger to serve for the remainder of the municipal year in which he is elected, and until his successor is elected and qualified, who shall have charge of the City Messenger Department; said City Messenger shall attend all meetings of the City Council and its committees, and shall perform all services required of him by the Mayor, the City Council or any committee thereof; said City Messenger shall, under such rules and regulations as the City Council or its committees may from time to time prescribe, have the care, custody and distribution of all documents, pamphlets, books or printed proceedings printed for the City Council, and of all such documents, pamphlets, books or printed proceedings formerly in charge of the City Messenger. Said City Messenger shall, under the direction of the presiding officer of the City Council, have the supervision of such chambers or rooms as may be assigned for the use of the City Council and its committees thereof; said City Messenger shall furnish to the public information relative to the locations of and the several duties pertaining to the different departments; said City Messenger shall have charge of all regular or special details of police that may be assigned to City Hall for the preservation of order therein; said City Messenger shall appoint an assistant messenger, who shall assist him in the performance of the duties of his office and discharge the duties of the City Messenger when that officer is absent, or when there is a vacancy in the office, and such other assistants as may be necessary in carrying on the work of the department.

Before the Clerk had read the ordinance Coun. BUCKLEY moved that the reading be dispensed with; declared carried.

The Ordinance was declared referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

Coun. HALE—Mr. President, isn't it out of order to refer an ordinance to a committee without reading it first?

President BALLANTYNE—It was at the request of the councilor who offered the ordinance, and there was no objection to it.

Coun. HALE—Well, Mr. President, I object, unless it is a long one.

Coun. CURLEY—I rise to a point of order, Mr. President. The matter having been disposed of, objection is not in order at this time.

President BALLANTYNE—The gentleman might move reconsideration.

Coun. HALE waived his objection, and the ordinance stood referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

PUBLIC LANDING, JEFFRIES POINT.

Coun. ATTRIDGE offered an order—That the Superintendent of Streets, through his Honor the Mayor, be requested to re-establish the public landing at Jeffries Point, East Boston. Passed.

CONSTRUCTION OF SOUTHAMPTON STREET.

Coun. CURLEY offered an order—That the Board of Street Commissioners, through his Honor the Mayor, be requested to order the construction of Southampton street, Ward 17, in accordance with construction plans, now on file in the office of said Board.

The question came on giving the order a second reading.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I would say that this order was introduced in response to a suggestion in a veto by his Honor the Mayor of an order for a loan for the construction and laying out of Southampton street. Arrangements have been made between various civic societies and the Boston Elevated Railway to run a line of cars over Southampton street. The Boston Elevated Railway Company, through its president, Mr. Bancroft, has signified its willingness to stand its proportion of the expense in connection with the laying out of this highway, some $32,000. The proposed improvement of Southampton street is for the benefit of not only the residents of Roxbury, but of South Boston, Cambridge, and in fact all sections. It will provide a direct route between Harvard Square and City Point. Nevertheless, the order has been turned down, and this order is introduced to-day, in accordance with the request of his Honor the Mayor.

The order was passed.

GENERAL RECONSIDERATION.

Coun. McDONALD moved a general reconsideration on all matters acted on at the meeting, hoping that the same would not prevail. Lost.

A MARVELLOUS MAP.

One of the most wonderful and costly maps that have ever been made is the great map of the County of London, now being compiled by London county council surveyors. This map has been fifteen years in the making, and has cost the enormous sum of £16,000. Finished and laid out with all its sections in order, the map measures rather more than 30 feet wide and over 20 feet from top to bottom. For convenience in handling it will be bound in books. From Stannford Hill in the north to Lower Streatham in the south, and from Plumstead in the east to Putney in the west, it indicates every house, shop and piece of property. The idea of this map first of all came into being in 1894, and £13,000 or £14,000 was then thought to be a large enough sum to cover all expenses in connection with it; but this afterwards proved insufficient.

FINANCE COMMISSION.

Boston, April 1, 1910.

To the Honorable the Committee on Cities:

GENTLEMEN,—Your honorable committee has under consideration House Bill No. 441, which authorizes the City of Boston to incur additional indebtedness for the purpose of constructing and furnishing additional elementary school accommodations, and acquiring land as sites therefor. The bill provides, in effect, that the city shall be given authority to issue within the debt limit bonds of the city to the amount deemed necessary by the School Committee, but not exceeding $1,000,000 for the year 1910, $1,000,000 in the year 1911, and $500,000 in the year 1912, a total of $2,500,000 in three years. The commission is informed that since the introduction of the bill the Mayor of the city and the Chairman of the School Committee have agreed that the Legislature shall be requested to authorize only $1,500,000 of bonds, $500,000 to be issued in the present year, and the same amount in each of the two years next succeeding. If this authority is granted the School Committee will have available during the next three years, for the purpose in question, $2,000,000 of borrowed money—$1,500,000 as the proceeds of bonds issued under this act, and $1,500,000 issued under section 2 of chapter 450 of the Acts of 1907, which permits the borrowing of $500,000 a year. There would also be available for this purpose about $570,000 a year which could be raised by taxes if the School Committee should make use of the provisions of section 1 of chapter 448 of the Acts of 1901 and succeeding acts, which authorizes the appropriation of 40 cents on every thousand dollars of the valuation on which the appropriations of the City Council are based. Apparently, the School Committee does not intend to use this provision, but to depend entirely on loans for the additional funds needed.

In the opinion of the Finance Commission, the authority to incur additional indebtedness requested in House Bill No. 441 should not be granted. It appears that the School Committee intends to borrow $1,000,000 a year for three years for the purpose in question. The commission believes that only $500,000 a year should be borrowed, and that the remainder should be met from taxes, as provided in chapter 448 of the Acts of 1901.

A brief history of the loans issued for land and buildings for school purposes since 1895 may be of service to your honorable committee. By chapter 408 of the Acts of 1895, the authority of the School Committee to provide for the erection of new buildings was enlarged, $500,000 was authorized to be borrowed in the year 1895 outside the debt limit, and loans within the debt limit were authorized for $500,000 in 1896, and $400,000 in each of the years 1897, 1898 and 1899. The need of new high schools was recognized by chapter 442 of the Acts of 1897, which authorized increases in the loans of 1897 and 1898 from $400,000 to $650,000 each, and provided that not less than $500,000 of the amounts issued in these two years should be used for the erection and furnishing of certain high school buildings. Chapter 149 of the Acts of 1898 authorized additional loans within the debt limit of $300,000 in 1899, $300,000 in 1900, and $250,000 in 1901, for the purpose of building and furnishing high and Latin schools and of providing the necessary land. Chapter 239 of the Acts of 1899 authorized a loan of $300,000 outside the debt limit for the Normal School building, of which only $5,000 was used, however, and the act was later repealed by section 8, chapter 473 of the Acts of 1901. Thus, under these various statutes, in five years, loans aggregating $3,850,000 were authorized for the purpose of providing lands, buildings and furnishings of schools. These loans were intended to supply the deficiencies of earlier years, caused by the neglect of the city prior to 1895 to provide adequately for the annual increase in the number of pupils.

By 1901, it became apparent that the erection of new school buildings in a growing city is not an extraordinary, but a regularly recurrent annual expense. From computations then made it was estimated that the annual increase of the school population was about 2,500, and the amount necessary for new accommodations was $500,000. It was then recognized that an attempt to meet these recurrent needs by loans would, if successful, result only in shifting the burden of each year upon succeeding years, with the added cost of the interest on the loans. It was then seen that the annual tax levied for sinking fund and interest requirements on school loans would be as large as the amount necessary to meet the annual increase in school needs caused by the growth of school population. Accordingly, in 1901, by chapter 448, it was provided that out of the money which the School Committee was authorized to appropriate to be met from taxes, 40 cents on each thousand dollars of the valuation "shall be appropriated solely for new school buildings, lands, yards and furnishings . . ." In order that some buildings then in process of erection should be completed the School Committee was authorized by chapter 288 of the Acts of 1901 to borrow $300,000 within the debt limit; and in order to enable the School Committee to provide for new land and buildings out of the 40 cents' provision without the aid of further loans after the year 1904, it was provided by chapter 473 of the Acts of 1901 that $1,000,000 annually could be borrowed within the debt limit for the current year and each of the three years next succeeding. It was confidently expected that after the year 1904 the appropriation of 40 cents on each thousand to be met from taxes would be ample for future school needs and that further loans would be unnecessary.

The School Committee in 1902 appropriated $446,000 out of the 40 cents' provision for the construction and furnishing of new school buildings, the taking of land and the preparation of school yards, but the appropriation was vetoed by the Mayor, and it failed to pass over the veto. A new appropriation of $90,000 for this purpose was made by the School Committee and approved by the Mayor. Attempts have since been made to utilize the 40 cents' provision, but all have failed, and the $90,000 above referred to was the only money appropriated for this purpose to be met from taxes since the passage of the statute in 1901.

As a result the system of loans was re-established. In 1902, by chapter 386 of the acts of that year, the amounts authorized by chapter 473 of the Acts of 1901 to be borrowed in each of the years 1902, 1903 and 1904 were raised from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. In 1905 a further loan of $1,500,000 was authorized. In 1906 no loans were authorized and no appropriations for this purpose were made, with the result that the needs of that year were ignored. In 1907, the authority for loans having been exhausted, and the growth of the school population continuing, the School Committee, instead of resorting to the 40 cents' provision, made application to the Legislature for the right to borrow perpetually, and by section 2 of chapter 450 of the acts of that year loans of $1,000,000 in each of the years 1907 and 1908, and for $500,000 in every year thereafter, were authorized. At the present time, with the exception of the authority to borrow $600,000 for the new High School of Commerce and Administration Building, there is no authority to borrow money for land and buildings for schools except to the amount of $500,000 in each year, as provided in the Act of 1907, aforesaid.

The effect of the policy of providing for school accommodations out of borrowed money has been to increase largely the city's debt and the annual interest charges. Since 1895 there has been appropriated from loans for schoolhouse sites and permanent improvements the sum of $14,087,109.02. In the same period the amounts appropriated from taxes were only $105,603.52, or less than 1 per cent of the amount appropriated from loans. The amounts appropriated for this purpose in the last fifteen years are shown in a table annexed hereto, marked "A." In a table also annexed hereto, marked "B," the school debt is shown to have increased from $120,000 in 1885 to $2,751,922.07 in 1895 and to $15,328,525 in 1910. In addition to this latter amount $500,000 was authorized in 1909 which has not yet been issued. Since 1895 $7,165,755 has been paid for interest and sinking fund charges for school loans, and the amount required to meet such charges for the present year will be $848,319. In fact the amounts now sought to be borrowed to provide land and buildings are not much greater than the interest and sinking fund charges on past loans for the same purposes.

The foregoing facts show that the policy of providing for school needs out of loans instead of taxes has been an exceedingly costly one for the city; and it cannot be too quickly abandoned. The money which should be used to provide buildings for the school children is used instead to pay interest on loans. Numerous excuses can be made for the practice in the past and for its continuance in the future, but it ought not to be necessary to argue that it is an unwise policy to borrow money to meet annually recurrent expenses. The sooner the city discards this policy, the sooner it will be upon a sound financial basis.

The commission, therefore, recommends that the Legislature refuse the authority to borrow the additional money requested by the School Committee.

If, however, your honorable committee believes that it would be a hardship upon the tax-payers to require the payment in this year and next of the entire 40 cents provided by the Act of 1901, and that it might also disarrange the present plans of the Mayor and City Council respecting appropriations, the commission suggests an alternative plan, but only as a temporary expedient, however. House Bill No. 441 could be amended so as to provide that in the years 1910, 1911 and 1912, 20, 30 and 40 cents, respectively be appropriated for land and buildings to be met from taxes; that loans be authorized for $750,000 in 1910, $625,000 in 1911 and $500,000 in 1912, 1913 and 1914; and that the authority to borrow perpetually, provided by section 2 of chapter 450 of the Acts of 1907, be revoked. Under this plan the amounts available for the next five years would be as follows:

YEARS.	Taxes.	Loans.	Totals.
1910.....	$260,000	$750,000	$1,100,000
1911*.....	390,000	625,000	1,015,000
1912.....	520,000	500,000	1,020,000
1913.....	520,000	500,000	1,020,000
1914.....	520,000	500,000	1,020,000
1915 and thereafter	520,000		520,000

Thus, in five years the city's school finances would be upon a sound basis. At the end of this period there should be no further recourse to loans except in the case of the destruction of school buildings by fire or of other extraordinary emergencies.

Under this plan the School Committee would have available for land and buildings in the next five years about $5,250,000, which is sufficient so far as the commission is informed to accomplish all the purposes which the School Committee has now in contemplation.

A draft of a bill embodying the suggestions of the commission is hereto annexed, marked "C."

Respectfully submitted,

THE FINANCE COMMISSION,
by
JOHN A. SULLIVAN,
Chairman.

* The amounts available from taxes in the years 1911 and thereafter will be larger than the amounts in the above table, as they have been based on the valuations of the present year, which of course will be increased from year to year.

AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR ADDITIONAL PERMANENT ELEMENTARY SCHOOL ACCOMMODATIONS IN THE CITY OF BOSTON.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

SECTION 1. For the purpose of meeting the expense of constructing, enlarging, or furnishing high and elementary school buildings, and acquiring land as sites therefor in the City of Boston, including the enlarging or replacing of old schoolhouses by modern structures and the enlarging of present school yards, the city treasurer of the City of Boston shall issue and sell negotiable bonds of the city to the amount determined to be necessary by the school committee, but such amount shall not exceed seven hundred fifty thousand dollars in the year nineteen hundred and ten, six hundred twenty-five thousand dollars in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, and five hundred thousand dollars in each of the years nineteen hundred and twelve, nineteen hundred and thirteen and nineteen hundred and fourteen. The authority to borrow given by section two of chapter four hundred and fifty of the acts of nineteen hundred and seven is hereby revoked.

SECT. 2. The school committee shall appropriate for the said purposes, within the tax limit, upon each one thousand dollars of the valuation on which the appropriations of the city council are based, not exceeding twenty cents in the financial year nineteen hundred and ten, not exceeding thirty cents in the financial year nineteen hundred and eleven, and not exceeding forty cents in the financial year nineteen hundred and twelve and in each financial year thereafter. The orders of the school committee determining the amount of said bonds which the city treasurer is to issue shall be presented to the mayor for his approval or disapproval, and the same proceedings shall be had in relation thereto as are now prescribed by law in regard to other orders of said school committee involving the expenditure of money. The proceeds of said bonds shall be expended in accordance with the provisions of this act and of chapter four hundred and seventy-three of the acts of nineteen hundred and one, and of chapter four hundred and fifty of the acts of nineteen hundred and seven, and of any amendments thereto, and the board of schoolhouse commissioners of said city may, during the years nineteen hundred and ten and nineteen hundred and eleven, make contracts for the payment of the whole or any part of the amount to be issued under this act in a following year.

SECT. 3. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

WASTE IN STREET CONSTRUCTION.

Narrow carriage-ways on residential streets are so advantageous in every way, in most cases, that it is surprising to notice the development of any opposition to them at this late date in a city like Chicago, where the work of intelligent municipal betterment has recently received such warm support. The Board of Local Improvements of that city has ordered the roadway on Wabash avenue from Forty-third street to Garfield boulevard to be reduced in width from 50 to 34 feet, the width saved in this way to be utilized in grass plots. This recommendation is warranted by every consideration. A 34-foot carriage-way is plenty wide enough for most residential streets. The first cost of paving it is considerably less than that of paving a wider carriage-way, the maintenance charges are less, the actual deterioration by wear will not be appreciably greater, and the cost of cleaning will be much less. Then, again, the appearance of the street will be materially improved by the presence of the wider grass plots. There are few things more attractive along a residential street than well arranged and maintained parking, but this is rarely practicable on streets with wide roadways and the ordinary rather narrow sidewalks. It might be added that this reduction in width is something that was advocated about six years ago in an elaborate report made by Mr. John W. Alvord to the Chicago Commercial Club, in which he said: "In most cities of this country an immense amount of money has been wasted in paving broad roadways on residence streets where light traffic prevails. Not only is the first cost thus thrown away, but the annual loss in cleaning, sprinkling and repairs becomes very much larger than is necessary, and in so far as the grass plots are thus restricted the street is rendered less beautiful than it would otherwise be." If the residents along Wabash avenue wish to secure the maximum serviceability and attractiveness with the minimum expense for street improvements, they should withdraw their opposition to the narrowing of the roadway.—Engineering Record.

The people of Chicago are paying $9,000,000 a year for telephone service. The city gets a rake-off of $270,000 a year, or 3 per cent of the gross.

Stanwood Field therefor.

CONDITION OF GROUNDS, EDWARD EVERETT SCHOOL.

A communication was received from the Board of Schoolhouse Commissioners, under date of Mar. 30, 1910, calling attention, for such action as may be deemed best, to the condition of the grounds of the Edward Everett School-house, and stating that in May, 1909, $160 was spent for grass seed, shrubs and planting; that the summer was dry, and, owing to lack of attention on the part of the janitor, the grass burned up and the shrubs failed to make proper growth, and said Board is now forced to do this work over again.

HIGH SCHOOL OF COMMERCE AND SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION BUILDING.

A communication was received from the Board of Schoolhouse Commissioners, under date of Apr. 1, 1910, stating that the preliminary work by the architects on the High School of Commerce and School Administration Building is practically complete, and as soon as certain minor details in the construction and equipment have been studied, they will be prepared to begin on the working drawings; that this cannot be done until the floor plans to be occupied by the School Committee have been approved by it, and asking that some definite individual or committee be designated to confer with the architects and report to the School Committee on all the space that is allotted to said Committee for its use.

Placed on file and the Superintendent and the Secretary designated to act as a committee to confer with the architects relative to the accommodations to be provided for occupancy by the School Committee in the new Administration Building.

REVISION OF BUDGET, SCHOOLHOUSE COMMISSION.

A communication was received from the Board of Schoolhouse Commissioners, under date of Apr. 1, 1910, enclosing a revised budget of that department for the current year, and stating that after doing all the imperative work in the way of repairs, there remains a balance for accommodations and equipment of $35,000. The Board desires the School Committee to divide this amount among the various requirements of its work, as shall seem best in its judgment, bearing in mind that it is essential to include the sum of $10,000 for moving portables and changing furniture, incidental to the reopening of school in September, and doing various other work that has been requested.

Referred to the Superintendent, with authority to confer with the Schoolhouse Commission from time to time with reference to the wise expenditure of the amount available for the various items contained in the budget presented by the Schoolhouse Commission.

A report was received from the Board of Superintendents under date of Apr. 4, 1910, on the communication referred at the meeting of Feb. 21, 1910 (see p. 23), from the head-master of the Normal School, with reference to requiring a medical examination of candidates for admission to and graduation from that School, stating that in its opinion it is inexpedient to substitute a physician's certificate for the present requirement of a certification of good health from the head-master of the high school from which the pupils graduate. The Board feels, however, that it would be advisable for the head-masters to consult with the teachers of physical training before certifying to the health of pupils who are candidates for admission to the Normal School, in order that those pupils who have proved unfit subjects for the physical training work required in the high schools may be carefully considered before being recommended for admission to the Normal School. The Board further proposes to require candidates for admission to the Normal School, who are graduates of high schools outside of the city, to furnish satisfactory medical certificates.

OBSERVANCE OF INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Dr. Scannell, who was appointed Sept. 20, 1909 (see p. 115), a committee to formulate and submit to the Board plans for an Independence Day Celebration, presented the following report.

At the meeting of the School Board on Sept. 20, 1909, I was assigned the matter of determining what part the School Committee should take in co-operating with the Mayor of Boston in the saner celebration of our holidays, particularly June 17th and July 4th. The matter was referred to me particularly because of my association with the Saner Fourth Committee of Boston-1915.

My work as Chairman of this Committee has made it necessary for me to do a certain amount of work in connection with the schools, the teachers, and the Parents' Associations, so that much of this report is in the nature of a recital of accomplishments.

(1) There has been prepared at my direction, a four-leaf pamphlet (a copy of which accompanies this report), reciting in detail the deaths and accidents of various kinds resulting from our present methods of celebrating these two holidays, the period chosen having encompassed the last six years and the source being the entire United States, with particular reference to the large states. These facts, and others of similar interest and value, some having to do with fire statistics, have been convincingly arrayed.

(2) In presenting this matter to the public, I have had the most active co-operation of ten enthusiastic physicians (in most instances surgeons). Under systematic organization, we have addressed every Parents' Association in Boston, the speaker in each instance talking practically along the same lines, and using the pamphlet as a text (every person present having been supplied with a copy). As a result of this procedure, it is fair to estimate that not less than twenty thousand to twenty-five thousand parents have been appealed to directly and an active public sentiment against the present barbarous methods created.

(3) Some three weeks ago, I personally talked to one hundred and fifty of the male teachers in the Boston schools, impressing them with the importance of the subject and also giving them pamphlets. It is my hope within a short time to have the same privilege before the women teachers of the Boston schools.

(4) The various Improvement Associations are now in process of co-operation and after them, the Labor Unions, through the Central Labor Union.

(5) We have personally spoken before the Legislature on the desirability of restrictive legislation in the matter of blank cartridges, fire crackers, etc., and have great hopes that the bill recently introduced by Deputy Chief Neale of the State Police, will pass: (this bill has mainly to do with the blank cartridge, the blank cartridge pistol, the toy cannon, the toy gun, and fire crackers larger than 3½ inches long and ½ of an inch in diameter, and containing other than black gun powder).

(6) Directly we must have the co-operation of the Mayor and Council of Boston, and in the proper time, the subject will be presented to them.

(7) Our problem up to date has been entirely along the preventive side, and this has been a considerable task in itself. It seemed unfair to ask the original Boston-1915 Saner Fourth Committee to undertake also the suggestive or substitute aspect of the question. As a result, there has been formed, under the selection of Mr. James P. Munroe, Executive Director of Boston-1915, an Auxiliary Committee, which is to co-operate with the civic authorities and such organizations as would naturally have to do with such celebrations. The School Committee, through its well organized school system, can be of incalculable help to this Committee.

(8) I would, therefore, suggest to the School Committee, that in order to take a proper co-operative part in this movement, both in the negative and positive side of the question, that the following recommendations be adopted.—

1. That to every teacher in the Boston School Service, there be sent by the Superintendent a pamphlet of the type of which I have been speaking, this pamphlet to be supplied free of cost by Boston-1915.

2. That the Superintendent call the attention of the teachers to the attitude of the School Board in this matter and encourage them to use their best and strongest influence (which they so unquestionably possess) to arouse a sentiment among the children against our present barbarous methods of celebration, and particularly against that pernicious trinity, the blank cartridge, the toy pistol, and the large fire cracker.

3. That every principal be urged to organize his district through every school, every room, every teacher, and every child, as has been so effectively done in the crusade against the cigarette.

4. That the School Committee offer its hearty co-operation and help to the Saner Fourth Committee of Boston-1915 toward the provision of a substitute.

The report was accepted and placed on file, and the recommendations contained therein adopted.

The Board adjourned at 7:25 o'clock P.M. Attest:

THORNTON D. APOLLONIO,
Secretary.

BOSTON'S BILL FOR EDUCATION.

In view of the present discussion of school expenditures, it should interest the public in general to learn that the sum called for by the School Department for the coming year amounts to $4,455,000; to which should be added the $848,319 required to pay interest and sinking fund charges on account of debt for school buildings and land. These figures are, perhaps, too large to be grasped by the average mind; but their importance will be readily appreciated when we find that they represent an actual tax of $8.18 per head on every man, woman and child, citizen and alien, within the city's borders. Nor do these figures include the cost, now borne by the Health Department, of maintaining a corps of seventy-nine medical inspectors, whose duty it is to care for the health of the thousands of children attending the city's schools.

The report of the School Department for last year gives the average number of pupils belonging to all day schools as 96,932 on June 30, and 98,503 on January 31, preceding; the mean being 97,700. Taking that number as a basis, and deducting the cost of maintaining evening schools, $146,502, we can clearly see that, next year, Boston will pay $52.78 per pupil for the education of every one of the thousands of children attending day school, in every grade from kindergarten up.

OPEN AIR SCHOOLS.

Chicago and New York are experimenting with rooms on the roofs of schools to be used by children of tubercular tendencies. It has been found that these children in the open air do remarkably good work. This has led to a series of experiments in the Graham school in Chicago in keeping the windows wide open all day in all kinds of weather. The children are wrapped up like Esquimaux to keep them warm. The results showed better health and better work for the children in the open air rooms.—Pacific Outlook.

The city of Pittsburg figures that it can save money by putting all municipal telephones into one exchange. As a large part of the calling is between the various departments the telephone people are ready to make a low figure on this plan, as it saves sending all these calls through the central office.—Pacific Outlook.

"HUSTLE" IN LONDON.

While London continues to present a traffic problem more difficult than any to be found elsewhere, it leads the world in underground transit. Improvements recently introduced into three London tube railways made the services on these the finest in the world. On the line between Charing Cross and Golder's Green (seven miles) forty-two trains per hour are being run during the busy times of the day, fifty thousand passengers being carried in the four hours of accelerated service. On the "Bakerloo" line, which was at first a failure but has been pushed into prosperity by enterprising management, there is a service of forty trains, and on the line from Earl's Court to Finsbury Park, one of thirty trains per hour during the busy hours. The last trains on the Piccadilly and "Bakerloo" lines leave at one in the morning and at midnight on Sundays. Through express trains are run on all the lines. Economy of time is a science with the directors of these "tubes." The passenger is "speeded up" by signs placed prominently in stations and trains and by the voice of the conductor. "Suppose," says the Hampstead manager, "we save one-thousandth of a second per passenger by repeating the name of the station so that the passenger instead of peering about can move at once, isn't that worth while?" On this line time is saved at the lifts by an automatic signal which tells the liftman that a train is coming and gives him just enough time to bring down waiting passengers. On another line the lifts at a certain station were replaced by staircases, because the latter enabled the passengers to reach the trains more quickly. It is a marvel that this bewildering traffic is conducted without considerable loss of life. On the Hampstead line a speed of twenty-six miles per hour is reached in twenty seconds. "At Camden town the man in the signal-box changes the points and the signals at a rush time for eighty-four trains per hour. He makes three movements of the lever for each train, or 252 per hour for the eighty-four. That cannot be beaten in Europe." Nervous people will hope it will never be beaten anywhere.

SANITARY TENEMENTS.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt of New York is building four large six-story buildings covering eighteen city lots that will accommodate 382 families in suites of two to five rooms, and they are especially designed for families in which there is a case of tuberculosis or a tubercular tendency. The halls and stairways are all open to the air, and there are outside sleeping porches and sleeping accommodations on the roof. The construction is largely concrete and tile. The apartments will be rented at a fair figure, but to make the charity complete the income is to be used for the assistance of consumptive indigents.—Pacific Outlook.

CHARLES R. BROWN,
Collector of Taxes for the City of Boston.

ARBITRATION FOR PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATIONS.

The city of Des Moines has placed in its street car franchise a provision intended to prevent the possibility of strikes. The company is required to enter into a contract with all its employees that if any dispute arises between the company and its employees there shall be arbitration, one arbitrator to be appointed by the company and one by the employees, and these two to appoint a third, or if they cannot agree upon a third, then the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court shall make the appointment.—Pacific Outlook.

BONDS AND POLITICS.

The proposition for $12,000,000 in bonds in Chicago for city hall, new bridges, extension of lighting plant, fire engine houses, branch libraries, small parks and playgrounds will not be presented to the people at the coming city election in April, but will be postponed and voted upon at a special election. Although this change of plan costs the city $40,000 for election expenses, the city authorities believe the bonds would stand little show if mixed in with politics, as they must inevitably be if voted upon at the same time a lot of new councilmen are elected.

MUNICIPAL PRINTING PLANT.

The City Council of Minneapolis is considering the establishment of a plant to do all the city's printing. It is estimated that the city pays over $25,000 a year for printing bills, and the officers complain that the city does not get a square deal from the printers, with respect to prices and promptness, just because it is the city.—Pacific Outlook.

The city of Baltimore has constructed five docks and will presently have three more. Although the rates charged are nominal as compared with those of private enterprise, they nevertheless pay 4 per cent on the investment.—Pacific Outlook.

SOME FACTS ABOUT LONDON.

London is probably the wealthiest city in the world. Its property is insured from fire at £1,040,057,846. Despite this, however, there is a large amount of poverty. The figures show that:

One person in every thirty-three is a pauper.

Twenty persons in every 100 die in a workhouse infirmary.

London does much to cope with its burden of poverty, and every year £10,066,043 is distributed by various charities.

Londoners are much given to traveling in trains, tramcars and omnibuses. The weather may account for this, for it might be considerably better than it is. The average that may be expected each year is about as follows:

One thousand two hundred and eighty hours of sunshine out of a possible 4,450 hours.

One hundred and sixty rainy days, with a total rainfall of 24½ inches.

An average temperature of 50 degrees.

Whatever the cause, however, the fondness for being carried about instead of walking is undoubtedly one of the Londoner's greatest failings. The facilities are tremendous. Here are some of them:

Ten great trunk lines have termini in London.

The local railways are worth £66,888,265.

There are 124 miles of tramways.

Omnibuses number 3,762, of which motor omnibuses form nearly a third.

The number of passengers carried by the local railways and tramcars alone numbered over 949,000,000 last year, equal to 200 journeys for every man, woman and child in London, while millions more were carried in omnibuses and cabs.

There is a wide variety in the means by which Londoners are able to amuse themselves when the working day is over. In addition to the open air pastimes to be found in the parks and open spaces the following sources are available to them: Theatres, 53; music halls, 49; concert halls, 261; museums, 11.

There are also 88 public libraries open to them, which possess 1,184,092 books. The total number issued last year was 6,300,387 books, of which 4,013,322 were novels.

How is this vast city governed? In all there are 101 local governing bodies, which deal with every side of public life. These have a total of 3,783 elected members. Many of the offices are held in duplicate, however, and it is probable that the total number of persons engaged in the government of London is about 2,800.

They are elected by 816,593 voters, of whom 118,693 are women.

MOTORS vs. HORSES.

An example of the comparative swiftness of the horse and the motor, as applied to fire apparatus, was shown recently in Kansas City, when an automobile hose wagon which was two and a half miles distant from a fire arrived there simultaneously with an engine that had only six blocks to go.—Pacific Outlook.

WIDENING STREETS.

Pittsburg has gone into an active campaign for the widening of its business streets. Orders were recently given for the tearing down of sixty good-sized downtown buildings.—Pacific Outlook.

WHEELING'S FINANCIAL CONDITION.

Under recent legislation in West Virginia, Wheeling is apparently in that unenviable position of an ordinary spendthrift just now and likely to stay there for several months. The city's general fund was reported as exhausted on March 15, and the police, fire, engineering and health departments have not paid their employees since then. On April 2 the public works fund was reported exhausted. Probably some way out of this predicament will be found, but the experience shows the necessity of great care in legislation affecting municipal financial methods, for it is manifest that the resources of no community should be so tied up legally that police and fire protection and public health precautions are jeopardized. Sometimes cities will embark on recklessly extravagant undertakings, which naturally result in bankruptcy, like the street paving projects of some New Jersey cities many years ago, but all legislation regarding municipal finances should provide even in such cases some means for raising funds for indispensable public services.

THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE NEW YORK STATE BARGE CANAL.

The New York State Barge Canal has been the subject of quite a number of articles in the Engineering Record, so that no general description or history of it is necessary here. The following data, however, taken from the annual report of Mr. Frank M. Williams, State Engineer and Surveyor, shows its present condition.

The total length, including the Erie, Oswego and Champlain Canals, is 433 miles, which figure includes 27 miles of lake navigation requiring no construction work. On January 1, 1910, there were 314.2 miles of canal under contract at prices aggregating $54,138,329. Additional plans for 67.7 miles were then completed, plans for 9 miles were over 75 per cent finished, and for the remainder of the work were under way. In other words, 76 per cent of the total length is now under contract and it is expected that the whole of it will be let by April 10 of this year, with the exception of some minor structures and operating machinery which it would not be advisable to put in place now.

Fifteen of the fifty-three new locks are completed, with the exception of gates and operating machinery, and in some of the structures these are now being installed. By a year from this spring the eight movable dams in the Mohawk River will be in operation and will be used to aid in the dredging of the channel by retaining water for the floating of dredging machinery. The large fixed dam across the Mohawk River near Crescent, described in the Engineering Record of April 3, 1909, will be finished during the coming summer, as will also the concrete dam impounding the waters of the upper Mohawk at Delta.

At the close of 1909 construction work aggregating $16,291,315 had been completed, nearly half of which had been done during the year 1909. The work now under contract has been let at figures which show a saving of $2,653,208 over the 1903 estimate.—Engineering Record.

The sewage farm which disposes of the wastes of Pasadena, Cal., returned an income from hogs, walnuts, hay, corn and other products of $11,672 during the last fiscal year, while the maintenance charges were $8,517; this leaves a net income of $3,155 leaving out of consideration interest and depreciation, which amount to about $6,300 per year. The farm, according to the "Municipal Journal and Engineer," comprises 515.6 acres. In irrigating corn and walnut crops the ground is dosed from four to ten days and ploughed after it has dried out.—Engineering Record.

Pasadena owns a farm of 515 acres to which the city's sewage is carried and used for irrigation. The farm represents an investment of about $100,000 and the gross income last year was over $11,500, with expenses of $8,500. The latter figure does not include depreciation and interest, which are offset probably by increase in the value of the land and appreciation of the value of orchards. In short, the care of sewage, which might be an item of considerable expense for a city of 30,000 people, is made self-supporting by good management.—Pacific Outlook.

Twenty-two of the larger cities of Germany build and rent habitations for people of small means, in order to get rid of the slum nuisance.—Pacific Outlook.

HALF HOLIDAYS, CEMETERY EMPLOYEES.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, April 8, 1910.

To the City Council:

I transmit herewith communications from the Cemetery Trustees and the Corporation Counsel, both relating to your order directing that the employees of the Cemetery Department be allowed half holidays on Saturdays.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

City of Boston,

Cemetery Department, April 6, 1910.

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald,

Mayor of Boston:

Dear Sir,—Herewith is returned an order of the City Council, March 14.—Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be requested to direct the Cemetery Trustees to allow all employees in their department half holidays on Saturdays without loss of pay.

As the order bears the notation of your office, "Referred to the Cemetery Trustees," we conclude that the reference is made in order that this Board may reply thereto. We beg, therefore, to say that the subject has been already brought to our attention, and referred to the Law Department for opinion as to whether the laborers in this department a half holiday on Saturdays with pay. Inclosed you will find the reply of the Corporation Counsel, Mr. Babson, in which he states, "there is no statute authorizing the payment of workmen or other people hired by the day for such times as they do not work." He concludes by calling attention to a statute which places in the hands of the City Council authority to order one half holiday in each week without loss of pay during such portions of the year as the City Council determines.

We now beg to say in advance of a possible order of this kind that the cemeteries must be open each day in the week and also on Sundays for purposes of burials, and in that respect the department differs from the other city departments employing laborers. That is, a number of laborers must be on hand six days, and also seven days, to make interments and to perform other work absolutely necessary to be performed at once. It would, therefore, be impossible to grant all employees a half holiday on all Saturdays. In the performance of cemetery labor workmen are assigned to and become experienced in certain specific lines, such as gardeners, grave diggers, tree men, stablemen, etc. As a consequence, the services of men experienced in certain lines cannot be dispensed with. The granting of a half holiday to a portion of the employees whose services can be dispensed with regularly, and the denial of the same to employees whose services are required, will subject this Board to the criticism of inequitable treatment of all employees.

Yours respectfully,

CHAS. E. PHIPPS,
Chairman of the Board of Trustees
of the Cemetery Department.

City of Boston,

Law Department, March 4, 1910.

Trustees of the Cemetery Department,

Room 76, City Hall, Boston, Mass.:

Dear Sirs,—I am requested by you through your secretary to answer the following questions: Are the trustees authorized to grant a half holiday on Saturdays to the per diem employees of the department?

Are the trustees to pay per diem employees for such holidays if granted?

My reply to the first question would be "Yes."

To the second, my reply would be in the negative, that is, there is no statute authorizing the payment of workmen or other people hired by the day for such times as they do not work. If the parties referred to are laboring men, the department would be governed by the laws passed by the Commonwealth concerning the employment of workmen, laborers and mechanics. Under those laws you can so arrange the hours worked on other days as to give six days' pay to workmen, laborers or mechanics who have worked forty-eight hours in the week,—the statute requirement being that no laborer, workman or mechanic shall be requested or required to work more than eight hours in any one day, but in cases where weekly half holidays are given the working hours of other days may be increased sufficiently to make a total of forty-eight hours for the week's work.

There is another statute which provides that the City Council of a city may provide that the employees of such city, including laborers, mechanics, and all other classes of workmen employed by said city, shall be allowed one half holiday in each week without loss of pay during such portions of the year as the City Council determines. I am informed by Mr. Priest, the City Clerk, that the City Council has not passed such an order.

Yours truly,

THOMAS M. BABSON,
Corporation Counsel.

Coun. CURLEY—Mr. President, I most respectfully move that the communication be referred to the Executive Committee. I feel that it merits further consideration by this Board. This is about the only city department where such discrimination is shown. I don't feel that any particularly extensive knowledge is necessary to perform the job of grave digger, and I feel that some rearrangement of the force might be made so that a Saturday half holiday could be given in this department as in the Public Grounds Department, Park Department and other departments. I believe, if possible, we should submit some proposition along the line of which the Cemetery Department might find it possible to work and to comply with the conditions demanded, conditions that are in force in every other department.

The message was referred to the Executive Committee.

VISITORS, KING'S CHAPEL BURIAL GROUND.

The following was received:

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald,

Mayor of Boston:

This Board will, as in the past, keep this ground open at all reasonable hours to visitors, and extend to them every possible courtesy.

CHAS. E. PHIPPS,
Chairman of the Board of Trustees
of the Cemetery Department.

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, April 8, 1910.

To the City Council:

I transmit herewith a communication from the Schoolhouse Department containing a reply

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor of Boston,

My dear Sir,—Referring to the order of the City Council, namely, "That the Schoolhouse Commissioners be requested to cause the grounds surrounding the South Boston High School to be put in suitable condition, the expense of the work to be charged to the appropriation for Schoolhouse Department," it is customary for the Board of Schoolhouse Commissioners every spring to cause the grounds that surround said building to be put in condition for the summer. This they propose to do this season.

FIRE APPARATUS, INFIRMARY BOAT.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, April 11, 1910.

To the City Council:

The Trustees of the Boston Infirmary Department, at my request, have investigated the feasibility of installing fire extinguishing apparatus in the new boat authorized to be built by said department. They report that the plans can be readily modified, at an estimated cost of $5,000, so that this apparatus may be installed. I recommend, therefore, the addition of $5,000 to the appropriation for the "Boston Infirmary Department, New Boat," passed by the City Council of last year and approved by Mayor Hibbard on December 13, 1909.

A letter from the chairman of the trustees of the Boston Infirmary Department, setting forth his views upon the advisability of installing the apparatus in question, accompanied by a copy of the report of their expert, is forwarded herewith.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

City of Boston,

Infirmary Department, April 11, 1910.

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor of Boston,

City Hall, Boston, Mass.:

Dear Sir,—The Boston Infirmary Trustees, through the Committee on Buildings and Grounds, have taken up the suggestion made by you of installing in the new boat for this department a pump for fire service. They have caused their expert to examine and report to them on the additional cost of installing such a pump and the necessary changes in the plans and specifications which have already been approved by the Board and by the Mayor.

I have the honor to send you herewith report of the expert appointed by the Board. The trustees recommend the change if your Honor deems it advisable. In that event, an additional appropriation of five thousand dollars ($5,000) will be necessary.

Very respectfully,

E. M. GALLAGHER, Chairman.

SS Broad Street,

Boston, April 11, 1910.

Dr. Nathaniel W. Emerson.

Chairman Committee on Buildings and Grounds,

28 Court Square, Boston, Mass.:

Dear Sir,—Regarding the changes in the proposed boat for your department which are necessary to render it available for use as an auxiliary fireboat, I would say that I have discussed the matter at some length with the designers of this boat, Messrs. George Lawley & Sons Corporation.

After looking into the matter they have given it as their opinion that it would be possible to install in the engine room a special Blake duplex fire pump having a capacity of 1,200 gallons per minute. This will necessitate only comparatively slight changes in the present design and would seem to me to fully cover the requirements necessary for its use as an auxiliary fireboat. They estimate the additional cost of equipping the boat in this way at not over five thousand dollars ($5,000).

Very respectfully,

CAPE B. CLARK.

Referred to the Committee on Finance.

When applied to the road, this emulsion must have a satisfactory brown color, must mix readily with the surface cushion of the road and form a coating that, in fair weather, will not adhere to the soles of shoes or to wagon tires after it has been on the road five hours. A sample of the oil offered must be submitted with the proposal for analysis by S. P. Sharples, chemist. The commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all proposals and preference will be given to the oil which best meets the above requirements and has the least offensive odor.
